COOLIDGE OPENS SESSION

ARBITRATION FACES TEST

Delegates View Present Clash as Gravest South America Has Had in Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A definite move toward the settlement of the boundary controversy between Bolivia and Paraguay was made today by the International Conference of American States on Conciliation and Arbitration when, at its opening session, it unanimously adopted a resolution expressing to the two governments the hope that their present differences may be arranged pacifically, and conveying to them that nations under such circumstances as the present have at their disposal adequate means to harmonize the preservation of peace with the rights of the State.

President Coolidge addressed the conference at its opening session. The history of the American Republics' efforts to establish the principles of conciliation and arbitration was pointed to by the President as evidence of their desire for the orderly settlement of international disputes. The foundation of the work of the conference, he said, had thus been laid.

The resolution, which was offered by Dr. Victor M. Maurtua, delegate from Peru, and seconded by Dr. Orestes Ferrara, the Cuban Ambassador, called for the formation of a special committee to report to the conference "with respect to the conciliatory action which, if necessary, it might render, cooperating with the instrumentalities now employed in the friendly solution of the problem."

This special committee was appointed by Secretary Kellogg, permanent chairman of the conference, and is composed of Dr. Maurtua, Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Dr. Manuel Foster Recabarren of Chile, S. Gurgel do Amaral of Brazil and Charles Evans Hughes.

Committee Holds Session.

The special committee met at 5 o'clock this afternoon to consider a plan to gather data on the question. Meantime the full text of the resolution had been telegraphed to the governments of both Bolivia and Paraguay.

Don Edwardo Diez de Medina, the Bolivian Minister to Washington, and Dr. Juan V. Ramirez, the Chargé d'Affaires of Paraguay in Washington, were invited to join the special committee.

Dr. Eligio Alaya, the delegate from Paraguay to the conference, attended the meeting of the special committee. Dr. Diez de Medina and Dr. Ramirez were also present, but the two latter left shortly after the meeting was called to order and announced that Dr. Alaya, the official Paraguayan delegate, would represent his country on the committee.

Committee Issues Statement.

The members of the committee remained in secret session from 5 o'clock until soon after 6 when they issued this statement:

"In accordance with the resolution adopted at the opening meeting of the International Conference of American States on Conciliation and Arbitration, the special committee appointed by the chairman of the conference under said resolution, and composed of the delegates of: Chile, Señor Foster; of Peru, Señor Maurtua; of Brazil, Señhor Gurgel de Amaral; of Cuba, Señor Ferrara, and of the United States, Charles Evans Hughes, organized under the chairmanship of Señor Maurtua.

"The committee was informed that the telegrams to the Bolivian and Paraguayan Governments conveying the text of the resolution had already been dispatched and that a reply thereto should be expected soon.

"The committee then agreed upon a plan to gather data on the conflict, which will be used as a basis for the report which it will submit to the conference."

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution of Dr. Maurtua as unanimously adopted by the conference today, read:

William III Statue Beheaded By Unknown Men in Dublin

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Dec. 10.—The famous statue of King William III, which formerly stood on College Green and which was damaged by a bomb on the morning of Armistice Day, now has been decapitated.

A party of men broke into the Dublin Corporation buildings, where the statue was being repaired, and cut the head off.

No clue to their identity has been discovered.

PARAGUAY APPEALS TO NATIONS LEAGUE

Plea for Intervention in Dispute With Bolivia May Reach Council Today.

CHILE OFFERS MEDIATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUGANO, Switzerland, Dec. 10.—A demand for League of Nations intervention in the conflict between Bolivia and Paraguay probably will be placed before the League Council at the opening of its session tomorrow morning, it was learned in reliable quarters tonight.

Both countries are members of the League and representations reached the [illegible] secretariat late this evening. It will be at the instance of Paraguay that the League will be apprised of the matter.

Neither country is represented on the League Council. Two South American nations are on the Council, Venezuela and Chile, while Cuba is the only Caribbean country on the Council.

In discussions of the question heard among delegates tonight it seemed likely that both Chile and Cuba will seek to avoid taking sides in the dispute but that the Venezuelan delegate is inclined to support any move for League intervention.

Chile Offers to Mediate.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 10.—Chile has offered to act as mediator in Bolivia's boundary dispute with Paraguay, and it is believed here that the offer will be accepted.

Despite excited demonstrations of some 20,000 persons here yesterday, all was quiet on the Paraguayan frontier today as it appears unlikely that hostilities will break out.

[Censorship on all outgoing press messages from Bolivia was established yesterday, according to information received by the All America Cable Company in New York last night.]

Bolivia Protests to Powers.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 10.—Tension persisted here today, particularly in view of Bolivia's point blank refusal to contribute to the formation of an extemporaneous and unnecessary investigation commission, interrupting also the traditional tolerance shown to Paraguay." However, after yesterday's patriotic meeting, interspersed with shouts for "War with Paraguay," there was a reaction, probably because most of the participants were back at work.

The Foreign Office made public the text of an official statement communicated by cable to all foreign governments friendly to Bolivia and to the League of Nations. It is somewhat similar to the first pronouncement, recounting in detail the skirmish which led to the present situa-

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 10.—Chile, the first of the South American A B C nations to be visited by the President-elect, welcomed Herbert Hoover today.

It was a reception marked by dignity but not without ovations by the populace. The military was prominent throughout the affair, for Chile is extremely proud of her army and exhibited it in all its glory to Mr. Hoover as he arrived in the capital in the forenoon by train from Valparaiso and again as he passed through the streets of Santiago in the afternoon.

Chilean army planes flew over the battleship Maryland as it reached Valparaiso with the Hoover party soon after sunrise. The official greeting at the port was brief before Mr. Hoover entrained for Santiago.

Here the beautiful Alameda, the Fifth Avenue of the Chilian capital, was lined for more than two miles with troops, all splendidly uniformed and with the most modern equipment. Lancers, infantry, machine gun units, mountain batteries, detachments with field pieces and a motor transport train were in line.

He Rides With President Ibanez.

Through these cordons Mr. Hoover rode in a State carriage with President Carlos Ibanez, who had met him at the station, at the head of a great parade from the railroad terminal toward the American Embassy, an imposing building fronting on the beautiful Parque Foresial and directly facing the noted memorial erected on the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Straits of Magellan.

Fully 100,000 persons, it is estimated, saw Mr. Hoover as, with Señor Ibanez and followed in other carriages by Cabinet Ministers, members of the American Embassy staff and American and Chilian naval and army officers, he slowly made his way along the Alameda. There was little hurrahing, but much handclapping, waving of flags and thousands of smiling faces, in evidence of the cordial appreciation of the people generally for the first visit of a President-elect of the United States.

The day was notable in that it was the first time ashore on his Latin-American mission when Mr. Hoover has had a day in which he made no speech.

One reception followed another. First came a luncheon at the Embassy; then an official call on President Ibanez and a return call by the President at the Embassy. Through the streets the parties were accompanied by detachments of all branches of the army with many bands, including a splendid mounted unit, playing alternately American and Chilean airs with repeated renditions of the national anthems of the two countries. Overhead the Chilean planes again staged an air demonstration.

Next Mr. Hoover received members of the American colony here at the Embassy. This evening he is the guest at a dinner at the Embassy at which President Ibanez, members of the Cabinet and diplomatic corps and leaders in the financial, business and social life of Santiago are present.

Mr. Hoover was delighted at the chance to mingle with people and talk in man-to-man fashion.

But this was only for today, for

Design Chosen for Unknown Soldier's Tomb; Work of T. H. Jones and Lorimer Rich Wins

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The design submitted by Thomas Hudson Jones, sculptor, of 144 Bleecker Street, New York, and Lorimer Rich, architect, of 18 East Forty-first Street, for the completion of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington was accepted today by Secretary of War Davis.

The choice was made in a final competition in which five models had been selected, and was recommended unanimously by a special jury of award, the Arlington National Cemetery Commission, the American Battle Monuments Commission and the Fine Arts Commission after a competition in which seventy-three sculptors and architects participated.

Congress had directed that the plans be made on a basis of $50,000 for the work.

The successful design is a sarcophagus in the form of a parallelopipedon, which might be roughly described as a leaning sarcophagus, a prism, the six faces of which are parallelograms. Doric columns in alto-relief divide the sides into three panels. On the front appear in bas-relief three figures, symbolizing Peace, Victory and the American Soldier. The back is reserved for an inscription, yet to be written, and in each of the side panels there appears a wreath in bas-relief.

The material will be of the same quality of marble used in the tomb, the monument being superimposed on the present structure.

All the contestants submitted designs for improving the approach to the Amphitheatre before which the Tomb stands. Secretary Davis announced that as soon as Major Gen. B. F. Cheatham, Quartermaster General of the army, can prepare estimates for the additional work, he will recommend its authorization by Congress.

Mr. Jones, the successful sculptor, was born in Buffalo, N. Y. He won the Prix de Rome 1919-1922, and is a fellow of the American Academy of Rome. He designed the bust of General Grant in the Hall of Fame at the College of the City of New York.

Lorimer Rich, the architect, has been practicing for himself less than a year. He was graduated from Syracuse University, studied in Europe and then went with the old firm of McKim, Mead & White. The first of this year he began independent work, specializing in memorial architecture.

Radio Room Is 'Conning Tower' of Day-and-Night Combat Against Fog, Ice and Wind.

ON BOARD THE BARK CITY OF NEW YORK, somewhere near Scott Island, Dec. 10.—We know that we are in the Antarctic now. All day long stately, flat-topped bergs, glistening white and blue in the sun, have been marching by, broad tablelands of snow-ice that have broken off from the continent to the south and are moving north.

Huge waves dash against the massive cliffs and shoot spray fifty feet in the air, slowly wearing away the masses that seem impregnable.

"The ceaseless warfare of nature," said Commander Byrd as he watched through his glasses the magnificent play of color.

At one time there were seven of these gigantic bergs within a few miles, all in line like companies on parade. The tops were big enough to hold two or three ball fields and hundreds of thousands of people.

They were large enough for landing fields, and the fliers aboard were as much interested in the apparently smooth surfaces as the dog drivers were in the crevasses which occasionally showed on the sides.

Bergs a Menace in Snow.

When a flurry of snow hides the sea for minutes at a time, however, it is not so pleasant to realize that these big fellows are all about, not to speak of the hundreds of smaller cakes, each large enough to wreck a ship. Pack ice must be very near.

All day yesterday and all last night one of the most interesting problems in navigation ever attempted has been worked out.

In the small radio room a little group of men have been sitting and standing in the midst of banks of instruments and glowing tubes and copper wires, leaning over charts with headphones over their ears, attempting with their brains and the aid of modern science to pierce the shroud of uncertainty which clouded their position.

For a long time, they had not been able to see the sun and were approaching the point where it was necessary to plot an accurate course if they were to reach a certain position in the ice.

The compasses were way off, due partly to local attraction from the many metallic cans and crates piled on decks and partly to the large variations in this part of the world on account of the proximity of the magnetic Pole and the weakness of the earth's magnetic field in a horizontal plane.

It seemed almost impossible to be accurate and yet they had to be.

Like Warship's Conning Tower.

The room was like the conning tower of a battleship going into action and attempting to ourmaneuvre the enemy, the enemy in this case being the fog and ice and snow and wind.

The men in the little group were unshaven, dirty, clad in dishevelled garments and weary from lack of sleep. Pipes were clamped in their teeth as they talked and swung instruments, one or two smoking cigarettes which they forgot till their fingers were burned.

There were Malcolm P. Henson, the chief radio engineer of the expedition; Lloyd V. Berkner, also a radio engineer and operator; Carl Petersen, another radioman, tall, placid and able; Commander Byrd, wearing the fur cap given to him by

254 ON CELTIC SAVED AFTER SHE HITS ROCK

GOOD ORDER MAINTAINED

Ship Grounded Making Harbor in Gale That Prevented Picking Up Pilot—Total Loss Feared.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Dec. 10.—The White Star liner Celtic was lying high and dry tonight on the rocks off Roche's Point, near the entrance to Queenstown Harbor. It is feared the 21,178-ton vessel will be a total wreck.

She grounded just before dawn today while slipping into the harbor to disembark mails and passengers for Ireland. A gaping hole was smashed through the side of the engine room and soon water was flooding some of the compartments to a depth of twelve feet. At first the big liner seemed likely to turn turtle and sink. She swayed from side to side for an hour after grounding, while a fierce gale blew in the harbor and the sea beyond.

When the tide ebbed the Celtic lay upright and steady, but helpless on the rocks.

All her 254 passengers, among them twenty-five survivors of the Vestris disaster, transferred by tenders during the day intended to complete their voyage to Liverpool via Fishguard or Dublin.

Two powerful tugs and a British destroyer had rushed to the Celtic's rescue, fearing there might be a serious accident in the heavy groundswell then running. Before they could push her off, the tide receded and further efforts had to be postponed till evening.

Sang Old War Songs.

Roche's Point is a familiar landmark to Atlantic travelers because the lighthouse there guides the boats into Cork harbor. The fixed light shines fifty feet above high water, with the beacon visible for thirteen miles.

The Celtic was due to arrive at 2 A. M. today, but during the night a strong southwesterly wind sprang up, causing delay. Thus it was nearly 5 o'clock when she reached the harbor. The gale had increased in ferocity and a huge swell prevented the pilot from boarding.

Only a small number of passengers were on deck when the crash came. Most of those who were asleep were thrown out of their bunks, and for a few moments after the alarm was sounded all was confusion.

The excitement subsided quickly when it was realized there was no immediate danger and within a quarter of an hour the passengers joined in singing such old war songs as "Tipperary" and "Pack Up Your Troubles."

Later, when the first passengers began arriving ashore, they were loud in praise of the ship's crew for their cool conduct under trying circumstances.

Vestris's Survivors Asleep.

All the Vestris's survivors were asleep when the Celtic grounded. When they arrived in Queenstown they still showed some effects of their trying experiences but seemed in the best of spirits. All said it was a picnic compared with what had happened aboard the Vestris. One of the Vestris's wireless officers, James MacDonald, with true nautical superstition suggested the presence of some Jonah in the ship's company.

"I have a good idea who he is," he smilingly added, "but I don't like to mention his name."

MacDonald described the conduct of the Celtic's crew as splendid and said that within ten minutes of the crash the stewards were serving hot coffee to the passengers, who by that time had assembled on deck.

All twenty-eight lifeboats were

LEAGUE STATESMEN STRIVE TO MEET US ON NAVY AND COURT

COURT REVISION PUT OFF

An Acrimonious Exchange of Grievances by French and Italian Delegates Reported.

LATIN AMERICANS IN PLEA

Cuba, Chile and Venezuela Ask More Active Part in League for South America.

By CARLYLE MacDONALD.

LUGANO, Dec. 10.—There were two widely separate international developments entirely outside the first meeting of the League of Nations Council at Lugano today which are of more than usual significance to the United States.

The first was an entirely private but important consideration by interested statesmen of a naval disarmament session coupled with a clear indication from Aristide Briand, the French Foreign Minister, that France was very favorable to immediate postponement of the March meeting of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission, to permit President-elect Hoover to formulate his point of view on the knotty problem.

The second was what obviously was intended to be a secret visit to the French Foreign Minister of the delegates of three Latin-American countries represented on the Council—Cuba, Chile and Venezuela. A certain amount of mystery surrounds their joint démarche and no light on it has been shed by them.

Seek Bigger Rôle in League.

French circles, however, are less reticent. The group, which consisted of Señores Aguerra of Cuba, Villejas of Chile and Sumeta of Venezuela, made it evident from the start that their visit was not one of simple courtesy alone. They began, it is said, by saying that the South American countries, with few exceptions, desired to take a much more active part in the League of Nations than has heretofore been assigned to them, and they expressed the belief that Argentina would soon return to the League fold.

In answer to the campaign in some sections of the European press against giving Latin America three seats on the all-powerful Council, the Latin-American delegation called upon M. Briand, as chairman of the Council, to bear in mind that representation should not be considered so much in the light of South America's present position as in that of the rôle it will play in the future.

This would be apparent, they added, as soon as Argentina resumed her old place. The delegates expressed the hope that the League would study some scheme whereby the Latin-American countries could maintain closer touch with each other. They added the significant remarks that in some instances it would be necessary for South America to be assured of the League's support and that occasions doubtless would arise when the League would be glad to be able to count upon the backing of its Latin-American advocates.

Briand Pleased, but Puzzled.

The French Foreign Minister was pleased though somewhat puzzled by this move on the part of the Latin-American delegates.

With President-elect Hoover in the midst of his South American visit speculation naturally has arisen ever just how important today's visit may prove to be. The more or less definite prediction from a source

KING'S CONDITION WORSE; INFECTION GENERAL AGAIN; DOCTORS ADMIT ANXIETY

London Still Deeply Anxious Over the King This Morning

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Tuesday, Dec. 11, 5 A. M.—During the early hours of this morning nothing was learned at Buckingham Palace of any change in King George's condition since the evening bulletin.

There was obviously deep disquietude, however, especially in view of the intimation from the King's physicians that the strain on his heart had been increased by a return of the general infection.

The prevailing uneasiness was fully reflected in the early editions of the morning papers, which, without expressing an alarmist view, did not conceal their anxiety.

A late special edition of The Daily Express said that the King early this morning was sleeping quietly and that his condition was unchanged.

PRINCE RACING HOME BY TRAIN FROM ITALY

Freight Wreck Fails to Delay Heir, but Hot Wheel Does—Due in London Tomorrow.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRINDISI, Dec. 10.—Hastening homeward to his father's bedside in a race against time, the Prince of Wales reached European soil today, landing at Brindisi soon after noon under gray, rainy skies reminiscent of England. Ten minutes later a special train, put at his disposal by the Italian Government, was speeding northward, beginning what is planned to be a record-breaking transcontinental dash calculated to get the Prince to London in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

As the Prince stepped ashore at Brindisi he presented a very different appearance from his usual immaculate, smartly dressed self. In the haste of his departure from his African hunting trip he was obliged to leave behind his wardrobe, which had been sent on to await his arrival in Rhodesia. He had with him only what was strictly necessary for hunting and camping.

Prince Tired and Worried.

The Prince arrived in Brindisi wearing a weather-beaten khaki sun helmet upon which the rain beat, a pair of brown shoes much soiled by use in the jungle, crumpled gray flannel trousers and a check overcoat that obviously had seen better days. His attire was eloquent of the hurry with which he had left Africa. A complete change of apparel, specially sent down from London, was waiting for him on the train.

Tanned a deep bronze by the African sun, the Prince appeared obviously tired after his dash from the tropics, made at full speed on the cruiser Enterprise. Care and anxiety hung heavily upon him.

When he landed on the Brindisi dock he paused but a few seconds to answer the salute of the military guard of honor and then immediately disappeared into the railroad sta-

STRAIN ON HEART STRESSED

But Fever Is Lower and Improvement in Lung Is Noted.

3-HOUR CONSULTATION HELD

Fleet Street Believes Next Two or Three Days Are Likely to Be Critical.

PUBLIC THRONGS TO PALACE

Queen's Plan to Unveil Memorial Tomorrow Cited as an Optimistic Sign.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—King George's general condition was worse tonight, and his physicians have allowed it to be known that they are anxious. Tonight's bulletin announced a return of the general infection with its inevitable effect on the heart.

Optimism had been engendered over the week-end by the doctor's statement that the infection had been localized. The hopes thus aroused have been dashed by the news that the trouble has again become diffused.

The progress of the disease, which one of the Sunday newspapers said was basically septic pneumonia, has been arrested by the doctors, who have more than held their own in a battle of fluctuating fortune, but the King's heart may prove the weakest link in the chain, and their fear is that it may give way before the issue has been won.

Four Sign Bulletin.

Tonight's bulletin, signed by Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard and Sir Humphrey Rolleston, read:

"His Majesty the King had a quiet day. The signs in the lung have improved. The fever persists, though it is not as high as last evening and is due to some return of the general infection, which necessarily affects the condition of the heart."

The morning bulletin said:

"Although the King passed a disturbed night, there has been some fall in the temperature this morning, and there also was a slight improvement in the general condition. Anxiety, however, must continue."

The anxiety mentioned in the morning bulletin was to be gathered also from the three-hour consultation of Lord Dawson and Sir Stanley which followed it. Both doctors returned after the lunch interval and held another consultation.

That there is no immediate anxiety is perhaps indicated by a statement issued today that the Queen has every hope of being able to fulfill an engagement to unveil Wednesday a memorial to men of the mercantile marine who died during the war. The Duke of York also has promised to keep a public appointment tomorrow. Among callers at the palace today was former King Manoel of Portugal.

Next Two Days Believed Critical.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Palace officials tonight were said in a semi-official statement to be disquieted by the condition of King George. They took note of the fact reported in the night bulletin that the general infection has returned in some measure.

All four doctors who attended the evening consultation arrived at Buckingham Palace soon after 7 o'clock and it was after 9 before any of them left. Sir Stanley is again spending the night at the palace, as has become his custom, in order to be readily available should his patient need him.

Fleet Street, the great metropolitan newspaper centre, and indeed the whole of the public have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the next two or three days will be critical ones for his Majesty. Three weeks of grievous illness have so undermined the King's resisting power and so severely taxed his heart that his life undoubtedly is in danger. This does not mean that an eventuality must necessarily be expected, but it does mean that it is distinctly possible.

Public Anxiety Renewed.

The official bulletins from Buckingham Palace have not given the public much information upon which to base an accurate opinion regarding the King's condition. However, use of the word "anxiety" in today's bulletin was interpreted as a distinct warning that a grave condition existed. The royal physicians, it is felt, would never employ such phraseology except in an emergency.

Whether the King's physicians have real hopes of his recovery is not known. In accordance with cus-

Baltimore Bandits Foiled in Raid on Truck Of Liquor for Washington Envoys' Christmas

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 10.—Four armed bandits attempted today to hold up a truckload of imported wines and liquor, valued at $15,000, consigned to diplomatic representatives of foreign countries for their Christmas festivities in Washington.

The driver of the truck was knocked unconscious by the bandits as he sat at the wheel. Then, as the bandits started to raid the truck, a street car approached and they fled without any loot.

At the truck was near the Canton pier, where the liquor had been taken from a ship, the bandits' car moved up alongside.

"A little mistake has been made," one of the bandits said to the truck driver. "Just move over to the curb. We will have to check up on the shipment of liquor. We are government agents and it's all right."

"It's not all right until you show me your credentials," the driver replied. Four pistols then were leveled at him. Braving the guns, he refused to allow the men to check up on the shipment and one of the bandits then struck him on the head with the butt of a pistol.

When he recovered, the driver said, he assumed that revenue inspectors were following and guarding the shipment, and that the bandits seemed to have the same idea when they fled.

The wines on the truck were destined for the embassies of Argentina, Spain and Italy and the legations of Switzerland, Honduras and Haiti.

Girl Falls to Death as Man Tries to Rob Her; Leaps From Elevator and Drops Four Stories

Shirley Bergman, a twenty-year-old stenographer, of 1,625 Forty-third Street, Brooklyn, was killed yesterday afternoon when she fell down a shaftway while jumping from an elevator in which a man was trying to rob her. The alleged robber was captured and will be charged with homicide.

About 3:30 P. M. Miss Bergman, who for the past year and a half had been employed by the Gehringer Lighting Fixture Company at 71 Spring Street, was returning from depositing the day's receipts in the bank. She entered the elevator operated by Arthur Becker of 262 St. Nicholas Avenue, to be taken to the seventh floor, where the company has its office. A short, dark, thickset man followed her into the car.

Between the second and third floors the man suddenly drew a pistol and ordered the girl and the operator to hold up their hands. Both did so. As the car slowly drew opposite the fourth floor, however, Miss Bergman screamed and jumped for the narrow ledge within the small wooden fence protecting the shaft. Apparently she missed her footing, for as the elevator went by she plunged down.

The operator struggled with the assailant as the car ran up to the automatic stop at the top of the shaft, then down again. The man finally managed to aim his pistol at Becker's head and ordered him to stop at the second floor. There, he sprang out and ran down the stairs.

Becker, just a moment behind, attracted the attention of Patrolman Reuben Walsh, directing traffic at Spring and Lafayette Streets. After a chase of several hundred yards the officer caught the fugitive. At the Elisabeth Street Station he said he was Martin Baylos, 28 years old, of 887 Bryant Avenue, the Bronx.

The police say that after prolonged questioning by Assistant District Attorney Joseph Pascocello and Detective Louis Fiore, Baylos admitted he had planned to rob Miss Bergman, thinking she had the firm's payroll. He also admitted another hold-up, the police said.

tom they are restricting their views to themselves. Those immediately connected with the royal family and the government, even the officials of Buckingham Palace, today were reluctant to discuss any phase of the situation.

Public anxiety was again shown tonight by the assemblage of great crowds outside the palace to await the bulletin despite extremely cold weather. Apprehension as to whether the patient could continue much longer to wage a successful fight against the disease was evident in the mood of the waiting people. They are disposed to read more into these terse daily bulletins than perhaps is justified.

The wording of the night bulletin produced a slightly more hopeful attitude in the throng. The comings and goings of the physicians and movements of members of the royal family were watched by the crowds with pathetic interest, and the fact that Queen Mary omitted her daily drive this afternoon caused much comment. Princess Victoria, the King's sister, visited the palace in the afternoon.

Public Follows Prince's Dash.

The feeling uppermost in the minds of all classes of society tonight was expressed by the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, at a public dinner when he expatiated upon the devotion of the country to the throne and sovereign and gave instances of the close attention of King George to national affairs and his intense loyalty to the constitution.

"All of us," he concluded, "join more than solemnly in the prayer going up all over the country that God will indeed save our King."

Under the renewed feeling of anxious solicitude today, the public is turning with ever growing interest to news of the hurried journey which the Prince of Wales is making to the bedside of his father. His near approach has given rise to universal pleasure and satisfaction.

PORTRAIT OF KING SHOWN.

One of the most recent paintings made of King George was placed on exhibition yesterday at the Anderson Galleries. It is a large canvas by the English portrait painter Frank O. Salisbury, depicting the installation of the Knights of the Order of the Bath in Henry VII's Chapel, Westminster Abbey, last May.

The painting is called "The King's Offering," Mr. Salisbury said, because it depicts the scene before the altar of the chapel just after the Dean of Westminster had raised aloft the silver basin containing an offering for the poor. King George, the central figure in the canvas, stands immediately behind the dean. The sovereign wears the blue uniform of a British Admiral, cloaked in the long crimson mantle of the Order of the Bath.

Mr. Salisbury said yesterday that he had made sketches for the painting at the rehearsal for the ceremony as well as at the actual installation. Subsequently King George visited the artist's studio for a sitting, Mr. Salisbury said, because the canvas was too large to be taken to Buckingham Palace. At that time, Mr. Salisbury said, King George appeared in excellent health.

The exhibition, including eighty-nine canvases, occupies three large rooms at the Anderson Galleries. Among the portraits are those of Andrew W. Mellon, Senator Carbell Pepper, the late Judge Elbert H. Gary, Edward Loomis, L. F. Loree, H. C. Folger, Henry H. Timken, Cyrus H. McCormick and George F. Baker.

Prince George Remains at Bermuda.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Dec. 10 (AP).—Prince George, youngest son of King George, is still serving as Lieutenant Windsor on board the Durban at this station, although it has been expected during the more serious stages of the illness of his father that he might be ordered home. Since he is governed by the same regulations that affect all other officers of the Royal Navy, he is not at liberty to return to England unless ordered.

LEFT WING UNION PLANS FUR STRIKE

Officials Thus Reply to Notice of Termination of Agreement by Trimming Association.

BREAK EXPECTED ON JAN. 31

Employers' Group Tells of Plan to Deal After That Date With A. F. of L. Organization.

Officials of the left wing of the furriers' union threatened a strike next February in answer to the announced intention of the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., to deal with the American Federation of Labor at the expiration on Jan. 31 of their agreement with the joint board of the furriers' union.

A communication from the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association to the joint board, in which the manufacturers announced their intention of joining with the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., in dealing with the right wing Joint Council of Furriers, brought the threat of strike.

Ben Gold, one of the active leaders of the left wing during the 1927 strike and now manager of the joint board, sent out a call yesterday for a mass meeting tomorrow night in Cooper Union, where members of the organization will be told of plans for a general strike.

"An immediate strike would serve no useful purpose," he said last night, "and, therefore, we will wait until the present agreement expires on Jan. 31. At the meeting Wednesday night preparations for a strike will be made and the workers instructed to prepare themselves for the general walkout."

At the office of Emil K. Ellis, attorney for the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., it was said preparations have been made for meeting a strike and that the situation had been brought to the attention of the city authorities.

The agreement reached by the trimming and fur manufacturers' associations was described by Mr. Ellis as a victory for the American Federation of Labor and an opportunity for that organization to get complete representation in the fur industry here.

Following troubles in 1927 between the Communistic left wing and the Workers' Union, which resulted in the expulsion of the left wing members, the fur trimming manufacturers signed an eighteen months' agreement with the left wing. Since that time there have been two unions.

HEAR THE TOWER LOCKED UP

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Millions of "listeners-in" tonight heard over the radio a ceremony which has been performed nightly for at least 700 years. From the grim Tower of London was broadcast "the ceremony of the keys," connected with the formal locking up of the great fortress for the night.

This ceremony had been heard from their dungeons by persons of royal birth, centuries ago, who were doomed to die by the headsman's axe on the morrow. It was heard by captured spies in the late war while preparing themselves for facing a file of Grenadiers.

The locking up was accomplished by a yeoman warder, accompanied by a guard of soldiers. They then appeared before the guardhouse.

"Who goes there?" cried the sentry.

"The Keys," answered the yeoman warder.

"Whose keys demand entry?"

"King George's keys," replied the warder. "God save King George!"

"Amen," replied the sentry and the rest of the guard.

SIMPLICITY TO MARK HOOVER INAUGURAL

Ceremonies Inducting Coolidge in 1924 Will Be Used as a Model.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Coolidge inaugural of 1925 will be adopted as a model for the inaugural of President-elect Hoover. Decision to this effect was announced today after Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, received a wireless message from Mr. Hoover requesting that the ceremonies be simple and that the pomp that marked many of the inaugurals of years ago be eliminated.

The city had been hoping for a gayer ceremony, but the ruling of Mr. Hoover has prevailed. Definite instructions have been given to Colonel U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the inaugural committee, who has been cautioned to adhere as closely as possible to the Coolidge program.

The limited inaugural procession will not require more than forty-five minutes in passing. There will be few from outside the borders of the District in the parade. The Governors of the States will be invited to participate, but their staffs and State delegations will be limited. Four years ago twenty-eight Governors and their staffs were in the Coolidge inaugural parade.

The State of California has expressed a desire to send a large delegation in celebration of the election of a resident of that State to the Presidency for the first time, and Iowa, Mr. Hoover's birthplace, desires to be represented.

Dr. Work has also been informed that the four States in the solid South carried by Mr. Hoover, North Carolina, Florida, Texas and Virginia, are anxious to take a prominent part in the ceremonies. The committee will take all of these requests under advisement.

The question of financing an inaugural with the inaugural ball feature eliminated has always proved a troublesome one, but it is hoped that the pavilion concessions will aid in raising the money needed.

It is probable that an unofficial charity ball, like that held four years ago, will be held on the evening of inauguration day.

W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, has been appointed executive secretary of the inaugural. Others who today accepted Colonel Grant's invitation to serve are Charles C. Glover Jr., Major Gen. Anton Stephen, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol; Theodore P. Noyes, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, E. F. Colladay and W. T. Galliher.

HOOVER GIVES NO SIGN OF CHOOSING CABINET

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—According to friends of President-elect Hoover, no word has come from him as to any selections for his Cabinet. Rumors fly thick and fast as to his choice of this man or that for a Cabinet position, but these apparently have no foundation in fact.

With reference to forming his Cabinet, However, the President-elect is not failing in his customary preparedness for important actions. It is understood that several of his friends are engaged at his request in gathering material concerning men of ability who might be desirable members of his official family.

It is said that he did not give them a list of names with instructions to compile information concerning those who might be named, but left it to their determination to draft a list on their own initiative with detailed data of the experience, reputation, ability and personalities of the men they recommended.

Whether Mr. Hoover will make any selections in this manner is something that remains part of the mystery as to his intentions in this and other important matters.

LITVINOFF VOICES RECOGNITION HOPES

GRATIFIED BY RISING TRADE

Acting Foreign Minister Asserts In Speech That It Would Triple Under Normal Relations.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Dec. 10.—A cordial and not unoptimistic reference to the United States was made tonight at the Soviet Congress by the Acting Foreign Commissar, Maxim Litvinoff, in his report on foreign affairs. He said:

"With gratification we note the surprising growth of business with the United States. We have not forgotten the generous help America gave in the dark days of famine through the A. R. A. [American Relief Administration], whose chief is now President-elect Hoover."

M. Litvinoff declared that the Soviet Union was increasingly aware of the value of American technique and methods and that there was a similar tendency in the United States to appreciate the importance of the Russian market. Friendly relations have been hampered, he said, by misunderstandings and the campaigns of enemies of the Soviet Government, but an increasing flow of American visitors from business, financial and intellectual circles was tending to remove prejudice. At this point a voice cried:

The speaker answered, laughingly: "You should ask that of the Americans themselves."

M. Litvinoff emphasized the effect of the absence of diplomatic relations on business, which he estimated would be three or four times greater under normal conditions. He said:

"It is not recognition itself that is important—after eleven years the Soviet Union, with its sixth of the earth's surface and 150,000,000 inhabitants, has no need to ask any one to recognize our existence. [Prolonged applause.]

"By normal conditions I mean what is necessary for political and economic purposes."

The Soviet Government has never tried to conceal its regret over the obstacles to direct contact with the United States, the speaker went on, expressing confidence that the existing points of difference between the two countries were not incapable of settlement to mutual satisfaction. He mentioned Italy and Japan to show that a divergence in governmental or economic system was not necessarily a barrier to friendly relations and dismissed the emphasis sometimes laid abroad upon "Bolshevist propaganda" as an artificial impediment used either for internal political reasons or as an excuse to show Moscow the cold shoulder.

ROYAL ACADEMY ELECTS.

Sir William Llewellyn Chosen to Head Group of British Artists.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Royal Academy apparently has been made safe for classic art for another term by today's election of Sir William Llewellyn to the post of president, vacated through the death of Sir Frank Dicksee. The names of Sir William Orpen, Sir Edwin Lutyens, Sir Frank Short, Sir Reginald Blomfield and Sir D. Y. Cameron were also considered.

Sir William might be described as distinctly conservative. He is also held in high favor by the royal family.

HOOVER WELCOMED WITH POMP IN CHILE

By L. C. SPEERS.

tomorrow at a luncheon which the Chilean Government will give in his honor he will make an important speech to which President Ibañez will reply. Mr. Hoover's address is expected to be his most extended utterance since leaving home shores. It is unlikely that it will contain any political references, but it will constitute a warm plea for a better understanding and closer cooperation in all movements for the betterment of the North American and South American nations.

In the afternoon Mr. Hoover will receive an honorary degree from the Chilean Institute of Engineers. Afterward he will make a trip into magnificent country around Santiago, where there are among the best views in all South America of the snow-capped peaks of the Andes. At 7 o'clock tomorrow evening he will leave by train for Los Andes, there to spend the night before beginning the journey across the mountains to Argentina.

Last night as the Maryland was plunging through half a gale it looked as if the worst sort of weather would be Mr. Hoover's lot, but sunup, with Valparaiso Harbor in sight, found the skies clearing and a fog lifting. This afternoon the weather was that of a typical Spring day in the Southern Temperate Zone. Eastward in the distance were the giant peaks of the Andes, while to the west were the lesser yet inspiring summits of the coast range.

Chile's Cordiality Evident.

Chile in the past has been a fertile field for propaganda against the United States. But now on all sides there is evidence that the influences which brought this about are rapidly losing effectiveness. Not one Chilean with whom the correspondent talked but declared that the friendship of the two nations was never so secure as now.

The confidence apparent here in the policy of amity which Mr. Hoover will hold as President is expressed in editorials in the leading newspapers. La Nacion, the organ of the Ibanez Government, says:

"Mr. Hoover, with the typical virtues of the Quaker, is worthy of the nation which has just bestowed on him the title of first citizen of the land. He is the most representative American. Ever since the days of Washington and Franklin, the United States has been modeling men of his calibre. Now he comes stretching out a friendly hand.

"Chile's handshake will be restrained, but cordial. He will find Chile sincerely willing, open-minded and thoroughly conscious of the duty imposed on each and every American nation by our common destiny. Welcoming him, we take pleasure in stating our fondest hopes that during his administration the bonds linking us will be strengthened even more."

Says Welcome Is Sincere.

El Mercurio, the oldest newspaper in South America, asserts:

"Although Chile's welcome may lack the effusive expressions of other countries, it is no less sincere. We will not seek to influence Mr. Hoover's opinion of Chile by laudatory expressions; but prefer that he meet Chileans at close quarters and reach his own understanding of our country.

"More than $600,000,000 from the United States is invested in Chile at this moment, and hundreds of Americans are cooperating in the development of this country. The people of Chile only want to take Mr. Hoover's hand and say, 'Make yourself at home,' which itself is a formula conveying more affectionate sincerity and simplicity than all the dramatic formula hitherto employed."

El Diario, leading Conservative paper of Santiago, in its editorial calls the Hoover trip to Latin America one of the great events in the history of the countries he is visiting, adding that his tour has assumed "the beautiful contours of a triumphal march." It speaks of Mr. Hoover as the champion of private effort and initiative and one of the most representative men of the American union.

Finally, La Union of Valparaiso declares that Mr. Hoover in coming to South America has awakened new confidence between the United States and her sister nations to the south. His visit, it says, in so far as it concerns Chile and the United States, will lead to real sympathy and understanding between the peoples of the two nations.

Mrs. Hoover this afternoon was entertained by the wives of members of the Cabinet and leaders in the society of the capital. She did not participate in the public function in honor of her husband. She will be with him tomorrow, however, as guest at the State luncheon at the National Palace.

Greeted by Scores of Thousands.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 10 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, President-elect of the United States, was received with highest official honors and a picturesque, popular outpouring both in this city and Valparaiso today. The Chileans, who have been called "the Yankees of South America," turned out by scores of thousands in both cities and government officials said that the reception surpassed any that had ever been given here to a foreigner.

Regret, however, was expressed by officials and also by newspapers that it was necessary for Mr. Hoover to limit his visit in the beautiful Chilean capital to two days. Aside from friendly criticism on this point, the newspapers unanimously praised Mr. Hoover's good-will mission and predicted that it would give important results.

Mr. Hoover was unusually honored when President Ibanez went to the railroad station here to meet him. This was said to be only the second instance in which a President of Chile had so acted. The previous occasion was on the visit of the President of Bolivia.

At Valparaiso, despite the fact that it was only 8 A. M. when Mr. Hoover landed from the U. S. S. Maryland, the quays were lined with many spectators. He walked through lines of soldiers, sailors, naval cadets and police to a special train, while national salutes were exchanged by guns ashore and afloat.

The salute from the Maryland was also in the nature of a farewell to Mr. Hoover as he and his party quit the vessel. They will journey overland to the east coast and use the U. S. S. Utah for the return northward.

Valparaiso Mayor Meets Him.

The station plaza in Valparaiso was packed and streets in every direction were jammed with people eager to catch a glimpse of the Hoover party. Mayor Lautaro Rocas and other officials of the port welcomed the President-elect, and a group of American residents was on hand to cheer him.

Mayor Rosas presented to Mrs. Hoover two beautiful pieces of old colonial silver. The Mayor accompanied the Hoover train to Santiago.

United States Ambassador William S. Culbertson and J. G. Lay, Councilor of the Embassy, were in Valparaiso also to greet Mr. Hoover and accompany him to the capital with the official Chilean party.

For more than three hours the special train passed through a country very similar to Mr. Hoover's home neighborhood in California. A hot sun shone from a cloudless sky, early Summer flowers were in bloom, and from villas upon the hillside and at every station along the route smiling people waved greetings to the travelers.

This was all a preface to a tremendous outpouring in the capital. It was estimated that at least 100,000 people were on the five miles of splendid avenues through which Mr. Hoover was escorted by President Ibanez, Foreign Minister Conrado Rios Gallardo and other members of the Cabinet to the United States Embassy in the heart of the city. Lines of Chilean infantry, cavalry and police guarded the route, but were scarcely needed, as the crowds made no effort to break through the lines.

Mr. Hoover and the President of Chile rode in a gold-decorated carriage of state. Their immediate escort was a troop of the Presidential Lancers carrying pennants of alternately the United States and Chilean flags. The Lancers were superbly mounted, and their prancing steeds beat time to the national anthems of both countries as played by bands in the plaza and in the procession.

Airplanes droned overhead. Sidewalks, balconies and roofs showed flower-throwing, smiling people, all of whom waved and many of whom cheered as the gay cavalcade passed. President Ibanez wore the uniform of a General, while Mr. Hoover was in formal morning dress.

The President-elect and Mrs. Hoover lunched at the embassy with Ambassador Culbertson.

The first event on the program at 2:30 in the afternoon was a call by Mr. Hoover at the Presidental Palace. Soon after his return to the embassy President Ibanez made a return call there. Then Mr. Hoover went to the Union Club, where the American colony gave a reception in his honor.

This evening Ambassador Culbertson was host at a dinner, at which President Ibanez and Mr. Hoover were joint guests of honor. A general reception at the embassy, attended by Chilean society generally and leaders of all the foreign colonies here, wound up the busy day.

Santiago's foremost newspapers, La Nacion, La Union, El Diario and El Mercurio, all made lavish displays today of pictures and news accounts of the Hoover visit. They all, however, expressed the editorial thought that, while much good would come from the visit, more would have been accomplished if it could have been made longer.

Considerable space was also devoted to Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who was stationed here before he was accredited to Rome. La Nacion, which is the government organ, welcomed Mr. Fletcher's arrival as adviser to Mr. Hoover under the captain, "Friend of Chile." The article said:

"Mr. Fletcher's return is especially welcome to Chileans because he knows who and what we are and he is our friend."

Sea Rough on Last Night.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYLAND, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Pacific gave the Hoover party a farewell last night that belied its name. A brisk wind kicked up a fairly heavy sea which caused the Maryland to pitch and roll steadily as she moved southward toward Valparaiso at a speed of fifteen knots. Mr. Hoover was little affected by the rolling and several times took long brisk walks on the deck.

The Chilean cruiser Chacabuco, which was accompanying the Maryland, labored through the heavy seas. She frequently took water over her bow, and sometimes the rollers threw her prow into the air. The Chilean vessel, however, kept a steady pace under a forced draft.

Commander Lane, chief medical officer of the Maryland, will accompany the Hoover party as far as Buenos Aires, this being a precautionary measure upon which the navy insists.

ARGENTINE TRAIN AT BORDER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—While the Argentine people have been visualizing Herbert Hoover's steady triumphant progress down the West Coast as portrayed in press dispatches, the first evidence of the reality of his immediate approach toward Argentine territory was provided this afternoon by the arrival of a special train at Mendoza, near the Chilean border, to bring him to Buenos Aires. He will arrive here Thursday afternoon.

The train, composed of three private cars, three sleeping cars, two dining cars and one lounge car, carried a high official representative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the American Ambassador, Robert W. Bliss; General Vaccarezza, who will be Mr. Hoover's Argentine military aide, other officials and twelve Secret Service agents.

Because Mr. Hoover must travel for thirty-six hours over Argentine territory before arriving at Buenos Aires, the Argentine Government has the most difficult task of any of the countries which he is visiting to provide the adequate precautions usually taken for the safety of visitors of his prominence.

Complete arrangements have been made at stations along the route which the train will take. A detached pilot engine will precede the special train at a distance of half a mile.

Tomorrow thirty picked men of the crack regiment of the San Martin Grenadier Guards will proceed to Mendoza on board a special train to act as Mr. Hoover's guard of honor.

Although official information is lacking, it is expected President Irigoyen will greet Mr. Hoover at the station, accompany him to the Government House reception and then drive with him to the American Ambassador's palatial residence, where he will stay while here.

There is no doubt that the Argentine people are quietly pleased that Mr. Hoover is coming overland instead of by sea.

PRINCE RACING HOME BY TRAIN FROM ITALY

Formalities Dispensed With.

The Prince was expected to arrive at Brindisi at 9 this morning, but heavy seas met in the southeastern Mediterranean delayed the Enterprise almost three hours. The cruiser appeared off the outer harbor of Brindisi at 11:50 A. M., but owing to the stormy weather was unable to enter the harbor, and the Prince and his party were taken off in an Italian submarine chaser.

By the Prince's special request it was wirelessed ahead that his arrival on Italian soil would be devoid of all ceremonies and formality. Every one, including journalists, was carefully kept from approaching the Prince. Even the usual formality of the guard of honor presenting arms at the Prince's passage was dropped, as the Prince is traveling in strictest privacy.

The Prince's party, which entrained with him for London, was composed of only five other persons. They were Sir Godfrey Thomas, his principal private secretary; Major Piers Leigh, his equerry; Captain Alan Lascelles, his second private secretary; Alfred Burt, a police inspector, and L. de Burgh Lewis, a courier.

Members of the Prince's party said that the journey so far has been almost completely uneventful. In the Suez Canal they were delayed by a ship that suddenly placed itself across their path, but they were clear again in a few hours. Then they were delayed by the heavy seas in the southern Mediterranean.

Two Locomotives Pull Train.

They have been in constant wireless touch with land and received the bulletins on King George's health. This morning they received a message to the effect that no bulletin would be published, which was interpreted as a most hopeful sign. The Prince, they said, had been in a frenzy of haste to get back to London and had the Enterprise driving forward at full speed all the way.

The special train placed at the Prince's disposal by the Italian Government is composed of a baggage car, one salon car, one sleeper, one Pullman and one mixed first and second class car.

The Prince and his private secretary occupy the salon car, which was built for the Italian Crown Prince and was placed by him at the British Heir's disposal. It is elaborately upholstered and contains a small sleeping compartment for the Prince's valet, a large sleeping compartment for the Prince, a bathroom with running hot and cold water, a large sitting-room, and a sleeping compartment for the Prince's secretary. The whole car is steam-heated.

Two of the most modern locomotives of the Italian State Railroads, each developing 1,500 horsepower, started the train on its dash across Europe. Similar pairs of locomotives are waiting under steam about every 125 miles along the route to insure changes of engine being made with a minimum of delay. It is calculated that the Prince should be in London about forty hours after leaving Brindisi, or between 4 and 5 Wednesday morning.

All Photographs Barred.

BRINDISI, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Prince of Wales passed here today like a vision, so short was his appearance in transferring from the deck of the British cruiser Enterprise to a special train awaiting him at the station, which left at 12:30 P. M.

The arrival was witnessed by a fairly listless crowd of longshoremen, sailors from coastwise vessels and the usual lot of "old salts," found at the quayside of every port in the world. There were a dozen journalists and four grievously disappointed camera men, who chafed under an edict by the local authorities, proposed by the British Consul General, that the Prince must not be photographed or filmed.

Captain Lascelles said the bag of his Royal Highness in Africa consisted of one elephant, one crocodile, one lion, one large cougar and numerous smaller animals. He said the Prince dropped the lion as the big beast charged from 130 yards out. The first shot halted him after he had gone about twenty yards. The lioned settled on his haunches and another shot finished him.

Train Dashes Past Wreck.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Prince, when he landed at Brindisi today, were, according to a Daily Mail dispatch, an old black and white check overcoat, a favorite of his African tour of three years ago. The red carpet, flags and naval guard of honor which the Italian authorities provided heightened the incongruity of the Prince's attire.

Newspapers here are applauding the feat of the Italian state railways in regaining the time lost by the Enterprise's late arrival at Brindisi, before the royal train had reached Ancona at about 2:30 P. M. Thirty miles south of Ancona, a little before the Prince's arrival, two freight cars had been overturned during shunting operations. These were hurled pell-mell off the track, and the Prince's train was able to sweep through at full speed.

It is estimated here that the Prince's train between Brindisi and Bologna, which latter town it passed half an hour after midnight, had averaged about fifty-five miles an hour, including all stops. At some stations, including Ancona, the engines were changed in the remarkably short time of seven minutes, the Prince having little time to stretch his legs.

At Baghi the Prince dispatched a telegram to Buckingham Palace with his own hand, and at Bologna he received a telegram from London which he read by the light of the station lamp.

Speed Shook Cruiser.

The captain of the Enterprise, interviewed on his arrival at Brindisi, said his ship had been put to a tremendous strain in the rush through the heavy seas between Port Said and the Italian port. He never slackened speed and the ship "almost shook herself to pieces." She averaged twenty-nine knots, which is within two knots of the cruiser's maximum speed. She shipped several heavy seas, but was not damaged.

The French authorities now estimate that the Prince will arrive at Boulogne at 7 o'clock Tuesday night, and arrangements have been completed to get him to the palace before midnight. The latest engines of the Eastern system will haul the train from Belfort, where it is due at 9:30 A. M., to Laon, where it is due at 4 P. M.

The Northern system will then be responsible for the final dash to the coast.

Arrangements have been made for the Prince to fly from Belfort to London should an emergency arise, and there is a prospect of that possibility, from the tone of tonight's bulletins.

Throughout today experienced gangs have inspected every yard of the French railroad track from the Swiss frontier to Boulogne. Officials will be posted at all the level crossings with double guards having red flags in readiness in their hands.

Will Cross Channel in Destroyer.

The police and gendarmerie of every department through which the Prince will pass have been enjoined to mount guard at every bridge. The arrangements, in fact, are so complete that within three minutes of the train's arrival at Boulogne the Prince will be aboard the British destroyer Torch and racing to Dover.

The Prince has telegraphed his desire to arrive in England without any official welcome or demonstration. The controller of his household will meet him at Dover with the latest reports of the King's health. They will step aboard a special train, waiting at the quayside, and within ninety minutes will be in Victoria Station, London.

Neither members of the government nor any member of his family will be waiting at the station. The Prince wishes to step from the train into his car and to drive direct to the palace.

The Prince may take up his residence at the palace to fulfill his desire to be in the closest possible touch with his father, who has been greatly cheered by the Prince's telegrams on his way home and also on account of the fact that York House, during his stay in Africa, has been in the hands of decorators and it may be some days before the Prince's apartments are ready for him.

Three Nations Clear Line for Prince.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Prince of Wales was journeying through the Alps tonight on the last lap of a 6,000-mile journey from equatorial Africa. To speed the heir to the British throne on his way to the bedside of King George, the railway authorities of Italy, Switzerland and France had cleared their lines so that nothing might delay his arrival at Boulogne.

The finest locomotives of Europe and crack train crews of three countries were being pressed into service. He was being given a right of way across Europe such as few persons have had in history.

The whole journey of 1,322 miles from Brindisi, on the Adriatic, to Boulogne, on the Channel, was planned at a speed of nearly forty miles an hour for the entire distance, including stops and the laborious transalpian part of the trip. By daylight tomorrow the train probably will be well across Switzerland and from then on it is expected to make a speed approaching that of the New York-to-Chicago fliers in the United States.

Without mishap or delay, the efforts of the Italian, Swiss and French railway technicians should land the Prince in Boulogne by midnight Tuesday. If there is then no immediate emergency calling for his quick presence at Buckingham Palace, the Prince probably will rest until 7 A. M. Wednesday before steaming for either Dover or Folkestone on a British destroyer.

But if the emergency exists, he can be brought to London by 5 A. M. Wednesday. This schedule would call for a few minutes to reach a special train on the English side of the Channel, and a run of ninety-five minutes for the seventy-seven miles to Victoria Station in this city. It would require only fifteen minutes for an automobile to rush him thence to Buckingham Palace.

TRIBUTE TO PEACE SPIRIT

Tribunals for Orderly Settlements Urged in Address—Kellogg Presides at Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—President Coolidge, addressing the International Conference of American States on Conciliation and Arbitration which convened at the Pan-American Union today, emphasized the advanced position taken by the American republics in advocating the orderly settlement of international disputes.

Declaring that the "uncertainty of the boundaries of the American states after their sucessive declarations of independence from Spain and Portugal gave rise to a large number of territorial disputes which belong in the class usually arousing the most deeply rooted national feeling," the President paid a tribute to the "unbroken practice and policy of the American republics" in providing for methods of arbitration and conciliation.

The delegates saw added significance in the President's address because of the conflict between Bolivia and Paraguay, both of which countries are represented in the conference.

Text of the President's Address.

Gentlemen of the Conference:

It is to no ordinary occasion that I am privileged as President of the United States to bid you welcome. There are represented here twenty nations of the Western Hemisphere, who have a common purpose to advance the cause of civilization by substituting the obligation of reason for the coercion of force. It is an effort to raise humanity to a higher level of existence, where nations may dwell togethar in peace and harmony according to the principles of liberty and equality under the fostering influence of justice and equity.

It is impossible to conceive of a more inspiring motive for an international conference. Here is no shadow of past conquest and no thought of future conquest. All is peace, and all thoughts are bent on establishing a better method through which a higher degree of justice may be done each to the other.

From the earliest period of their independent existence the Americas have held an advanced position in their advocacy of the orderly settlement of international disputes. It is a record calculated to stir the pride of all those who love peace and justice. The world has had no more devoted adherents to the principles of arbitration.

The countries of South America led all the world in their contribution to this cause. The treaties of 1822 of Greater Colombia with Peru and with Chile, of 1823 with Mexico and of 1825 with Central America set new standards in the conduct of international relations.

Quotes First Pan-American Treaty

It is a notable and significant fact that at the first conference of a Pan-American character, held at Panama in 1826, a treaty was signed which declared:

"The contracting parties solemnly obligate and bind themselves amicably to compromise among themselves all differences now existing or which may arise in the future, and in case no settlement can be reached between the disagreeing powers the question shall be taken for settlement to the judgment of the assembly, whose decision shall, however, not be obligatory unless said powers shall have expressly agreed that it shall be."

History clearly asserts that at this early period the republics of America made both conciliation and arbitration integral parts of their national policy. What contributes even more remarkably to their force is the fact that this was done at a time when these two principles were practically unknown in other sections of the world.

It is, moreover, a most notable circumstance that whenever the nations of America have assembled they have given preferential attention to the peaceful settlement of the questions arising among them.

Agreed on Arbitration in 1847.

I have already referred to the labors of the Congress of Panama. The Congress of Lima of 1847 established the principle that all differences that may arise between two or more of the American republics shall be settled without recourse to force, and that if the parties cannot reach an agreement by diplomatic negotiations or through the interposition of the good offices of other nations for the purpose of conciliation, such questions shall be submitted to the arbitral decision of one of the republics or to a congress of plenipotentiaries.

Declarations of a similar nature were made at the Congress of Santiago of 1856, the Congress of Lima of 1864, the Congress of Caracas of 1883 and at the series of international conferences of American States beginning with the Conference of Washington in 1889 and including the recent conference at Havana in January of the present year.

Nor has the United States been remiss in the furtherance of these great principles. As early as 1794 in a treaty with Great Britain, usually referred to as the "Jay Treaty," it became the privilege of this Government to introduce into modern diplomacy the principle of arbitration, and throughout the period of nearly a century and a half which has elapsed since that time we have supported our sister republics in upholding this great cause.

Causes for Dispute Are Many.

It is a mistake to suppose that it was much easier to adopt conciliation and arbitration on the American Continent because of the absence of any outstanding inter-American disputes. The history of this continent dicloses the presence of as large a number of difficult and delicate questions as in any other section of the world.

The uncertainty of the boundaries of the American States after their successive declarations of independence from Spain and Portugal gave rise to a large number of territorial disputes which belong to the class usually arousing the most deeply rooted national feeling.

The fact that most of these have been settled by direct negotiation, conciliation and arbitration will forever be one of the glories of the Americas as well as a constant reminder that the nations of this continent have dedicated themselves to the ideals of peace and are willing to exercise the self-control and make the sacrifices which the maintenance of these ideals imposes.

Some of the countries here represented have added further strength to the principle of arbitration by making it a fundamental tenet of their political constitutions. Among these are Venezuela, Ecuador, the Dominican Republic, Brazil and Uruguay, who have set an example by raising the arbitration of international disputes to the dignity of a mandatory constitutional principle.

Foundations of Work Already Laid.

It may be said, therefore, that the foundations for your work have been laid by the unbroken practice and policy of the American republics. In the domain of investigation, mediation, conciliation and arbitration a long series of bilateral and multilateral treaties represent the milestones which mark the way to future progress.

The importance and significance of your work is enhanced by the recent movement for the renunciation of war as a principle of national policy, which by necessary implication involves recourse to the orderly processes leading up to arbitration.

It is by the adherence of such methods that nations as well as men develop a peaceful character. In a civilized community functioning under an established government the individual has no necessity for taking the law into his own hands. Tribunals have been established for the purpose of doing justice between man and man, so that when some one feels he has suffered a wrong he has a process by which those who have wronged him can be summoned to the bar of justice and ordered to make reparation.

When this principle has been well established, when it has had the benefit of experience, it becomes so much a habit of thought that the people feel no inclination to resort to some method of direct and personal action. To do so would be to stamp themselves as dangerous persons, and they would feel active disapprobation probably inflicted with the penalties which organized society bestows upon violators of the public will.

Arbitration's Influence on Publics.

The great value of the plan for arbitration lies in the fact that it both furnishes knowledge and assurance that differences will be adjusted and also adjusts them. This has a very large influence on the public temper. Nations do not explode all at once without any previous warning and begin to attack each other. Such action comes at the culmination of a long series of irritating incidents. If these are adjusted as they arise there is no fuel to feed the explosive elements when some difference of larger importance may occur. Two nations which have adjusted all their disputes except the one which has arisen in the immediate past will be on such friendly terms that war between them is almost impossible.

Slowly but surely modern thought is bringing the different nations of the world to corresponding standards. Governments are coming to see that it is by no means in derogation of their dignity to submit their differences with each other to the decision of an impartial tribunal. The disposition to pursue hasty action is disappearing. The desire to bring differences to mutual accord and satisfaction by negotiation rather than by conflict is more and more apparent.

We shall greatly promote this spirit if we provide ourselves before the event with the necessary judicial machinery and promulgate rules of procedure to govern the composing of differences. Neither individuals nor nations could make much progress in this direction if, when a dispute arose, it was necessary to establish a tribunal and determine on the rules of action before anything could be done about the real controversy. To be compelled to stop to go through that process would probably result in having not one dispute, but many differences of opinion. An implement becomes manifoldly more valuable if it is already at hand when needed.

But in discussing ways and means of procedure we should not overlook the tremendous significance that attaches to this conference. It has come into existence because the governments and the people which it represents want peace and justice with each other.

Every sovereign nation here represented has sent its delegates because it is animated with that spirit. All have come voluntarily with a fixed desire to contribute to that end. The publication to the world of that fact alone is resplendent with a new hope of peace and good-will. Its deeper meaning lies in the undisputed ability of mankind slowly but surely to secure what they most want.

It is in this part of the world that this movement has the greatest promise of success. The people of the Western Hemisphere have been bred for generations to cherish, not animosities, but deep and abiding friendship for each other. There is not a nation among us that cannot point to a long list of friendly offices that have been bestowed upon it by its neighbors.

No Historic Hatreds or Hostile Aims.

We have no historic and inbred hatreds. As we look across the boundary lines of each other we do not behold any great array of armaments declarative of a hostile intent, but rather the peaceful occupations of people preparing to benefit each other by the mutual exchanges of a benign commerce. Happily, all the advantages of development and trade lie on the side of concord and tranquillity. Such rivalries as we entertain are not of a hostile nature, but the beneficial strife of the market place carried on to determine who can give the largest portion of our mutual production for the smallest price in return. In this contest the vanquished often receive the largest spoils.

These present prospects and these inspiring records of the past place upon us of this generation a heavy responsibility. We must not only maintain the traditional policy established by the founders of our republics, but we must also carry the procedure of conciliation and arbitration to a new and higher sphere. The world has the right to expect that the mission undertaken by the early statesmen of this continent shall be carried to completion. Our history, our national ideals and the standards of our international intercourse make this a solemn obligation.

Gentlemen of the conference, lovers of peace throughout the world will follow your deliberations with the deepest interest and with the highest hopes. It is with an abiding faith in the mission of Pan-America as the standard bearer of peace and good-will that I wish you the fullest measure of success in the discharge of the important duties that have been entrusted to your keeping.

Diplomatic and official Washington were well represented at this first plenary session in the Hall of the Americas. The President was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, who sat with Vice President and Mrs. Dawes. Mrs. Kellogg and Mrs. Hughes, wives of the two delegates of the United States, were present with several members of the Cabinet, members of Congress and officials of the State Department. Dwight Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico, was in the audience.

On the motion of Señor Ferrara, Ambassador of Cuba, seconded by the Representative of Chile, Señor Foster Recabarren, the delegates by acclamation elected Secretary Kellogg permanent chairman of the conference.

Kellogg Says Peoples Want Peace.

Secretary Kellogg in his address said:

"It must be a source of great satisfaction to all of us to know that whatever we may be able to do to carry forward the principles of conciliation and arbitration will receive the enthusiastic support of the nations that we represent.

"At no time in history has the movement of these principles acquired such strength as at the present moment. There is a real popular clamor for agreements renouncing war as an instrument of national policy and for the establishment of machinery which will assure the pacific settlement of international disputes.

"The lessons of the great war have inspired peoples to demand of their governments that disputes shall be settled by pacific means so that they will not again be subjected to the terrible devastation of armed conflict. There has been a notable quickening of the public conscience to denounce war as a crime. Governments find themselves confronted with no uncertain mandate to advance the principles which make the pacific settlement of disputes possible.

"It is no exaggeration to say that we are agreed on the basic principles involved and that the problem confronting us is to set up machinery adequate to meet the varied contingencies that may arise. In this constructive work I feel certain that we will be successful. In rendering this service, the Pan-American conference which we are today inaugurating will earn and deserve the gratitude of the nations of America."

Delegates Draw Lots for Seats.

Seats were determined by drawing lots, the preliminary seating having been alphabetical. The drawings were made by Cord Meyer, elected secretary general of the conference. Under this arrangement the delegates from Bolivia will be seated between those of Chile and Uruguay, and the Paraguayan representative will be placed between Panama and Nicaragua.

There has been much discussion before the opening of the plenary session as to the effect of the absence of Argentina on the convention which may be drawn up at the conference. Dr. Benito Flores brought the subject before the plenary session in the form of a statement, unanimously approved.

The statement said that "the Mexican delegation sees with deep regret the absence of the representatives of the Argentine Republic and expresses the hope that if, as we believe, there should result from our deliberations beneficial consequences for the peoples of this hemisphere and for humankind, the Argentine Republic, in accord with the liberal traditions of its governments and the glorious antecedents of its diplomatic history, will lend its support to whatever is concerted here in favor of the peace of the world."

The conference adjourned following a decision that each delegation would select its own representatives on the two committees on conciliation and arbitration, which will meet tomorrow for purposes of organization.

BOLIVIA SENDS NOTE GIVING HER VERSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Bolivian Government late today forwarded a note to the State Department setting forth its interpretation of the facts leading to the severance of diplomatic relations with Paraguay.

The note recited in great detail the Bolivian version of the frontier incident at Fort Vanguardia. It asserted the Paraguayan cavalry attacked Bolivian troops within Bolivian territory.

The note was circular in nature, being identical with similar communications addressed to all governments with whom Bolivia at present maintains friendly relations. The note, it is understood, made no reference to Bolivia's attitude toward an international committee appointed early today by the Pan-American conference on arbitration and conciliation, in session here to look into the dispute between the two South American nations.

At the call of Dr. Victor Maurtua, its chairman, the international committee assembled for its first meeting late today in the Pan American Union Building.

Immediately before it started work word was brought by the Paraguayan Chargé d'Affaires in Washington that the Paraguayan delegates to the arbitration and conciliation conference had received authority from their government to participate in the meeting of the international committee if necessary.

tion and the history of the boundary negotiations with Paraguay, "none of which," it said, "settled the issue but rather tended to increase Paraguay's claims unless the various treaties and negotiations meant the adjudication of the greater part of the disputed territory in favor of Paraguay and at the same time cause Bolivia's dismemberment."

Bolivia Rejects Arbitration.

MONTEVEDIO, Uruguay, Dec. 10.—Bolivia has rejected the offer communicated yesterday by the permanent arbitration committee set up by the Gondra accord, Fortuno Vega, president of the commission, announced tonight.

Paraguay at the same time announced that Eusebio Ayala, who headed its commission to the ill-fated conference in Buenos Aires, and Manuel Montes de Oco, Argentine statesman, are to represent her on the commission.

Bolivia in its reply to the commission not only refused to name delegates but also declined intervention by the commission. The Mexican Minister for the time refused to make public the Bolivian note but admitted it was couched in decisive and severe terms.

Bolivia, it appears, considers herself the aggrieved party and refuses to do anything toward a solution until and after suitable reparation on the part of Paraguay. It again affirms that the Gondra pact should not apply in the present emergency.

Mexican Chairman Hopeful.

The commission adjourned until tomorrow to draft a reply to Bolivia. The Mexican chairman was still optimistic, personally expressing the belief that wisdom will prevail in the end.

That Bolivia already adhered to the Gondra pact is the assertion of Luis Orrego Luco, who also is a member of the permanent commission. He bases his statement upon a document his government received in September telling him:

"Please inform the Uruguayan Government that the Bolivian Chargé d'Affaires in Chile deposited the instrument of adhesion of his country to the Gondra pact."

Juan Pedro Paz-Soldan, Peruvian member of the commission, was of the opinion that the conflict would be settled to the satisfaction of all.

Dr. Haedo, Paraguayan Chargé d'Affaires, excused himself from commenting on the situation, but added that his country was always known for the great respect shown to international treaties.

Believes Bolivia Will Accept.

Waldo Belmonte-Pool, Chargé d'Affaires of Bolivia, after saying that the Gondra pact had not yet been ratified by the Bolivian Parliament, said the Paraguayan "aggression" created a serious situation which affected the sovereignty, honor and dignity of Bolivia, which will exact prior reparation so as to restore the moral balance between the two countries. He added the attitude of the Bolivian nation was serene and expectant, all being desirous of a peaceful solution but also decided to enforce respect for the prestige of the nation.

Dr. Baltasar Brum, former President of Uruguay, declared that even if Bolivia was not constitutionally bound to adhere to the Gondra pact because her Parliament had not yet ratified it, she was morally bound to respect it.

Bolivia Reported Mobilizing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—Word has been received here that Bolivia has refused to submit her differences with Paraguay to arbitration by the Gondra tribunal and is mobilizing troops along the frontier.

There is considerable apprehension here as to her intentions.

The Argentinian press is publishing optimistic exhortations to find an amicable adjustment.

Dispatches from Lugano report that in informal discussion of the situation by League Council delegates the consensus is that Argentina should act as mediator, but there are no indications that she would accept such an assignment, especially as Argentina is outside the League. Undoubtedly, many think, Argentina is one of the most favorably situated among South American countries to intervene to avert a declaration of hostilities, but these observers believe her failure to attend the Washington conference was an unfortunate loss of opportunity to use her influence on Bolivia.

Retired Soldiers Go to Asuncion.

While thousands of words are pouring over the wires from La Paz describing public demonstrations and the high pitch of patriotism and seeking to justify Bolivia's action, there is little news from Asuncion. Apparently the Paraguayan Government is maintaining its calm and the people are awaiting developments, hopeful of an amicable adjustment. Several retired soldiers and officers have reported at Asuncion from all parts of Paraguay to offer their services.

The Argentine man on the street was amazed this evening to read a statement of the Bolivian Consul General arraigning Paraguayan activities and indicating that the entire vast territory lying between the Pilcomayo and Paraguayan rivers belongs to Bolivia. According to these claims Paraguay's capital would be on the Bolivian border.

There is confidence that the situation will be eased, but no one seems to know how.

In the meantime events are moving fast in Bolivia, where the President has invited political exiles to return and present a united front in the international crisis.

Intervention Forecast in Brazil.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Dec. 10.—It was reported in Sao Paulo today that Rio de Janeiro diplomatic circles declare that if there are new conflicts between the Bolivian and Paraguayan forces on the frontier intervention of other South American countries is likely to prevent the affair from assuming greater importance. Combined to head the conciliation movement would be Argentina, Chile, Brazil and possibly Uraguay, it is said. It is also believed that the United States probably would intervene.

Reports Being Stoned.

LA QUIACA, Argentine Frontier, Dec. 10 (AP).—Elias Ayala, Paraguayan Minister who left La Paz after his passports were handed to him by the Bolivian Government, arrived here today en route to Buenos Aires and Asuncion.

He said he was molested and stoned on his trip across Bolivian territory.

Ministers at Lima Confer.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Bolivian and Paraguayan Ministers had long conferences today with the Foreign Minister. Neither the Foreign Office nor the Ministers would make any statement on what had been discussed.

Says United States Holds Key.

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—Caballero de Bedoya, Paraguayan Chargé d'Affaires here, believes that the United States holds the key to the solution of the dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia.

"The United States, as did all parties to the Gondra Convention, undertook at least morally," he said. "to guarantee security in America and to collaborate with countries sincerely animated by a will for peace."

Recapture of Fort Denied.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 10.—Official sources denied today that the Bolivians have recaptured Fort Vanguardia, which was taken by Paraguayan forces in fighting with the Bolivia garrison Thursday night.

The Paraguayan Government was abstaining from taking military measures, but was awaiting developments with serenity, it was added.

Chile Pledges Neutrality.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—Chile has promised to remain neutral in case of a war, says a La Paz dispatch to the Nacion quoting a communication from the Bolivian Minister in Santiago to the Bolivian Foreign Office. The Bolivian Senate and Chamber voted confidence in the government today unanimously.

The executive committee of the Argentine Socialist Party has communicated with similar bodies in Paraguay and Bolivia pleading with them to use their influence to bring about a peaceful solution of the dispute.

Hoover in Touch but Silent.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 10.—President-elect Hoover is keeping in touch with the Bolivian-Paraguayan impasse, but refuses to be drawn into the matter.

He declined to comment, holding that his is a good-will tour without any political character whatever. This is taken to indicate that Mr. Hoover will not make any effort to intervene.

BOLIVIAN BONDS DECLINE.

Diplomatic Break Causes Fall in New York Prices.

Bolivian bonds dropped sharply on the Stock Exchange yesterday in response to news of broken relations between that republic and Paraguay. South American bonds and foreign bonds generally were weak. There were twenty-five new low records for the year recorded in the foreign list on sales totaling $3,511,000.

Bolivian 8s of 1947 lost eight points to a closing low of 97½ and the 7s of 1958 lost 3 points to a close of 93¾ after sinking to as low as 90. Costa Rica 7s of 1951 lost 2¾ points to a closing low of 93 and International Railway of Central America 5s of 1972 lost 3 points to a closing low of 81½. A weak Italian issue was Fiat 7s of 1946, with warrants down 5 points at 145.

AIR EXPERTS HONOR WRIGHTS IN DAYTON

DIPLOMATS IN ATTENDANCE

KITTY HAWK FEAT RECALLED

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Diplomatic representatives from nearly fifty foreign countries, along with sixty of the leading aircraft manufacturers and high governmental dignitaries, joined with Dayton today in paying tribute to Wilbur and Orville Wright for their achievement on Dec. 17, 1903, when they flew successfully in a heavier-than-air machine.

The Dayton celebration in recognition of that achievement is directly linked up with the observance of the airplane's twenty-fifth anniversary, to be staged on a national scale, next Monday at Kill Devil Hill, near Kitty Hawk, N. C., when the Congressional monument will be unveiled. It stands on the spot from which Orville Wright took off on that first flight which lasted for 59 seconds.

A large delegation of Dayton citizens will participate in that observance, as will many of the foreign diplomats here today, together with prominent officials of the government and Representatives and Senators.

The climax of the celebration was a public meeting held tonight in the National Cash Register schoolhouse, founded many years ago by the late John H. Patterson, who was a pioneer in the establishment of aviation.

Citizens Present Scroll to Wright.

The public gathering was featured by the presentation to Orville Wright of a gold lettered scroll on the part of Dayton citizens. It was entitled "tribute of affection to Orville and Wilbur Wright, who designed and piloted the first heavier-than-air machine, Dec. 17, 1903."

Following the meeting the visiting delegations boarded a special train and departed for Washington to attend the International Air Conference.

The first delegates to Dayton arrived Sunday in a fleet of ten large aerial transports. Other delegations came by train. All inspected the developments now under way in the laboratories at Wright Field, which they visited during the day as guests of Brig. Gen. William E. Gilmore, in charge of the Material Division of the Air Corps.

The visitors and a large crowd of several thousand Dayton citizens visited the cemetery where Wilbur Wright is buried and placed a wreath on his tomb. They called later at the home of Orville Wright, where the inventor greeted the visitors, many of whom he had known in years gone by.

The fame of the Wright brothers has encircled the globe, according to statements made by diplomats and aerial experts from many foreign shores.

One of those who expressed appreciation of the work of Orville Wright was the Right Hon. Lord Thompson, executive of the Aero Club of England and Minister of Air for that country in 1924.

Balbo Acclaims Inventors.

General Italo Balbo, head of the Italian air delegation, also expressed his pleasure, on arriving in Dayton, at being in the home of the Wright brothers.

"It is known to all peoples that Dayton is the home of the airplane," said General Balbo, "and it is a delight to me to be in the home of Mr. Orville Wright at the time when his fellow-citizens in Dayton and those of his entire country are honoring him. To me it seems peculiarly fitting that Dayton should halt on such an occasion, if for nothing else than to remind a younger generation of what the gave to the world."

Another to pay tribute to the inventors of the airplane was Pierre Etienne Flandin, Vice President of the Chamber of Deputies of France.

M. Flandin recalled the early flights of the Wright brothers in Europe, particularly those on French soil. The French official is acquainted with Mr. Wright and spoke of the affection in which he is held by all of the citizens of France and of the recognition accorded him and his late brother, as being the inventors of the first to fly a heavier-than-air machine.

"Even in far-off Siam the name of the Wright brothers is known to every one," said Lieut. Col. P. Amara, who is representing his country at the Dayton ceremony and in the international air conference to be held at Washington.

"We of Siam may not have progressed as rapidly in the science of aviation," he said, "because of the deterring effect of the prolonged rainy season which visits our country annually.

"However, we are becoming more and more 'air-minded,' as you call it in the United States.

"It certainly is an interesting experience to be in Dayton and to meet Mr. Wright after all that I have heard and read about him."

Representatives of the different countries assembled for the evening program, during which Orville Wright was personally presented.

Lord Thomson was the chief speaker, saying that Orville Wright was international property. He presented letters to Mr. Wright from the Aero Club of Great Britain and also from the Royal Aero Club of England. Addresses were also made by Ahmed Mouhtar Bey, Turkish Ambassador to the United States, M. F. Landin and William P. MacCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

CALLS PLANE AID TO PEACE.

Lord Thomson Also Lauds League of Nations as Hope of Mankind.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Lord Thomson, head of the Aero Club of Great Britain and Minister for Air in 1924, here to attend the Wright celebration, believes the battle plane is giving way to peace planes. Discussing aviation briefly he said:

"The more the people and the nations of the world grow in air-mindedness, the less likely they are to employ the greatest of human achievements, the airplane, in the destruction of each other.

"People will be too sensible to turn the airplane against each other for the destruction of life and property in those years when the airplane is used as a medium of intercourse between the nations," he said. "Instead of the airplane being used as an implement of war, it should be employed to bring the countries closer together.

"The progress which has been made thus far in the development of aeronautics is the whole mark of civilization and is indicative of a progressive people. It inspires courage and vision."

Lord Thomson declared that he believes the League of Nations to be the hope of mankind, while looking upon the institution as being yet in its infancy.

"The League of Nations," he declared, "provides the machinery for nations to settle their disputes just as civilized human beings settle their individual differences. It should appeal to the enlightened self-interest and common sense of every thinking man and woman.

"England is displaying its interest in the League of Nations by its regular participation in the deliberations of the institution and observing its principles, while a proof of my country's further interest in it is that the secretary of the League is a Britisher."

PARLEY ACTS TO HALT WAR IN BOLIVIA

"Unanimously resolves:

"(1) To express to the governments of the sister republics of Bolivia and Paraguay the keen desire and the hope which it entertains that their present differences shall be arranged pacifically and in a spirit of justice, concord and of fraternity.

"(2) To convey in a cordial and respectful manner to those governments, in conformity with the tradition of this continent and with the general practices of modern international law that nations under circumstances such as the present have at their disposal organisms and means adequate and efficient to find solutions which harmonize the preservation of peace with the rights of State.

"(3) To transmit this resolution by telegraph to the governments of Bolivia and Paraguay.

"(4) To form a committee which shall report to the conference with respect to the conciliatory action which, if necessary, it might render, cooperating with the instrumentalities now employed in the friendly solution of the problem."

Clash Viewed With Anxiety.

The dispute in South America overshadowed all events connected with the opening of the conference, and was the subject of informal discussions among the delegates before the opening of the plenary session.

While they were gathering in the Hall of the Americas of the Pan-American Union Building, a petition was circulated among the representatives of the various countries requesting that some action be taken at the first session to bring about a peaceful settlement of the controversy between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The crisis is looked upon in diplomatic circles here as the gravest menace to the general peace of South America that has been precipitated in years. It is more serious, according to this view, than the long-standing Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru.

The Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration thus has a test case and should the special committee appointed today succeed, through its representations to the two governments, in inducing them to submit their differences to arbitration, its action in this respect, it is said, will be hailed as a greater accomplishment than the actual framing of a general convention.

The special committee will meet again tomorrow afternoon, following the meeting of the committee on arbitration of the conference which has been called for 3 o'clock.

Both the Bolivian and Paraguayan legations have sent notes to the State Department "as a matter of information," presenting the situation from their standpoint, but in view of the extreme delicacy of the emergency the department is treating them as confidential and withheld the texts from publication.

BRITISH TO EXPLOIT ARTIFICIAL COTTON

Limited Company Formed to Produce Commercial Crops From Hardy Guiana Weed.

EGYPTIAN FIELDS PLANNED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The strange stuff used by the humming bird to build its nest in British Guiana caught the observing eye of a British scientist and led to the discovery of a cotton substitute, coming from a hardy plant which is immune to the boll weevil, it is declared, and which can be grown anywhere—even in Scandinavian countries. The greatly cheaper cost of producing this artificial cotton, it is said, will seriously affect the world's cotton market "in another three years."

The history of the discovery of this plant, which may revolutionize the textile industry, and of the subsequent experiments in chemically treating the raw product were obtained today from Dr. C. J. Hedley-Thornton, who is on his way to Egypt to confer with cotton growers who are expected to undertake the immediate production there of artificial cotton. It was emphasized that no financial backing is needed or wanted now by the limited British corporation of which Dr. Hedley-Thornton is chairman.

"Commercial production," Dr. Hedley-Thornton said, "will be reached in England enxt July, but the available crop, which is estimated at between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 pounds will obviously be insufficient to meet the needs of the English cotton mills.

"We found that only one crop yearly can be grown in England, whereas in Egypt and America two yearly crops can be raised. This is due entirely to differences in climate. Almost any soil is suitable for growing the plant which is only a sturdy species of Guiana weed. There is not enough sunshine in England, but we can get one crop yearly of our weed in Essex, in whose unfertile clay nothing could ever be made to grow before.

"I went to British Guiana in 1919 to investigate the possibilities for mining gold and diamonds there. I sent back an unfavorable report to certain English mining interests, but before I left I patiently investigated where my humming bird friend got the soft fluffy material for lining her nest."

Dr. Hedley-Thornton watched the bird strip the bark from the stem of the weeds, and extract with its beak the stringy, fibrous interior. The bird then flew to a near-by pool of water and dipped the fibre in it before carrying it to the nest to work into the lining.

"After experimenting for nine years with chemical treatments of this fibre we now have a fully patented process for converting it into raw material with which ordinary cotton spinning machinery will do the rest. Cotton mills require no special equipment for manufacturing our artificial cotton. Two hours after the fibres has been extracted from the plant's steam it is ready for the mills. But the root bulbs of the natural plant must be chemically treated before being planted in order to produce a suitable fibre. The seed thereafter will only reproduce the plant in its natural state, as it was before the roots were chemically treated."

Four months after the crop is planted, Dr. Hedley-Thornton said, it is ready for the mill, and the harvesting labor costs are much cheaper than those of the cotton growers.

GERMAN CARTOONIST FINED.

Publisher Is Also Punished After Conviction of Sacrilege.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—George Grosz, the cartoonist, and his publisher, Wieland Herzfelde, were convicted of sacrilege and blasphemy and sentenced to a fine of 2,000 marks each today by the local criminal court.

The punishment was twice as severe as the public prosecutor demanded, although the defendants maintained that they had no intention of hurting the feelings of any Christian and are still members of the Protestant Church.

Grosz, who illustrated a book entitled "Schwejk the Good Soldier," pictured Christ at the Cross in a fashion to which objection was taken, but the cartoonist said that he wanted only to express his idea that the Saviour would have been pressed into military service if he had appeared during the war.

The case, which is called a disgrace for the republic by the radical Welt am Abend, has renewed violent discussion over the question whether such trials and convictions are justified under the new Constitution, which guarantees absolute religious liberty and free expression of opinion.

The irreligious movement is declared by observers to be increasing since communism, supported by the Russian Bolsheviki, commenced to spread, and indictments for blasphemy multiply throughout Germany.

NOVEMBER AIR MAIL GAINED.

Poundage Was Three Times as Much as Same Month Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The air-mail service carried 421,174 pounds of mail during November, as compared with 141,282 for November, 1927, and 87,686 for November, 1926, according to figures made public by Postmaster General New today.

The November poundage, however, represented a decrease as compared with October. In the airmail service November has been a slow month in comparison with October, due to one less day in the month and the intervention of a holiday. The October figures were 467,422, the decrease of 46,248 amounting to about 9.5 per cent.

PRESIDENT MIKLAS INSTALLED IN VIENNA

Dr. Hainisch, Retiring, Urges More Power for His Successors in Office.

LIKENS EXECUTIVE TO BEE

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 10.—A plea for more powers for Austria's Chief Executive was the keynote of the farewell speech delivered today by the retiring President, Dr. Michael Hainisch.

In the presence of his successor, Wilhelm Miklas, Chancellor Seipel and a number of others of the country's prominent men, Dr. Hainisch compared the Austrian President to a bee. He said the only way the President could exert even slight influence over the country's policies was to "sting" by threatening to resign.

As in the bee's case, however, such a course was suicidal because, just as a bee dies after exerting this power, so the President must lose his office.

The President, he said, should at least have authority to appoint and remove Cabinet members—meaning power in this respect similar to that of the American President instead of Austria's method of Parliamentary election of a Cabinet when a new government is presented to this body for its approval.

Reviewing his eight years in office, Dr. Hainisch feelingly referred to the growth of a real democratic spirit in the republic, saying it was noteworthy that all adversaries of democracy and those who had leaned toward the old monarchistic régime had been won over to the republic.

Welcomes His Successor.

At the conclusion of his speech Dr. Hainisch welcomed Herr Miklas as his successor. The latter responded briefly, Chancellor Seipel extended his best wishes to both and then Dr. Hainisch departed from the famous old Foreign Office building of the Hapsburgs and for the last time received the Presidential salute from a company of soldiers drawn up before the building.

The new President is much less popular than Dr. Hainisch. Years ago he declared himself against union with Germany. This declaration the pan-Germans never forgot and as late as yesterday felt they had reason to believe he was just as convinced an anti-unionist as in days gone by. In greeting Chancellor Seipel's party he neglected to mention, as is usual, "our German brothers." Then he used the words "Austrian people." This expression is anathema to the pan-Germans and as such was denounced most bitterly in today's issue of their newspapers. "The Austrian people is non-existent," was the substance of their comment.

Open Fire on Other Points.

Once Herr Miklas had declared himself on this old controversy, they were not hesitant to pick flaws in his election armour. It will be recalled that he is a minority President. Only Chancellor Seipel's Christian social party having voted for him, whereas the Socialists, by voting blank, permitted the Chancellor thus to defeat the Pan-German candidate, Herr Schober.

On election procedure the Austrian Constitution is vague. The Pan-Germans contend the election clause requires an actual majority of the entire electoral college—the two houses of Parliament meeting in joint session—and hence, that the election of Herr Miklas was illegal because he obtained only a majority of those who cast non-blank ballots.

Over this "split" in the government coalition the Socialist opposition is jubilant. They expect the Pan-Germans to join the opposition, thus reducing Chancellor Seipel's majority almost to the vanishing point.

For several days there have been a number of rumors of the Chancellor's resignation. To date there is no real reason to expect it, however, in the near future, although it is not altogether an impossibility.

WARD FORMS CABINET.

First United Party Government Takes Office in New Zealand.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 10 (AP).—The first United Party government of New Zealand has been formed by Sir Joseph Ward, the new Premier. The Cabinet was announced today.

Sir Joseph, a former Premier of the Dominion, and his newly formed United Party took over the reins of office when Premier J. G. Coates and the government were defeated on a test vote in the House of Representatives last week, after an upset in party standings in the recent general elections.

The new Cabinet is as follows:

Prime Minister and Minister of Finance and External Affairs—Sir JOSEPH WARD.
Minister of Lands and Agriculture—G. W. FORBES.
Minister of Public Works—E. A. RANSOM.
Minister of Mines and Labor—W. A. VEITCH.
Minister of Railways and Customs—W. D. TAVERNER.
Minister for Native Affairs and Cook Islands—Sir APIRANA M'GATA.
Postmaster General—J. B. DONALD.
Minister of Education—H. ATMORE.
Minister for Internal Affairs—P. A. FERELLE.
Minister of Immigration, Marine, Industries and Commerce—J. G. COBBE.
Minister of Health—A. J. STAHLWORTHY.
Leader of the Legislative Council and Attorney General—T. K. SIDNEY.

FRENCH CABINET WINS TWICE IN CHAMBER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The Opposition, easily mastered during the budget debate, tried its strength today in a discussion of the finance bill and twice during the session the Finance Minister, Henry Chéron, raised the question of confidence in the government.

In the voting the government rallied a small majority of 52 votes in one instance and of 60 in the other, but in view of absences and abstentions the total votes for the government were 315 and 316, whereas the total membership of the Chamber is 612.

The discussion centred upon methods of fixing the income tax, and while M. Chéron announced the raising to 10,000 francs the present minimum taxable income total of 7,000 the Socialists protested the general percentage basis and made a strenuous appeal for revision of the tax scale, applying different percentages to different income levels, which shift the tax burden further toward the side of persons with high incomes.

M. Chéron refused, saying his policy had been adopted to maintain public confidence and that shifting application of the taxes would be one of the first ways to shake faith in the government.

After heated discussion the Chamber voted with the government, as it did also on the proposition returning the clause to the commission to advance the taxable income minimum.

JEWELER HELD FOR THEFT.

Henry Kremer's Store in Queens Was Found Abandoned Wednesday.

Henry Kremer, 24 years old, of 122 West 122d Street, Manhattan, a jeweler whose store at 45-51 Forty-sixth Street, Thomson Hill, Queens, was found abandoned last Wednesday, was held for the grand jury when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Thomas F. Doyle in Long Island City on a charge of grand larceny.

Kremer waived examination and bail was set at $2,000. He was arrested Saturday after a search by detectives of the Hunters Point police station. Irving Goldberg of 99 Canal Street, Manhattan, a wholesale jeweler, alleged that jewelry valued at $1,000, held by Kremer on assignment, had disappeared and was unaccounted for. A patrolman said he found the door of Kremer's store open and the shelves bare.

MOVE TO CLARIFY ANTI-WAR TREATY

Senators See Way to Obviate Reservations by Citing Our Monroe Doctrine Rights.

PROPOSE NOTE TO POWERS

BRITISH STAND RECALLED

Chamberlain Said Treaty Must Not Block Defense of Certain Vital Regions.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A movement has been undertaken in the Senate to bring about ratification of the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war without subjecting it to the dangers found in reservations. A simple process of relieving Senatorial sensibilities as to the alleged failure of the pact to recognize special rights of the United States to adopt self-defensive measures has been proposed.

This process would take the form of a circular diplomatic note to the signatory powers explaining that the United States interprets the pact to mean that the right of the United States to self-defense under the Monroe Doctrine was not restricted by the provisions of the pact.

This proposal is said to have received the approval of a number of Senators, Democrats and Republicans. According to some of them it is certain to obviate objections that the pact does not make clear that this government has special rights in the Western Hemisphere under the Monroe Doctrine. Most of the objections to the treaty heard at the Senate end of the Capitol since the present legislative session was begun a week ago have been mainly of an academic or abstract character, indicating that the pact was a mere declaration that had no teeth in it.

The more serious critical comment pertains to the absence of any specific reservation of the special rights of the United States to protect its interests through the application of the Monroe Doctrine.

Senators to Get Kellogg's View.

Secretary Kellogg, according to present intention, will appear before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations tomorrow for further questioning concerning the terms of the pact.

It is likely that he will be asked his opinion of the suggestion to preserve these rights under the pact through a diplomatic note to its signatories and thus render unnecessary the adoption of Senate reservations.

Senators realize that reservations would be especially dangerous to the consummation of a multilateral treaty, for the reason that with so many nations involved some of them might find the reservations obnoxious and imperil the whole arrangement through declining to accept them. If the method of satisfying some Senators through sending a diplomatic note is acceptable to Secretary Kellogg, the way may be paved for the early ratification of the pact by the Senate.

In this connection it should be understood that there is widespread confidence in the Senate that the pact will be ratified before the end of the current Congressional session in March. Coupled with that confidence is the equally confident opinion that once the pact comes before the Senate for a vote it will have overwhelming support.

Suggestion that a diplomatic note would obviate recourse to reservations is drawn from an address, explanatory of the pact, delivered by Secretary Kellogg before the American Society of International Law. In it, he said that the right of self-defense could not be restricted by any treaty.

Impetus to the proposal that some clarifying assertion along that line should be followed arises from the course of the British government in sending to the United States a diplomatic note interpreting the pact as not interfering with the right of Great Britain to defend certain special interests.

The essential feature of that note, written by Sir Austen Chamberlain, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Alanson B. Houghton, the American Ambassador in London, read as follows:

"The language of article 1, as to the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy, renders it desirable that I should remind Your Excellency that there are certain regions of the world the welfare and integrity of which constitute a special and vital interest for our peace and safety.

"His Majesty's government have been at pains to make it clear in the past that interference with these regions cannot be suffered.

"Their protection against attack is to the British Empire a measure of self-defense. It must be clearly understood that his Majesty's Government in Great Britain accept the new treaty upon the distinct understanding that it does not prejudice their freedom of action in this respect. The Government of the United States have comparable interests, any disregard of which by a foreign power they have declared that they would regard as an unfriendly act.

"His Majesty's Government believe, therefore, that in defining their position they are expressing the intention and meaning of the United States Government."

Application to the Pacific.

Private discussion among Senators over the suggestion of sending a note to the British Government embodies another suggestion to the effect that the special attention of the signatory nations be called to the application of the Monroe Doctrine to the Pacific as set forth in a Senate resolution fathered by the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

That resolution was the outcome of reports that the Mexican Government had granted a concession to Japanese commercial interests on Magdalena Bay in lower California and that a Japanese naval base might be established there.

The original Monroe Doctrine applied only in a restrictive way to any attempt of European governments to establish themselves on the Western Hemisphere through colonization or conquest. The lodge resolution extended the doctrine to the Pacific and Nations of Asia.

MACDONALD IN PARIS ASSAILS NAVAL PACT

Tells French Attempts to Secure Peace and Disarmament Have All Been Wrong.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—British labor's theory of how peace can be maintained and disarmament secured was expounded today to a distinguished French audience by Ramsay MacDonald, in a discourse on labor politics in general which was obviously intended to reassure France that even should labor win in the next English election there need be nothing to worry about and perhaps much to be hoped for.

During the week-end the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons has been the guest of the British Ambassador, a feature of his visit which in itself has not been without causing comment. It has afforded to French minds visible proof of that continuity of British policy which always survives changes of governments.

The fact that he was living at the embassy did not, however, prevent Mr. MacDonald, either in his carefully prepared speech or in an interview afterward, from being frankly critical of everybody else's methods of trying to secure peace and disarmament. He did not denounce them with the vigor with which Lloyd George is inclined to talk about anybody else's efforts. In his long developed argument and in his interview he tried only to show that so far, in his opinion, no one had got quite tightly hold of the problem by its roots.

War, he said, is developed by fear and before you can get anybody to reduce their armaments you must get rid of fear and give security. Even for the proposed increase of the American fleet this British labor leader and former Premier found a reason.

"America has no security whatever under existing maritime law," he said, "so she must build a fleet. And it is no good talking naval limitation so long as that situation exists. It will not be real."

The Anglo-French naval pact came, in the speaker's opinion, under the category of honestly idiotic attempts to meet a situation without going to its roots.

Speaking later to French journalists, he said:

"It is no use whatever our making a naval agreement which America will not accept. There was nothing secret or underhand about the recent effort. It was just foolish. The preface to all disarmament must be political understanding which will give security, and that state does not exist in Europe today.

"I am not pessimistic," Mr. MacDonald declared, "but the status quo cannot last. If it does, then we are going to have another war. We must keep pushing on, never taking any situation as final. That is what diplomacy is for."

Mr. MacDonald seemed to think the same metrod of not taking no for an answer would ultimately be successful in dealing with the United States. He would not be drawn into discussion but affirmed his belief that to the Kellogg pact, "which is as yet something of a castle in the air," more and more solid foundations will be given.

"There is going to be increasing authority and wiser experience in America's influence for peace," he said. "France, England and Germany working together could keep the peace of Europe," he added, "and if America will come in we can assure the peace of the world."

Lords Differ on Evacuation.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—Lord Parmoor argued in the House of Lords today that under the peace treaty the allied powers were compelled to withdraw their troops from the Rhineland in the immediate future without waiting for full payment of reparations.

Speaking in reply Lord Hailsham, Lord High Chancellor, quoting five articles of the Treaty of Versailles, from Article 428, examined the legal side exhaustively and argued that Sir Austen Chamberlain was undoubtedly right in his attitude. Germany had not yet paid the whole of the reparations. Great Britain, he said, desired earlier evacuation than the treaty stipulated and the only thing for her to do was to try and achieve an agreement between the occupying powers.

SUPPORT COOLIDGE ON SUMMER HOME

Many Senators Endorse Idea of Hot-Weather White House Accessible to Capital.

CITE HEAT OF WASHINGTON

Maryland and Virginia Localities Are Recommended—Resolution Offered in the House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—President Coolidge's suggestion of establishing a permanent Summer White House in some hilly or mountainous region convenient to Washington, which was made in a letter published in The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, found instant favor at the Capitol today. It lead to the revival of an almost forgotten proposal that the United States should have a Summer capital.

Representative Woodrum of Virginia, known as "the singing Congressman," was the first to give form to Mr. Coolidge's proposal. In the House today he offered a resolution directing the Public Buildings Commission to report to Congress with recommendations a location in the State of Virginia, accessible and convenient to the city of Washington, suitable for use by the President as a temporary White House, together with the approximate acreage and the nature of the building desirable and the approximate cost.

Mr. Woodrum said he would bring the resolution before the House Committee on Public Buildings at the earliest opportunity.

The commission which would have charge of locating a Summer White House for the President, as proposed by Mr. Woodrum, is composed of Senators Smoot of Utah and Swanson of Virginia, Representatives Elliot of Indiana and Lanham of Texas, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and James A. Wetmore, acting supervising architect of the Treasury Department.

Comment of Senators and Representatives was so commendatory of the President's desire that the way may be paved at last for making life more bearable for his successors than is their portion when they are compelled to remain here during the heated spell with its debilitating effects.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada was one of those who read the President's suggestion with approving interest. He said this afternoon that not only was he in favor of giving the Presidents a Summer White House in a cool region near Washington but he would have the government provide for carrying on all its functions there in the hot weather, including halls for sessions of the Senate and the House. Mr. Pittman spoke of the debilitating effects of Washington Summers and expressed the opinion that it would be advantageous to the country to have Congress as well as the Executive conduct business from a Summer capital.

President's Suggestion Endorsed.

"The whole establishment would not cost more than $3,000,000," he said.

This proposed expansion of President Coolidge's plan did not appeal to other Senators, however, although not one was found who disapproved of Mr. Coolidge's desire for a rural Presidential residence convenient to Washington. Senator Swanson of Virginia, while opposed to Senator Pittman's proposal, because it would involve setting up a separate governmental establishment, heartily endorsed the rural Presidential home idea. He suggested that the Shenandoah National Park, in Virginia, which soon will be under Government control, would be a convenient place.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania said that the establishment of a Summer capital would be conducive to longer sittings of Congress and he objected to it for that reason. But he approved the simpler idea offered by the President.

"I would like to see the President have a Sumnier White House," said Senator Glass of Virginia.

"I am strongly in favor of it and I certainly will vote for it," was the comment of Senator Fess of Ohio.

Another near-by site for a presidential rural residence complying with the suggestions offered by Mr. Coolidge is Sugar Loaf Mountain in Maryland, fifty-three miles from Washington. The peak has an altitude of 1,251 feet. It overlooks the Upper Potomac and the Monocacy Rivers.

Snicker's Gap, in Louden County, Virginia, is only sixty miles from Washington. It was a strategical point in the operations of the Union and Confederate forces in the Civil War.

Maryland Sites Mentioned.

Bluemont has an altitude of 650 feet, but the top of the gap is considerably higher. The United States Weather Bureau maintains an observation station with extensive grounds at a high point in the gap. There are many Summer homes in the vicinity.

Braddock Heights, near Frederick, Md., is another high spot, forty-nine miles from Washington by automobile road. Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., just over the Maryland line, is the centre of a popular Summer resort region. It has an altitude of between 1,400 and 1,500 feet. It is only seventy miles from Washington.

Figures obtained today from the United States Weather Bureau give the following averages of temperature for Washington in the Summer months: June, 72.2; July, 76.7; August, 75; September, 68.1.

These are official temperatures and do not convey any understandable impression of the capabilities of Summer heat in Washington, where street temperatures run up above 90 and sometimes exceed 100 degrees.

Heavy humidity adds to the debilitation and discomfort of Washington Summers. Weather Bureau figures of average humidity are: June, 69; July, 73; August, 75, and September, 72.

The nucleus of a fund for building the suggested Summer home for our Presidents was once offered.

Fund Offered President Harding.

In January, 1923, when Warren G. Harding was President, and seven months before he was succeeded by Mr. Coolidge, the Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore informed him that as executor of J. Wilson Leakin' estate it had been directed to apply $200,000 of the money he left to buy land "within automobiling distance of Washington" and erect thereon a Summer White House suitable for the use of the President. That communication was sent by Mr. Harding to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Two weeks later a copy of Mr. Leakin's will was received at the White House from the Baltimore banking company and this also was transmitted to the Speaker. These communications were laid before the House and presumably referred to a committee.

The proposal that a Summer home be provided for the President has been brought forward at widely separated periods but has never taken form in Congress. A residence for the use of the President was available at the National Soldiers' Home on the outskirts of Washington when this institution was established during the Civil War, and President Lincoln occupied it during the Summer months.

Cleveland's Example Recalled.

It was never popular with his Presidential successors. President Arthur is said to have lived there for a short time.

President Cleveland declined to use the Soldiers' Home residence. Shortly after his marriage to Miss Frances Folsom he leased Woodley, an attractive old country place in Woodley Road, then a suburban section but now in the midst of a thickly populated area of the capital. He spent much time there during his first term.

When he returned to Washington as President, Mr. Cleveland built a modest dwelling in Cleveland Park, a suburb now merged with the city. This he called Red Top but it became known as Grey Gables.

President Roosevelt built a rough cabin near Charlottesville which he called Pine Knot and here he and his family would spend week-ends and holiday seasons. No President since then has had a rural home near Washington.

ROBBER MENACES BANK WITH DYNAMITE LOAD

He Shoots Patrolman in Effort to Escape After Failure to Extort $50,000 in Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 10 (AP).—An attempt to obtain $50,000 from the cashier of the First National Bank today was thwarted by Patrolman Edward S. Ryan, who was shot twice by a robber who fled but was captured at the doorway by two police detectives.

Patrolman Ryan, shot in the abdomen, is at a hospital in a serious condition, while the robber, who said he was Axel Baetilla, 47 years old, a native of Sweden, was held by police pending the outcome of the officer's condition.

Eight sticks of dynamite with fuses attached were found hanging from Baetilla's neck. He also had a .44-calibre pistol when arrested.

Entering the bank, Baetilla went to W. E. Wells, cashier, and handed him a piece of white paper upon which was printed in red ink a demand for $50,000 and instructions to be carried out in giving him the money. The note told of Baetilla's possession of the dynamite and pistol and said if he were molested he would set off the explosives.

The cashier instructed the man to follow him to the vault. George P. Tweed, a director, who was a witness, summoned the policeman.

Baetilla, upon seeing the policeman, opened fire, two bullets striking the officer, and made a dash for a rear exit, where he was met by detectives Peter R. Barber and James L. Bradley, who had been summoned from headquarters. He opened fire on the detectives who disarmed him.

HELD FOR SHOOTING FATHER

Youth Admits Using Revolver When Intoxicated, Police Report.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 10.—Detective Inspector Malseed said today that William C. Corcoran Jr., 19 years old, of 25-37 Fairmount Avenue had confessed that when under the influence of liquor last night he tried to kill his father, William C. Corcoran, for reprimanding him for going home intoxicated. Resenting the scolding, as Malseed related it, the youth went to his room and got a revolver. The father grappled with him, but the son freed himself and fired five shots at his father, wounding him in abdomen, leg and neck.

Physicians took an X-ray of the wounds today and will try to remove the bullets. Corcoran's condition was reported to be fair.

ROOSEVELT ASSERTS HE IS FIT AS FIDDLE

BEGINS WORK ON MESSAGE

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN, ATLANTA, Dec. 10.—With his four weeks' vacation at Warm Springs ended, Franklin D. Roosevelt was speeding home tonight in excellent physical condition to assume his duties as Governor on Jan. 1. He will arrive at the Pennsylvania station at 8:50 tomorrow night.

"I am feeling fit as a fiddle," the Governor-elect said, "I'm all ready to take up the work in Albany and remain constantly on the job throughout the entire legislative period."

Mr. Roosevelt and his party are traveling north in a special car attached to the Atlanta train of the Seaboard Air Line. He is accompanied by D. Basil O'Connor, his law partner; Miss Marguerite Lehand and Miss Grace Tully, his secretaries; Colonel Warwick Halsey of his staff and a corps of newspaper correspondents.

The Governor-elect enjoyed his stay at the resort he founded in Georgia so much that he said he hated to tear himself away from his little cottage. He was in the swimming pool there until a few hours before he left for the train. While Mr. O'Connor, who arrived only this morning to make the trip back, was playing water football with the correspondents, the Governor-elect went through the final series of exercises for his crippled legs that he has taken daily since he left New York.

Dr. Leroy Hubbard, surgeon in charge at the foundation, said this afternoon that Mr. Roosevelt had improved considerably during the warm Spring visit. The Governor-elect has been leading a simple life, swimming and exercising and getting to bed regularly every night at 10 o'clock. Bronzed by the sun, his appearance substantiates his declaration of good health. He also has managed to get a great deal of work done here and has held a number of important conferences with New York leaders who journeyed to Warm Springs to talk with him. On his return to New York he faces a very busy three weeks. One of the chief events of which will be a meeting with Governor Smith.

Mr. Roosevelt, with the aid of some of his visitors, has already whipped the party legislative program into shape and has started dictating portions of his first message to the Legislature.

When the Roosevelt party boarded the train at Durand, a delegation from Warm Springs was there to cheer him as the train pulled away in the twilight.

"I'll see you in April or May," called Mr. Roosevelt to those he left behind.

He plans to remain in Albany, except for week-ends at his Hyde Park home, until the legislative session is over and the thirty-day bill period is concluded, and then he expects to leave the duties of Governor in the hands of Colonel Herbert H. Lehman while he returns to Warm Springs for about a month.

A group of Southern friends paid a call when the train stopped at Atlanta. They included "Cam" Dorsey, a member of Mr. Roosevelt's class in law school.

40 UKRAINIANS ARRESTED.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—Forty Ukrainian students were arrested today and charged with being implicated in the recent bomb explosions at Lodz and Cracow newspaper offices.

It is alleged by the police that the infernal machines came from the same source in both outrages and that a plot existed to destroy all the newspapers in Poland which followed a policy against the Ukrainians.

It is also supposed that the recent shooting at the Belvedere Palace, the home of Marshal Pilsudski, is chargable to the same band.

The students have so far refused to break their silence, though the police have put several of them through severe tests.

POLAND BUYS AIR LINE.

Will Operate Passenger Plane Traffic as a State Enterprise.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—The Polish Minister of Communications signed a contract with the Aerolot Air Line today, taking over the latter's entire stock and equipment. The Ministry will operate the line as a government controlled venture.

The first lines will be opened soon after Jan. 1 and will connect the Polish capital with Vienna, Paris, Bucharest and Danzig. Two new lines, one to Berlin and the other to Moscow, are projected and negotiations are now going on.

Owing to the inability of the government to frame a satisfactory trade agreement between Germany and Poland, Lufthansa did not include Warsaw in its schedule. Last Summer the Polish capital was the only one in Europe not connected with Berlin by air passenger service.

The government will use Fokker planes manufactured in its own shops for the new service.

PROSPERITY? YES, BUT SUFFERING.

To those who live in the sunshine of prosperity, there is a lesson in the stories of the shadows which are told in the Hundred Neediest Cases. In this great, wealthy city there are many who suffer and who are in want, through no fault of their own. And if those who prosper will read of these hundred, they will be impelled to say: "There, but for the grace of God, go we!" And, in thanks, they will help these unfortunates.

Federal Health Authorities Declare That Epidemic Is of a Mild Type.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 10 (AP).—The University of Missouri was closed today until Jan. 3, because of a large increase in the number of influenza cases. About 150 students are estimated by university authorities to be suffering from the disease.

SEWANEE, Tenn., Dec. 10 (AP).—The University of the South (Sewanee) was officially closed today as the result of an outbreak of influenza.

CULVER, Ind., Dec. 10 (AP).—The cadets of Culver Military Academy were dismissed today until the end of the Christmas holidays because of an epidemic of influenza. The academy physician said that sixty-eight cadets with symptoms of the disease had reported to the infirmary since Saturday.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. 10 (AP).—An influenza epidemic at the University of Iowa, although widespread, has not reached a stage necessary to suspend classes, Walter A. Jessup, president, said tonight. Dr. Frank L. Love city health physician, estimated the number of cases here at 1,000.

TOPEKA, Dec. 10 (AP).—An epidemic of influenza was reported in Kansas by the Topeka Board of Health today. Figures showed 13,596 cases of the disease during the past week. The milder forms prevailed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The outbreak of influenza, which is present in sections of the Middle West and South, is not believed to be by Public Health Service officials as threatening as previous epidemics of the disease. The death rate of the outbreak is considered to be low and the disease is not as widespread as the epidemics of 1918 and 1920.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10 (Canadian Press).—The Seminary of St. Therese, twenty miles from Montreal, was closed today on account of an outbreak of grip. The students were dismissed until Jan. 3, two weeks ahead of the usual Christmas holidays.

LEVIS, Quebec, Dec. 10 (Canadian Press).—On account of the prevalence of grip here, the Levis College was closed today.

BYRD NEAR PACK ICE, GIANT BERGS PASS

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Lincoln Ellsworth at Spitsbergen after the North Pole flight, and the ruddy Captain Frederick Melville of the City of New York.

They were attempting to reach whalers to the south whose position was known, and by radio compass get bearings which would show their true position.

"Get Mason on the Eleanor Bolling and tell him to use his compass," said Hanson. "It's working better than ours just now."

Petersen made a few rapid shifts of plugs, turned his dials and then swung his antennae switch, the copper connections of which clicked into place overhead. A few taps on the key to make connection and Berkner spoke over the radio telephone to Mason on the ship ahead, talking as easily as over New York telephone connections.

Mason Sends Bearings.

In a few minutes Mason sent back the information:

"Radio compass bearing, 6 degrees; magnetic compass, 84; error, 50 degrees."

"Let's check our compass now," said Commander Byrd.

He climbed to the top of the radio cabin where the compass was stationed, while a man stood in the door of the radio room to relay the message from Hanson, who, with the phones on his head, stood in front of the tall instrument against the wall, twisting it by means of a wheel. Back and forth he swung it until the signal from distant ships came in sharply and he cried out, "Mark!"

"92S, called back Commander Byrd. "Now we know that error. See if you can get the bearing from the Eleanor Bolling now and ask Captain Brown what he makes his true course. I think we can swing more to the south."

Petersen had been listening in and held up his hand for silence.

"I have her now," he said.

"They say to keep on our course and that there should be open floes which we can easily get through for some distance. If we get through the pack and it seems thick, we should keep to the east, as it should be open there until we reach their position."

Byrd "Shoots the Sun."

"Good," said Byrd. "There's the sun."

He leaped to his feet and made a dive for the chart room to get his sextent. It was only for a moment, for thick clouds were scudding overhead; but he caught it, standing at the swinging rail with waves leaping up white and curling and then dropping away under the stern till one looked down into a hollow twenty-five feet deep.

Captain Melville was only a moment behind him and got a "sight" also; and back in the chart room they worked out position lines which checked within a short distance.

When these were crossed with the radio compass bearings, they had a fairly accurate idea of their position and were glad to find that, despite all the handicaps, they were on their right course.

Back in the radio room, where instruments were whining, Hanson and Berkner were testing and swinging their compass again, checking it in every possible way, and between times calling the Eleanor Bolling to make sure the same results were obtained on both ships.

Having finished his "sight," Commander Byrd saw another opportunity when the sun peeped through a cloud, and took his sun compass up to the ship's compass to check the error.

He found that the sun compass checked with the radio compass indication and was satisfied that the course was accurate.

Barometer Becomes Erratic.

In the meantime, some lively meteorological discussions had been going on on deck, where William C. (Cyclone) Haines, the meteorologist, had been trying to decipher the erratic behavior of the barometer.

The reading had been going down rapidly, and the whalers also reported a low barometer, as low as 28.95, which would have meant all sorts of trouble in more northern latitudes. But down here a low barometer seems to be normal, although it is the cause of alarms until the eccentricities are understood.

"I don't know what to make of the darned thing," said "Cyclone." "The other day when it was rising it blew like the deuce and now its going down, but all the indications are that it does not mean a storm. The wind is in the west still, which indicates the storm centre is to the south and arising ahead of us. When we were not sure of our course we thought the wind was from the north, which would have meant trouble.

"I never saw a barometer act this way before, its curve is up and down like a snake and that seems to be normal. But I guess we are all right."

Everybody hoped so and listened to Haines's discourse with interest, because to come up to the ice pack in a heavy storm having ice under the lee might easily be dangerous. Amundsen, in a similar position in the Fram, was forced to turn head-on to the ice and drive his ship up on the floes to escape being battered to pieces.

Altogether there are many exciting moments in navigating these comparatively unknown seas, with a mysterious and vast extent of sea ice to the east and pack ice to the south and wind from the west and north. But probably that is why men go exploring.

A wireless message yesterday to THE NEW YORK TIMES gave the position of the ships of the Byrd expedition at noon as Longitude 179:27 west, altitude 69:00 south. This would put the ships ninety miles south of Scott Island.

AMERICANS IN FIGHT, COLOMBIA REPORTS

Troops Rescue Several Families Who Stood Off Strikers for Five Hours.

ALL OUR CITIZENS NOW SAFE

Army Controls Sevilla, Rio Frio, Aracataca and Fundacion—Trains Running Again.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 10 (AP).—The homes of several American families in Sevilla, in the heart of the region affected by the strike of banana plantation workers, were saved yesterday from looting when troops arrived and dispersed a mob that was attacking the Americans. The latter had defended their homes for five hours but the strikers were about to rush the places with machetes when the soldiers reached the scene.

An official communication said that the strikers were dispersed. Dispatches from other sources stated that three soldiers and several members of the mob were wounded and that 150 of the latter were taken prisoners.

Both governmental and private advices agreed that the discordant elements have been rounded up near Sevilla. When finally driven from that town the strikers fled in the direction of Sierra Nevada. The official communiqué today said that the troops have closed all avenues of escape, being in control at Sevilla, Rio Frio, Aracataca and Fundacion.

Telegraph Lines Repaired.

Telegraph lines have been repaired and railroads are again operating General Cortes Vargas is concentrating for his general attack upon the strikers who hide through the day in banana plantations, coming out at night to riot nd pillage.

Telegrams from the Magdalena region, where fruit-workers are on strike, state that government troops have dispersed the rebellious elements. Nine battalions of soldiers were operating in the region.

The Socialist organ Diario Nacional, which has generally supported the strikers as against the plantation proprietors, says that the government is only doing its duty in protecting foreigners. It adds that the plantation owners have sought to carry this obligation of the government to extremes, and that while Colombia is a hospitable country, it is not obliged to use its resources merely for the sake of avoiding inconveniences to foreigners.

40 Americans Reach Safety.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—All American citizens who were in the district affected by strikes of banana workers in Colombia reached Santa Marta yesterday by troop train, the State Department was informed today by Lawrence F. Cotie, Vice Consul at that place. The Vice Consul said that no American had been killed or wounded and that "all danger to American citizens has now passed."

The Americans numbered forty, but no names were contained in the brief message from the Vice Consul. Mr. Cotie reported that the military authorities are now in control of the situation, that there have been casualties among the native Colombians in the banana zone, that considerable property has been destroyed in the zone and communication with the zone is cut off.

Hears Troops Control Situation.

Señor Antonio Carbonnell, proprietor of Diario de Comercio of Barranquilla, The Associated Press reports, received the following cablegram from his paper yesterday:

"Yesterday in the banana region the strikers set fire to Station Origueca at Sevilla. There was a clash between soldiers and strikers who were dispersed, the authorities are in control of the situation and the strike is beginning to break up."

Bandits Derail Mexican Train.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10 (AP).—Special dispatches from Guadalajara to the Excelsior today said that a passenger train bound from Colima to Guadalajara was derailed by insurgents and express and mail messengers were seriously injured when their car and one of the second-class coaches overturned. The insurgents immediately fired upon the train and a military escort traveling in an armored car engaged the attackers. Federal reinforcements were sent from Colima. The result of the combat has not been learned here.

Form Company to Aid Aviation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—A group of Chicago industrialists today announced the formation of a corporation to finance young aviation companies. The Aviation Securities Company, which will lend money to promising aviation concerns, will be headed by Laurence H. Armour. John J. Mitchell Jr. is secretary-treasurer and John Hertz, Robert R. McCormick, John R. Thompson, William Wrigley Jr. and Colonel Paul Henderson are included on the board of directors.

SLAYER CONFESSES A THIRD MURDER

CLEARS UP OLD MYSTERY

Indicted for Killing Storelli Boy—Mother Berates Son as Police Question Him.

Peter Kudzinowski, confessed murderer of a 5-year-old boy and a man, admitted early this morning having committed a third murder, that of a 5-year-old girl, at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., last August. The confession was made to Police Commissioner John Beggans and Captain Harry Walsh of the Jersey City police after Kudzinowski had been questioned virtually all day.

The murdered girl, Julia Miodzianowski, who lived at Gilchrist Street, Jersey City, had been reported missing after she attended a Sunday school picnic at the lake.

Kudzinowski's statement was taken down by a stenographer, but when it was transcribed and Captain Walsh handed it to the prisoner to be signed, Kudzinowski tore it to pieces.

"I suppose you want to hang half a dozen more murders on me," he said.

Hudson County, N. J., grand jury returned an indictment late yesterday against Kudzinowski charging him with the murder of 7-year-old Joseph Storelli on the night of Nov. 17. As soon as the indictment was handed to County Judge Robert V. Kinkead, former State Senator Alexander Simpson, who prosecuted in the Hall-Mills case, was appointed counsel to defend the accused man. William L. Griffin, son of a former vice chancellor, was appointed assistant counsel by Judge Kinkead.

Jersey City detectives, working under Inspector John Underwood, yesterday welded several additional links in the chain of evidence corroborating the confession of Kudzinowski that he lured the Storelli boy from the east side of this city, took him to New Jersey and after killing him threw his body in the meadows between Secaucus and Jersey City. John Ralkownky, a railroad laborer, was found at the work camp of the Delaware & Lackawanna Railroad near Secaucus and after being brought to Jersey City police headquarters and held as a material witness, told of having seen Kudzinowski on the night the boy was murdered.

Kudzinowski's mother and brother, Julian, who live at Greenwood, Pa., near Scranton, came to headquarters shortly after the accused man had told Inspector Underwood that he visited his mother's house for two days after the crime.

He said that after he had killed the boy he went to Greenwood and told his mother of the crime, and also of the killing of Harry Quinn near Scranton four years ago. He said his mother hid him in the house for two days, his father not even being aware of his presence, and then she gave him $29 with which to get out of town.

Later in the evening Kudzinowski was brought from his cell to the room where his mother was being questioned by Inspector Underwood. Mrs. Kudzinowski berated her son and denied his statement that she had harbored him after the killing of the boy.

OFFER $68,400 STOCK, TWO HELD FOR THEFT

200 Montgomery Ward Shares, Part of 700 Stolen by Bogus Messenger, Cause Arrests.

Montgomery Ward stock, which has brought wealth to many in the recent market boom, caused immediate arrest yesterday of two men on charges of grand larceny when they offered 200 shares of it for sale. They are William Turner, 42 years old, of 310 Friendship Street, Providence, R. I., and George McFaul, 29 years old, of 204 Sheridan Avenue, New Haven, Conn., and were arrested by Sergeant George F. McGann and Detective James McDonald of the Old Slip station.

The 200 shares, which would have brought $68,400 at yesterday's high price on the Exchange, were part of a block of 700 that were stolen two months ago, according to the police. On Sept. 10, the brokerage firm of Logan & Bryan, 42 Broadway, sent the 700 shares to E. B. Smith & Co., 15 Broad Street, together with eight stock certificates. The stock was given to a bogus messenger to be returned to Logan & Bryan and upon discovery of the fraud the police were notified and a "stop order" on the 700 shares given out to the banks and brokers.

At Police Headquarters, where Turner and McFaul were taken for questioning, Turner said he had won the 200 shares from a man named "Dorns" in a dice game in the Hotel Essex in Boston and that he had come to New York with McFaul to find out how much the stock was worth. The police are still seeking traces of the missing 500 shares.

At the time of the theft, the 700 shares would have brought $179,900. At their highest quotation of yesterday they would have brought $239,400.

SLAYER A STRANGER, MRS. MAYE ASSERTS

TELLS OF PREVIOUS THREAT

Mrs. Marlyse Maye, 26-year-old French war bride being tried before Judge Cohn and a jury in Bronx County Court for the murder of Andrew Devola, completely changed the aspect of her trial yesterday, when she took the witness stand and testified that on the night of Nov. 12, 1927, in her apartment at 1,477 Townsend Avenue, the Bronx, an unidentified man shot and killed Devola and wounded her.

While she was in Fordham Hospital as a result of her injury, Mrs. Maye told the authorities several times that Devola shot her and then himself. Only once did she mention a third person. In presenting the State's case Assistant District Attorney Alderman endeavored to prove that Devola, found with four mortal wounds in his body, could not have committed suicide and that Mrs. Maye murdered him, then attempted to kill herself.

When she took the stand, Mrs. Maye told of being in her apartment with Devola on the night of the shooting. The room was dark, she said. Suddenly she noticed the shadow of a man in the room. He had presumably entered through an open window leading to the fire escape. She screamed, warning Devola, who seized a pistol from a dresser drawer. There was a short scuffle, a shot, and she was thrown to the floor, Mrs. Maye testified. She said she was trying to regain her feet when the room grew black and she knew no more.

Mrs. Maye testified that in the Fall of 1926 three men assaulted and robbed her in her home. Two of them were arrested soon after, but the third was not apprehended until a week before Devola was shot, she said.

Mrs. Maye intimated, by her testimony, that she believed the man who shot Devola was seeking her in reprisal for her prosecution of the three men. She testified that a few days before Devola was killed a man came to her apartment late at night and, through the closed doors, which she was afraid to open, warned her not to testify in court against the last man arrested. It was for self-protection that she bought a pistol two days later, Mrs. Maye testified. She said she bought the weapon in a place in Philadelphia to which Devola sent her, after se had failed to obtain a pistol permit.

Mrs. Maye admitted that she had contemplated suicide three days before Devola's death, explaining that she was depressed because Devola's parents had persuaded him that he should forget her. She admitted that she wrote but did not mail a letter to her husband, who was then in France for his health, in which she said she intended to "end it all." The letter had been put in evidence by the State.

Tower Ties

"In days of old, when knights were bold" and wanted to be particularly fancy they decorated their armor and trappings with gorgeous designs.

So, when we wanted some new patterns of unusual beauty for our neckties, we went to the famous collection of armor in the Tower of London and copied the best of the armorial bearings we found there.

Result: a set of new motifs in neckwear patterns that are as brilliantly good-looking as they are exclusive with us.

Call 'em "Tower Ties" and have a special display in our windows today. The silks are imported and the ties are handsewn.

BOY KILLS TEACHER OVER OLD SCOLDING

Sheridan (Mich.) Lad of 16 Calmly Confesses Grudge Borne 3 Years Led to Murder.

ASKED HER FOR RIDE IN CAR

Then Slew Her With Stone and Returned Home—Story Frees Another Youth.

Special to The New York Times.

IONIA, Mich., Dec. 10.—Jimmy Deacon, a gangling 16-year-old schoolboy of Sheridan, today calmly confessed that last Friday night he choked and clubbed to death his former teacher, Miss Flossie Carter, because she scolded him three years ago for a boyish prank. The teacher was 29.

The son of John Deacon, janitor of the Sheridan school, the boy was in the eighth grade. He told Prosecuting Attorney N. Hale Brake of Montcalm County that he killed Miss Carter with a stone when she sat in her car on a deserted road in the outskirts of Sheridan. He said he then threw the stone into a lake and hid his overalls in the loft of the garage at the rear of his home.

The clue that led to the boy's arrest was supplied by 12-year-old Wayne Peterson, who told Sheriff's officers that he had seen him in Miss Carter's automobile when she drove out of Sheridan at dusk Friday. The body was not found until Sunday afternoon, when Ray Collier, a farm boy, passed the parked car while tending his muskrat traps.

Another Youth Was Suspected.

When Jimmy Deacon apparently had established an alibi Sunday night suspicion focussed on Lee Bracey, a freshman at Olivet College and for the last two years a sweetheart of the murdered teacher. Bracey was brought from Olivet and questioned for hours, but steadfastly assetted his innocence.

Leroy Smith, expert of the Michigan State police, obtained fingerprints from the glass of the girl's car and found they did not check with those of Bracey. Casting about for a new lead, officers took young Deacon from his class at 10 A. M. today. After a brief questioning the boy admitted coolly that he had slain Miss Carter.

"Three years ago when I was in the fifth grade and she was my teacher she slapped me in front of all the other kids," the boy said. "I had thrown a paper wad and she saw me."

While the astounded police officers listened, young Deacon declared he had several times determined to kill the teacher.

"Friday I decided I would do it," he said.

Asked Teacher for a Ride.

He asked Miss Carter to drive him to a point where he ran a line of muskrat traps. The teacher readily agreed, he said, because she was on her way to the home of her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Linderman of Sidney.

"We rode out a half-mile to where the old hog hole is located," the boy explained. "Miss Carter stopped the car there, since there was where my trap line started."

Describing what happened then, he said he attacked her with his fists, and when she fought him, choked her and then, in insane fury, seized upon a stone and beat her upon the head. He admitted that he slept well Friday and Saturday nights.

The first sign of emotion shown by the boy was when his father and mother entered his cell at the Montcalm County Jail an hour after his confession.

"I just can't make myself believe he killed Miss Carter, and because I can't I'll spend every nickel I have to save him," the father said.

"He was perfectly natural when he came home Friday night. Saturday he moped around the house and seemed ill. When we asked him what the matter was he said there wasn't anything wrong. Sunday he brightened up and when he started off to school Monday he was his usual self."

THE THRILL OF GIVING.

Contributions to the Hundred Neediest Cases bring a twofold joy—to him who gives as well as to him who receives. To those who respond to the appeal published today there comes the boundless thrill of having helped a needy fellow-man.

BILL COLLECTOR ROUTS ROBBERS, SHOOTING ONE

Victim of Harlem Hold-Up a Year Ago Acts Quickly When Three Threaten Him in Hallway.

One negro is in Harlem Hospital with a serious wound in his back, another is under arrest for attempted robbery an a thrid is being sought by the police because Fred McKee, a bill collector of the Standard Gas Light Company, 32 West 125th Street, was quick with his pistol when the three tried to hold him up in a Harlem hallway yesterday morning.

When McKee went to 124 West 134th Street at 11:30 o'clock to collect a bill he met the three men in the hallway, one of whom ordered him at the point of a revolver to hand over his money. McKee drew his pistol and shot one of his assailants in the back. His weapon jammed after the first shot.

The three fled. McKee chased one of them, Herbert Green, 21 years old, of 106 West 115th Street, to the janitor's apartment in the basement, where he had secreted himself under a bed. eH was arrested by Patrolman Matthews, who was attracted by the shooting. The robbers' loaded pistol was found in the hallway.

When policemen went to the 116th address they found Dalton N. Webster, 19 years old, in bed with a bullet wound in his back. He was identified by McKee as the man who pointed the pistol at him. His condition is serious.

McKee said he was spurred into quick action because he had been held up about a year ago in the same neighborhood.

22 BIG STORES MERGE; NATION-WIDE CHAIN

Form Nucleus for Vast Hahn System to Have Total Sales of $1,000,000,000 a Year.

LARGEST UNIT IS IN BOSTON

Jordan Marsh Department Store In Deal—Negotiations for More Houses Near End.

Formation of a department store chain having an aggregate sales volume of more than $1,000,000,000 a year and with units throughout the country, took concrete form yesterday with the announcement of the acquisition of twenty-two department store companies by the Hahn Department Stores, Inc., of which Lew Hahn, formerly managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, is the head. The stores acquired are among the most important in their respective sections of the country. They will be the nucleus of the system, which will be enlarged by negotiations, now nearing completion, for the addition of other department stores of first rank.

Included in the properties acquired is the largest department store in New England, the Jordan Marsh Company of Boston, founded seventy-five years ago and ranked as one of the country's great stores. The twenty-two companies, all of the capital stock of which is to be owned presently by the Hahn Department Stores, Inc., directly or indirectly, are as follows:

Jordan Marsh Company, Boston; C. F. Hovey Company, Boston; L. S. Donaldson Company, Minneapolis; the Bon Marché, Seattle; the Golden Rule, St. Paul, Minn.; the Rollman & Sons Company, Cincinnati; Herpolsheimer Company, Grand Rapids, Mich; Titche, Goettinger Company, Inc., Dallas, Texas; O'Neill & Co., Inc., Baltimore; Quackenbush Company, Paterson, N. J.; A. Polsky Company, Akron, Ohio; Morehouse-Martens Company, Columbus, Ohio; James Black Dry Goods Company, Waterloo, Iowa; Rudge & Guenzel Company, Lincoln, Neb.; the Meyers Company, Greensboro, N. C.; L. H. Field Company, Jackson, Mich.; F. N. Joslin Company, Malden, Mass.; the Muller Company, Ltd., Lake Charles, La.; A. E. Troutman Company, Greensburg, Pa.; Louis Sampler, Inc., Lebanon, Pa.; the Welber Company, Columbus, Ohio; Wright-Metzler Company, Connellsville, Pa.

Will Eclipse Other Chains.

As projected by Mr. Hahn and the Wall Street bankers interested in the plan, the system will comprise the largest organization of retail department stores in the world operating under central ownership and comparing in annual turnover with the largest units in such other major industries as the railroads and public utilities. It is designed to bring to retail department store operation the same efficiency in business and financing now afforded by utility and other chains. The new organization, in volume of business, will eclipse the largest of the present chain businesses, including such leaders as the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, F. W. Woolworth & Co. and the various tobacco chains.

In line with the tremendous expansion and consolidation program, the Hahn Department Stores, Inc., announced yesterday that it had amended its charter to provide for a large authorized capitalization, represented by $60,000,000 of preferred stock of $100 par value and 5,000,000 shares of common stock of no par value. There will be presently outstanding $22,000,000 of 6½ per cent convertible preferred stock and 1,284,000 shares of common stock. George W. Mitton, president of the Jordan Marsh Company, will be chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hahn Department Stores, Inc.

The uniting of a nation-wide group of large department stores was declared yesterday by those sponsoring the program to be significant of a new era in American retailing, since the combined companies will not only compose a coast-to-coast organization of department stores under one management, but in their amalgamation are expected to achieve for this business the same economies that for years have characterized centralized management in other industries. From the standpoint of the public the most important feature is the concessions in prices that are expected to be made possible.

Stores to Retain Identities.

Mr. Hahn said that these initial acquisitions represented many months of negotiation and that what had been created was in reality a great cooperative combination which involved an interchange of stock rather than an outright purchase of the individual stores by a holding company. Each store will continue to do business as formerly, under its own name, without disruption of the organization responsible for its success and a substantial amount of the new corporation's common stock will be owned by the member store executives.

Public financing in connection with the project is expected to be announced some time this week. The Stock Exchange house of Prince & Whitely, which originated the combination idea and has been working on the plans for months, will offer the corporation's securities to the public in association with the banking firm of Lehman Brothers, who have been active for years in the financing of some of the leading industrial concerns of the country.

In announcing the acquisition of the twenty-two companies yesterday, Mr. Hahn said:

"We believe that the creation of this nation-wide department store system is necessary in the modern scheme of economics. Certainly it may be expected to benefit the public in a large way.

"Economic conditions today demand mass distribution. Large-scale operations are necessary in order to obtain the full advantages of great buying power, as well as the type of organization which will permit of modern research work, intensive specialization and close contact with the buying markets. The purchasing power of even the largest single store, when divided among a large number of departments, is actually small. When once the local strength of the department store can be combined with the joint strength of consolidated activity, the economic advantage of such a union should favorably affect both profits and the ability to serve. The large store offers a service and affords an opportunity of high-grade standardized management that no small store can possibly achieve. Consolidated activity should supply the benefits of scientific central aid, research and supervision, as well as the power and economy of large-scale operation and the more complete utilization of the world's resource markets.

"We are confident that the organization of this system, now definitely achieved with twenty-two companies as the nucleus for a much larger system, represents a decided step forward in retailing in this country. Each store with its present organization and management preserved intact, will continue to merit the patronage of its community as it has in the past. The larger organization, will, in addition, make possible vastly more effective service on the part of each store. The benefits of the mutual association of this representative group of stores will, we expect, be effectively demonstrated by the higher degree of specialization in all departments which will be made possible and in the ability to set up personnel and machinery to deal with the growing problems of style merchandise.

"The central organization will be located in New York and will be composed of expert executives and buyers. This par of the enterprise will be concerned with the coordination of buying activities, the development of more effective methods and the expansion of the group."

Each store in the present merger, it was declared, is a recognized leader from the standpoint of sales in its own territory. The sales in these stores alone amounted to more than $108,000,000 in their last fiscal year.

Warns of Messenger Fund Fakers.

The Western Union Telegraph Company issued a warning yesterday "against unscrupulous messengers and fakers representing themselves as messengers who at about this time each year endeavor to enrich their pockets by fleecing the business public out of contributions to the mythical messengers' Christmas fund." The announcement said the company "prohibits the solicitation of Christmas gratuities by its messengers."

PLAN STRONGER DRY LAW.

Prohibition Groups to Hold Meeting in Washington Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Plans for stronger enforcement of the prohibition law will be discussed here tomorrow at a meeting of the National Legislative Conference, to be attended by representatives of several of the larger temperance organizations of the country.

Dr. A. J. Barton of Atlanta, chairman of the conference, who several months ago joined in calling a convention at Asheville, N. C., to organize anti-Smith forces in the South, said today that tomorrow's meeting would consider proposed amendments to the Volstead act.

Taking the position that Governor Smith's defeat and Mr. Hoover's election should be construed as direct evidence of the desire of the American people for stronger enforcement, several national temperance organizations, said Dr. Barton, are working on amendments which they expect to push vigorously before Congress.

"These amendments will make for better prohibition enforcement," said Dr. Barton. "The united temperance forces of America do not feel that any great number of amendments are needed. Undoubtedly both the observance of the law and the enforcement of the law will be greatly improved as the result of the election of Mr. Hoover."

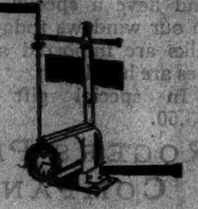
GIFTS JANET GRAY SAW AT LEWIS & CONGER

SOME folks just naturally enjoy selecting their own gifts. For them I suggest Lewis & Conger Gift Certificates. Then everybody will be happy.

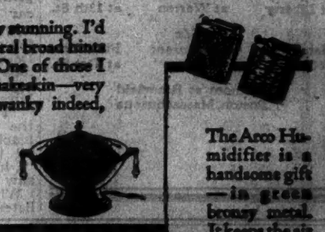
The Hostess Rack is a useful gift—a fine thing to give folks a bit crowded for closet space. The Rack has coat hanger, skirt or trouser hanger, shoe trees and pegs for other garments—it's as good, almost, as an extra closet. Finished in mahogany, ivory or walnut. $10.00

Peter and Jenny certainly do enjoy the big open fire in their living room, so for them the Canvas Wood Carrier will be exactly right. It lugs logs for the fireplace without soiling the clothes—and does it so easily. Made of sturdy canvas with strongly riveted leather handles. Folds flat when not in use. $3.00

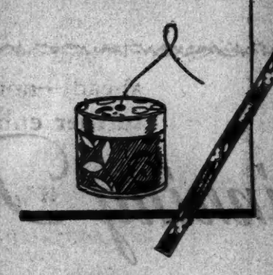


The Window Closer is new and unique. It closes the bedroom window—and if that isn't a blessing on a cold morning, what is! Fastened to the ledge, it has a spring that hooks on the window itself. Set its clock for half an hour or so before getting up time. At the appointed hour, the clock releases the spring and down slides the window quietly. $15.50

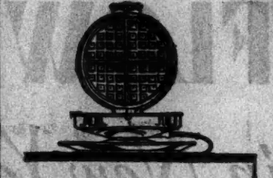
The new Clack Lighters are really stunning. I'd like one. And have dropped several broad hints to that effect to the Big Chief. One of those I looked at was covered with snakeskin—very smart. $5.00. Another, very swanky indeed, was hand finished. Its top, cleverly modern in design, was hand turned and rubbed down smooth as satin. The rest of it was covered with glossy alligator. $10.00



The Arco Humidifier is a handsome gift—in green bronzy metal. It keeps the air in a room healthfully humid. You just plug Arco into any electric socket, fill it with water and let it steam for several hours. If you like, a little Arco extract in the water will send forth a spicy pine fragrance. $15.50



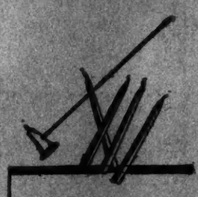
There are always those I want to remember with a little something more than a card. So I was delighted to run across two inexpensive novelties. A Twine Box, covered in gay paper, red, blue, orange, green or orchid, holds a ball of strong linen twine. $1.00 A Yardstick in a green, black or orange oilcloth cover that also holds a tape measure, and a foot rule. It's only $1.00, too.



A combination Waffle and Griddle Iron is a canny gift for a member of your family—because then some day you'll probably have a chance at the tender waffles and pancakes it turns out. One side of the aluminum grids is for waffles. Flop it over and you have a smooth surface for pancakes. Heavily nickeled frame and tray. $18.00

The Tray Table carries as a tray and then stands as a table. Just press with your fingers on tiny levers and down come the legs. Another snap of the lever and up they fold again. Finished in a jade green or a bright berry red. $18.50

No fire can be reluctant about burning with Dixie Firelighters on the job. These resin soaked briquettes set the fire blazing merrily without aid from paper or kindling. Eight dozen of them packed in their holly-wrapped package make a jolly gift—and one that isn't too expensive. $2.75



Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without candles. I've bought some Bayberry Candles—nice and fat and round. They burn with a steady, bright flare—and don't drip. Eight candles, 7½" long, $1.12

And then when it's time to snuff out the candles this silver plated Candle Snuffer will do the job with considerable eclat. The Candle Snuffer makes an original gift, especially for those who like candles on the dinner table. $3.00

We've found our No-Battery Flashlight such a treasure that we're giving several of them as gifts. It never goes "dead"—because it has no batteries—and needs none. Generates its own electricity. Just give the handle a wind or two and you have light. In green, khaki or a vivid Christmassy red. $10.00

Lazy Susan is sadly misnamed because she's really most energetic. Placed on the center of the table, she revolves the salt, pickles, salad dressing and small things like that. Really wonderful for informal home meals. I'm giving one to Hazel. Of mahogany, with glass top; 19" across. $15.50

NANKING PUBLISHES NEW TARIFF RATES

Schedule, Held Conservative, Raises Duties to Average of About 25 Per Cent.

JAPAN REJECTS DOCUMENT

Her Consul Declares It Illegal Because of Incomplete Treaty Negotiations.

By HENRY F. MISSELWITZ.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 10.—The first formal step in China's assumption of tariff autonomy was taken today when the Nationalist Government made public the schedule of duties, which provide sweeping changes in virtually every conceivable line of merchandise.

In the document, consisting of fifty-two closely typewritten pages, Nanking outlines the proposed schedule to be effective Feb. 1, 1929. While seeking to protect infant industries, the Finance Minister's plans are generally conceded not to include exorbitant rates, although articles regarded as luxuries, including wines and tobacco, are particularly severely affected.

The schedule ranges from a 7.5 per cent tariff on needles to a 59 per cent duty on cigarettes, but the mean average is not more than between 22.5 and 27.5 per cent. This, however, when compared with the old treaties allowing 5 per cent plus the recent allegedly 2.5 per cent surtax, is a revolutionary change so far as China's relations with the rest of the world are concerned. On the other hand, it is regarded as a conservative schedule.

T. V. Soong, Minister of Finance, and the other experts who drafted the document receive general credit for not seeking to stifle trade, the tariff being essentially for revenue, while marking a new epoch of equality for the Chinese Republic.

Reaction Still in Doubt.

The fly in the ointment is Japan's summary refusal to consider the schedule as legal. S. Yada, the Japanese Consul General at Shanghai, returned his copy of the document to the Nationalist authorities the same day he received it in the general distribution to foreign diplomats last Friday, he announced this morning. A spokesman for the Japanese Consulate General explained this evening that Tokio was unable to accept Nanking's action as official as long as negotiations for the new commercial treaty were unfinished.

So far as is known, Japan is the only power taking this attitude. The others are proceeding with transmission of the document through the usual diplomatic channels, including those nations which have not completed new tariff autonomy compacts. Washington's tariff autonomy treaty signed at Peking in July includes a most-favored-nation clause. Hence, in the event that Japan insists on blocking the tariff, American firms will continue to export into China under the same duties as the Japanese, which would be the same as the old "unequal" 5 per cent plus 2.5 per cent schedule.

The Japanese are inclined to view the promulgation of the tariff schedule before settlement of the commercial treaty negotiations as an act seeking to force Tokio's hand. Her summary rejection of the schedule was expected, but the reaction here and abroad is most conjectural.

Important Changes Listed.

The tariff commences with piece-goods, which proved to be the most difficult to deal with in intelligent fashion and abridged form, as every imaginary type of cloth is dealt with in fifteen pages. The highest duty is 27.5 per cent. While medium-priced goods average 10 per cent, groceries range about 17.5 per cent and fresh fruits 10 per cent. Boots and shoes are 22.5 per cent and motor cars are 10 per cent, which is the present rate.

Other important changes include lace, 12.5 per cent; silk, 22.5; iron and steel, about 10 per cent; canned goods, 17.5; cereals and flour free, unless packed in tins; potatoes, 10; other vegetables, 7.5; tobacco manufacturing machinery, 22.5, and tobacco sundries, 22.5. A special clause states that cigarettes and cigars are subject to a further excise of 32.5, bringing tobacco products up to among the highest. Leather products are 12.5 to 17.5; hair, feathers, wool and manufactures thereof, 22.5; timber, an average of 10 per cent; ammunition for sporting purposes, 22.5, and otherwise, 27.5; motor vehicles with seats for not less than twelve persons, or complete trucks, 12.5; motor cars and motorcycles, 22.5; bicycles, 12.5; living animals, 10 per cent; perfumery, 22.5; clocks and watches, 22.5; hosiery, 17.5; railway supplies and locomotives, 10 per cent; silverware, 27.5, and typewriters, 12.5.

WHY FREE OF COST. . . .

Every cent contributed to the Hundred Neediest Cases goes to those in want; there are no deductions of any kind. The New York Times, which assumes the entire cost of collection, feels itself fully compensated in the knowledge that it is doing a public service. The seven organizations that administer the fund without charge and with the most scrupulous supervision, consider themselves fully repaid in the spreading of the Gospel of Giving, which the publication of the cases brings about. That is why functions which would ordinarily cost many thousands of dollars are performed without any charge whatever.

NEW FAST PLANES PRODUCED FOR NAVY

ENGINES ALL AIR-COOLED

Bureau Chief in Report Urges More Carriers With the Fleet as Prime Need of Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The needs of the United States Navy in the development of its aviation program, the work that has been accomplished during the past year in all branches of aeronautics and special developments that are being studied by the naval engineers are emphasized in the annual report of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, to the Secretary of the Navy.

"Naval aviation is definitely committed to the air-cooled engine," he writes. "This appears to be sound policy and it appears likely that water-cooled engines will soon be out of the picture as far as naval aviation is concerned. Nevertheless, their development both in this country and abroad is being closely followed.

"The transition from wood and wire airplanes to metal airplanes has gone on rapidly, with the result that very few wood and wire jobs are left in the naval service today."

Adopting Metal Propellers.

In line with the general turning to metal for airplane construction, Admiral Moffett announces that the use of wooden propellers has been definitely abandoned in the naval service because of the marked progress in the past year in the design and construction of metal propellers, resulting in increased power efficiency.

In discussing specific motors, Admiral Moffett disclosed that for naval purposes the newer motors of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, the J6 series of the Whirlwind and the Cyclone, had been stepped up in horsepower beyond those produced for commercial planes. The new motors of five, seven and nine cylinders, respectively, show a horsepower at the navy rating of 160, 250 and 350. Likewise the Pratt & Whitney nine-cylinder Wasp has been pushed from 410 to 450 horsepower, and it is stated that the horsepower of this motor may be again raised within a few months.

New Fighting Planes Ordered.

In the heavier-than-air field, the report states that deliveries of high-altitude fighting planes are beginning from the works of the Boeing Company at Seattle, and the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation at Garden City. In addition to these an order has been placed for a single-seater fighter employing a novel fuselage construction with water-tight, all-metal monocoque or single shell from the Hall Aluminum Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo.

"Deliveries of two-seater observation class planes are under way from the Chance Vought Corporation and at this time are going ahead at the rate of about fifteen planes a month," the report continues. "This is a highly satisfactory design developed by the Vought Corporation and holds four world's records for altitude and speed."

Toward the end of the report Admiral Moffett urges that the navy acquire the entire area used now by both the army and navy for flying at Ford Island, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and at North Island, San Diego, Cal. The need for aircraft repair ships is stressed and Admiral Moffett points out that because of the inadequate facilities in Asia for the repair of aircraft it is necessary now to send aircraft from the Asiatic stations to Hawaii for overhaul.

"This situation is uneconomical and undesirable at present," he writes, "and will become increasingly more acute as additional aircraft are sent out under the 1,000-plane program."

The report concludes:

"This bureau cannot too strongly recommend the addition of aircraft carriers to the fleet. The bureau believes it is a matter of immediate importance that the necessary steps be taken to provide for the remainder of the carrier tonnage. The most urgent matter in hand during the next session of Congress is the passage of the new construction bill, which carries with it one carrier of a size and design approved by the department."

Yonkers Mayor Invites All To Confide Woes to His Aide

Any grieved citizens of Yonkers will be able hereafter to confide their civic woes to John E. Hoy of 20 Cornell Avenue, whom Mayor John Fogarty appointed yesterday as his confidential secretary and grievance-hearer-in-chief.

Complaints about the operation of the various city departments or about the behavior of city employes are to be lodged in the sympathetic bosom of Mr. Hoy, who in turn will seek to adjust matters by conferring with the departments, executives or employes in question.

Mr. Hoy also will accept suggestions designed to further the common weal.

ACHELIS SUIT CONTINUES.

Mrs. Wagner's Brother Testifies He Knew of Agreement for Legacy.

Trial of the suit brought against the estate of Fritz Achelis, hard rubber manufacturer, by Mrs. Mariana Wagner for $90,000 allegedly due her under an agreement which, she says, Mr. Achelis entered into to pay her $300 a month for the support of herself and her three children, continued yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Valente. Mr. Achelis's will, disposing of approximately $4,000,000, made no provision for Mrs. Wagner.

Louis Wagner of Grand Rapids, Mich., a brother of the plaintiff, testified that he had known of the alleged agreement in 1922, when he visited Mrs. Wagner here. Mr. Achelis had told of furnishing clothing and household effects to Mrs. Wagner and her children, the witness said, and had declared that he intended to provide for her in his will. The provision, according to Mr. Wagner, was to take the form of a trust fund.

Counsel for the Achelis estate read into the record an affidavit by Mrs. Wagner, dated June 7 last, declaring that Stanley H. Renton, secretary to Mr. Achelis, was the only person who knew of the alleged agreement.

Mrs. Wagner was cross-examined by counsel for the estate on her statements made last week under direct examination. Justice Valente prevented her answering questions concerning a $50,000 suit she was said to have brought against Hugo Lewin in Pittsburgh.

BATTLESHIP POLICY ATTACKED IN SENATE

WANTS MORE FOR AIR ARM

Demand for Debate Opposed by Hale, Who Presses Measure to Remodel Two Craft.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The naval policy of the United States with respect to construction and modernization of battleships was attacked in the Senate today as "reactionary" by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, who demanded an opportunity to discuss it in connection with appropriations and the pending cruiser bill.

The criticism came when Senator Hale, chairman of the naval commitee, called up a bill providing for gun elevation and general modernization of the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona, under a general policy inaugurated by Congress in 1924. The cost for these two ships would not exceed $14,000,000.

Hale Objects to Suggestion.

Mr. King asked that the bill go over until later. Chairman Hale explained that it was desired to dispose of the measure at this time so that the appropriations could be inserted in the naval supply bill. Mr. King suggested that the bill be considered in connection with the cruiser measure. Senator Hale objected.

"There is no connection of any kind between this measure and the bill for an addition to the navy," Mr. Hale said. "This is simply for the purpose of altering and repairing some of our older battleships, and merely in line with what we have been doing in the past few years."

"I know that," Senator King replied, "but we wish to discuss the naval policy of the United States."

"I take it, the Senator from Utah does not mean to give up the navy altogether," said Senator Hale.

"There is no such suggestion," Mr. King continued, "but, as the Senator from Maine knows, I have been very much opposed to the reactionary policy of some persons connected with the navy when they insist upon building eighteen naval ships at a cost of more than a billion dollars, instead of building airplanes, airplane carriers and submarines.

Insists on Discussion of Policy.

"I think some policies of the Navy Department are not consistent with an up-to-date, modern, scientific navy," Senator King added.

"We have a navy of eighteen battleships," Mr. Hale replied. "We have already fixed up eight of them, providing deck protection and 'blisters' and a few other things in connection with them. I hope the Senator will allow this bill to go through. I repeat that it is merely carrying out the policy we have already inaugurated."

"I shall be very glad," Mr. King replied, "to join with the Senator in taking up this bill when we can have a little discussion of it."

The alterations contemplated for the Pennsylvania and Arizona, the oldest oil-burning battleships in the fleet, include the addition of "blisters" to their hulls to afford better defense against submarines.

Additional second-deck protection is contemplated, as well as reboilering, elevation of the turret guns, modernization of the fire control systems, airplane launching and handling devices, installation of a 5-inch battery in place of the present 3-inch anti-aircraft batteries, and the raising of certain secondary battery guns from the second to the main deck.

NAVAL BILLS APPROVED.

House Committee Increases Amounts for Modernizing Battleships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The House Naval Committee today approved three bills to authorize increases in appropriations for construction and repairs to battleships and submarines.

The measures, all sponsored by Chairman Britten, include one authorizing an increase from $13,150,000 to $13,600,000 in the cost of modernizing the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada; another for a $50,000 increase to $300,000 already authorized for alterations to the battleship California, and a third bill to increase the limitation of $5,300,000 placed on each of two fleet submarines being constructed to $6,650,000 each.

Another bill approved by the committee would abolish the system of promoting marine corps officers by seniority and adopt the selection method used by the navy. It would provide for five instead of three Major Generals; and five instead of six Brigadier Generals as at present, and also would increase the number of Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels and Majors in the corps. The number of Captains and Lieutenants, however, would be materially reduced under the measure.

UPHOLDS SCHOOL LAW HERE

Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal of Brooklyn Law Student.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The New York school case docketed as Braunstein against the People of the State of New York, was formally dismissed today by the United States Supreme Court. The case involves Elias Braunstein, 16-year-old Brooklyn law student, who now will be obliged to give up his daytime job in a law office and attend continuation school as required by the State statute.

The case was brought by Abraham Braunstein, who lives at 503 Vermont Avenue, Brooklyn, and who attacked the validity of the law as applied to his son. The State courts upheld the law, and dismissal of the case by the high court here means that the decisions below will stand. The court last week indicated its purpose not to consider the case because the Federal question involved was not properly presented. It is understood that counsel for Braunstein will seek a rehearing.

BUTLER SEES MODEL IN CANADIAN BORDER

Tells Pilgrims Old World Could Follow Example of Our Unarmed Frontier.

MASSEY GUEST AT DINNER

Would Have All Statesmen Take Holiday for Peace—Toast to King Drunk.

A toast to King George, proposed with expressions of sympathy on behalf of the American people with the British people in the illness of their sovereign, was the symbol of Anglo-American friendship expressed last night at a dinner given by the Pilgrims of the United States in honor of Vincent Massey, first Canadian Minister at Washington, and a group of other distinguished Canadians. The dinner was held at the Waldorf and was attended by about 500 leading American and Canadian residents of New York.

The toast was offered by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and president of the Pilgrims of the United States, who was the toastmaster, following the usual toast to the President of the United States. Dr. Butler asserted that the American people shared the deep anxiety of the British people over the King's condition and their hope for his restoration to health. The diners drank the toast standing, while an orchestra played "God Save the King."

The guests of honor all expressed their appreciation as Canadians and as British subjects for this mark of friendship and good will. Like Dr. Butler, they described the peaceful relations which have existed for more than a century between the United States and Canada across an undefended, unfortified boundary line as an example in international relations to the nations of the Old World and as a good omen for future world peace.

The Canadian speakers pictured Canada as a link binding the United States and Great Britain for peace, and as an interpreter of the ideals of this country and of the British Commonwealth of nations to one another. There was no mention of the present Anglo-American naval question, but it made itself felt as an undercurrent, as each speaker insisted that nothing should be allowed to disturb the friendly relations of the English-speaking peoples.

Both the English and French civilizations, which have mingled in the development of Canada, were represented among the guests of honor. Besides Mr. Massey, the speakers were Minister of Justice Ernest Lapointe of the Dominion of Canada, Prime Minister Louis Alexandre Taschereau of the Province of Quebec and the Rev. Dr. Henry J. Cody, rector of St. Paul's Church, Toronto.

One of the Canadian speakers, Dr. Cody, who referred to the King as "our loyal, royal, indefatigable George," said the British people throughout the world were all the more sympathetic to him in his illness because he had contracted it by standing bareheaded on a raw November day to pay tribute to the British war dead on Armistice Day before the Cenotaph in Whitehall.

Others among the guests of honor were Prime Minister Edgar Nelson Rhodes of Nova Scotia, Justice William Renwick Riddell, Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto; Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, general manager of the Bank of Montreal; Sir Joseph W. Flavelle, chairman of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and the Hon. Newtown W. Rowell.

Dr. Butler Hails Canada.

"Of all the notable voyages upon which the Pilgrims have embarked in their stout ship Good Fellowship and Good Will," said Dr. Butler, "none has been more important or more significant than that on which we set out tonight. We hail with heartiness and true affection the Dominion of Canada and her people, strong right arm of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Emphasizing how much alike had been the problems of Canada and the United States, Dr. Butler went on:

"If the line which separates the territory of the two nations exists only on the map, so the distinction which marks their chief characteristics exists only in name. They are alike, first and chiefly, in tracing their legal and political institutions to a common origin. It was a shrewd remark of Disraeli's made in debate in the House of Commons sixty-five years ago, that 'Colonies do not cease to be colonies because they are independent.' Are we not all in this sense colonies of England, that nation whose people have since the days of Alfred more clearly understood the meaning of liberty and have made greater contributions to the upbuilding and support of liberty—civil, political, religious, intellectual—than all the rest of the world besides?"

"The well known remark of Canning may provoke us to thought tonight. 'I called the New World into existence to redress the balance of the Old,' said he. May not the time come, is it not now here, when this New World may offer to its elder brothers across the sea, of whatever race and of whatever tongue, the happy and fortunate example of a full century of unarmed and unsuspicious peace? We are so familiar, all of us, with the story of our long and undefended boundary line that we do not realize even now how far it is in advance of the common practice among nations, whatever their professions, their commitments or their formal agreements. This New World of ours, the Dominion of Canada and the United States, must be up and doing just now, not to redress the balance of the Old, but to call upon the Old to follow in the path which this New World has opened toward international cooperation, international friendship and unsuspecting international peace.

Common Characteristics.

"Discussion and the rule of reason through the establishment and interpretation of law are, it may safely be said, the two chief characteristics that the Dominion of Canada and the United States have in common. Government by discussion has many vexations. It reveals unexpected ignorance, unsuspected bigotry and unwelcome intolerance, but so far as the imperfect life of man has gone, nothing better has yet been devised.

"The British Commonwealth of Nations is the most impressive political structure that the world has seen since the fall of the Roman Empire. It bears a literally huge responsibility in all parts of the world for good order, for peace and for promoting the happiness and satisfactions of men. It deserves, and it shall have, the admiration and the friendly cooperation of the American people, manifested in first instance through their affectionate regard for their splendid neighbors to the north; and their respect and admiration for the Dominion of Canada and all its people."

Mr. Massey said that diplomacy between the United States and Canada had after all a simple technique, or perhaps no technique at all. In all dealings with each other each nation has learned to assume on the part of its neighbor just the same common sense and spirit of give and take which it expects of its own citizens.

"Our mutual frontier is proof enough of this," he said. "There are fifty-eight treaties and conventions at present in force which govern our relations under many heads. Nine permanent international bodies are charged with the supervision of certain international interests, and if this mechanism did not operate so smoothly and efficiently the public would be more aware of its existence.

"Mutual confidence is the principle of our own common boundary. How have we achieved it? There is no secret formula, but there is one reason, a simple, practical, even obvious reason, for our 'friendship and good neighborhood.' To the old adage 'Know thyself' we had added another, 'Know thy neighbor.' We know one another here in North America and from that mutual knowledge flow all the mutual confidence and understanding which underlie our relations. We must, of course, have knowledge, not half-knowledge.

"It cannot be said that the friendship which flows between us is due to any lack of individuality on the part of the two neighbors. There are vigorous national personalities on both sides of the line. They have a cousinly resemblance which is not incompatible with the special characteristics which each possesses along with the differences in background, in size and in age which mark us.

"We agree on fundamentals and yet we have learned to recognize our differences. One is as important as the other. Among the American and Birtish peoples the world over there is a great heritage of common traditions, such as our literature, law and our historical background, but the strongest common characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon, let us never forget, is his incorrigible individualism. It is that which is in the warp and woof of every Anglo-Saxon community. There is no virtue in uniformity of outlook—there is always a danger in exaggerating similarity.

"There have never been so many human beings thinking of peace and working for peace as now. That in itself should be our encouragement. An increasing number of men and women of all countries are engaged, as individuals or in corporate bodies like this, in an endeavor to bridge the 'unplumbed, salt-estranging sea' of ignorance and prejudice. The name of your great society, the Pilgrims, suggests the nature of the movement the world over. No great faith has been without its pilgrimage. The objective may have been Benares or Jerusalem or Mecca or Rome or your own Plymouth Rock, but in every case there was a goal, a movement toward it, and comradeship by the way.

Minister Massey urged more personal contacts between government officials as a means of furthering international harmony.

"I hope it is not too frivolous to suggest," he said, "that if one month a year by universal consent was declared a closed season for all cabinets, councils and legislatures, and that for this period the responsible statesmen were induced to foregather and together take up the fishing rod and golf club with not a whisper of 'shop,' the harmony of the world might be enhanced. It would most certainly not be impared."

Mr. Taschereau said that although there is a border line between this country and Canada, he found that "it is rather a link connecting both countries in so many fields that we may be classed in the family of happy neighbors." Canada, he continued, was proud of her splendid relations with her powerful neighbor.

"Troubles and differences between nations," he continued, "are generally neither sought nor desired; they are the outcome of economic problems over which, after they have reached a certain stage, men and governments have little control. May I mention overproduction, lack of markets, overpopulation, imperialistic aims, a totally unequal distribution of wealth?

"Any of these factors may become a disturbing element. Is it possible to guard against them and thus continue this long and peaceful era with which we have been blessed? I have no hesitation in answering in the affirmative, if the spirit of goodwill and mutual friendship which has prevailed in the past still remains with us.

"To make this spirit practical and lasting, let us know each other better, have amicable intercourse, each mind his own business, respect the views, traditions and national aims of the other, allow each to be master in his own house with the door wide open to the transient neighbor and avoid such understandings which often lead to misunderstandings."

Deep Roots of Friendship.

Minister of Justice Lapointe said that friendship between the United States and Canada had deep roots, because the settlers of new France and new England had been good neighborg in America for more than three centuries.

"The long peace between the United States and Canada," he continued, "is responsible to a large extent for the prosperity of both countries. If we want to preserve prosperity in both our countries, we must preserve peace."

He said that the success of the undefended frontier principle between the United States and Canada "must reveal to the rest of the world the possibility of continuous frontiers with continuous friendship."

"Such peace and friendship," he added, "sand as proofs that militarism is poor Christianity and even poor business."

"What Canada and the United States can do, all the other countries can do," he said.

Mr. Lapointe asserted that peace between this country and Canada had been strengthened by the appointment of Mr. Massey at Washington and of Minister Phillips to represent the United States at Ottawa.

"Canada is well qualified to render the service of cooperation for peace between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations," he went on, "and cooperation for peace between the United States and the British nations is necessary for the peace of the world. If they say there is no war, there will be no war. It is my cherished hope as a Canadian that my country may be the link by which the hearts of the United States and the British Commonwealth may be bound, and that she may act as the interpreter of their respective sentiments, feelings and ideas."

Dr. Cody said that millions of English-speaking people on both sides of the water had vowed that "no matter what happens, Great Britain and the United States shall never fall out, for that would be enduring disgrace." The more than a century of peace between the United States and Canada and between the United States and Great Britain, he went on, were an earnest of future international peace. If democracy is to survive, he said, the British Empire and the United States must walk hand in hand.

Dr. Butler read a message from the Governor General of Canada complimenting the Pilgrims on their work in furthering confidence, trust and understanding between the American and British peoples.

254 ON CELTIC SAVED AFTER SHE HIT ROCKS

ready for lowering a few minutes after the smash.

The glasses and ornaments in the smoking room were strewn around the floor and the panelings in the doors were smashed, but amid all the din and excitement one steward was heard to say calmly:

"Gentlemen, why not get on your life belts?"

"We did so," said one passenger, "and went up on deck, but realizing there was no immediate danger we went below again and continued our rubber of bridge."

The effort to refloat the Celtic at high tide failed but will be renewed tomorrow.

A Board of Trade inquiry into the accident will be opened at Queenstown tomorrow.

Seas Break Over Bows.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Dec. 10 (AP).—The White Star liner Celtic, one-time queen of the ocean, lay tonight like a stricken monster of the deep on a ledge of rocks at an exposed point at the entrance of Cork Harbor.

There was a huge hole in her bottom and a big rent in her side while twelve feet of water was in some of her compartments.

The liner, which left New York on Dec. 1, and later called at Boston, went on the rocks during a gale early this morning and after fourteen hours of frantic efforts to refloat her, she was still clutched by the group of rocks known as the Where Celtic Grounded.

Cow and Calf off Roche's Point lighthouse.

Efforts to haul the Celtic off the rocks were abandoned tonight, but will be renewed at high tide tomorrow afternoon in the presence of White Star officials and the insurance authorities.

Temporary Repairs Made.

While tugs stood by, the work of patching up the breaches in her hull and of pumping out the water within her went on in hopes of effecting temporary repairs sufficiently strong to withstand the seas until tomorrow's salvage attempts.

The Celtic was carried on the rocks at Roche's Point at 5:40 o'clock this morning by a seventy-mile gale. The storm was so violent that the pilot was not able to get aboard the big ship, which was calling at her first port since leaving Boston.

The Celtic's captain, seizing a chance during a lull in the dark hours of this morning, was almost in safe waters when a violent gust swung the liner upon the rocks with a crash which shook the ship fearfully. The worst shock was in the engine-room, and some of the men there had narrow escapes.

John Keown, one of the crew of the Vestris, who was en route to his home in Liverpool, remarked that it was exactly four weeks ago today that he was shipwrecked on the Vestris and was saved after having been fifteen hours in the water.

He was in his berth when the Celtic struck, and he heard some women screaming, but there was really no panic. Everything soon went on in quiet fashion and breakfast was served to the passengers aboard before they were transferred in the tender Failte, which is the Irish word meaning, "welcome."

As the passengers were landing, the destroyer Sesame left her moorings opposite the landing quay and went out to render any assistance that might be needed.

When the vessel was forced by wind and sea on to a rocky ground known as the Cow and Calf, most of the passengers were abed, except about seventy, who had planned to land at Cobh. But almost all aboard knew that something had happened. At times the liner rocked from side to side, and it was apparent to all that she had stopped her forward motion. Soon it was learned that she was stuck hard and fast and was rapidly taking in water in some of the holds. Nevertheless, excellent order prevailed.

Lifeboats in Readiness.

The passengers saved their hand baggage for the most part, but their heavy baggage is yet to be brought ashore. The Celtic had huge quantities of Christmas mail aboard, with more than 700 sacks for Ireland alone.

One of the passengers, John McManus, going home to Arigna, Roscommon, said that the men behaved splendidly as a whole and insisted on the women and children being cared for first.

The lifeboats were swung out in readiness, the crew was lined up to man the boats and the passengers were marshaled to their proper posts. Then word was passed that the vessel was in no immediate danger and the breakfast gong rang out its signal.

A few minutes later the passengers sat down and soon after were taken off on the tenders.

C. W. Wilson of Toronto was almost thrown out of his berth by the force of the impact. Like many more, Wilson was only partly dressed when he came ashore.

Arthur Packson of Trenton, N. J., en route to Liverpool, was on deck to get his first glimpse of a pilot boarding a big liner at sea. Instead, he was almost thrown off his feet in the blinding rain and wind as the Celtic crashed.

F. Hamilton of New York said that there was little or no excitement aboard the Celtic and that the work of disembarking progressed quietly and efficiently.

B. Sheehan, a saloon passenger who was on deck, said that rocks loomed suddenly out of the mist. They appeared so close that it seemed to him as though he could have stretched out his hand and touched them.

"Three yards more to the westward and there would have been no chance of saving the Celtic," he declared. "The waves were dashing wildly at times, and a furious wind was accompanied by a heavy rain."

Passengers Continue Trip.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Dec. 10.—Most of the passengers from the liner Celtic arrived here tonight. About 200 of them crossed to Holyhead by mail boat, while the Vestris survivors and a few others went by British and Irish lines to Liverpool.

The captain of the liner and a skeleton crew are still aboard. Attempts to float the ship tonight failed. The captain of the Celtic is said to have broken down when the ship struck.

$1,150,000 Is Insurance Value.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Marine underwriters here took a serious view today of the accident to the White Star liner Celtic, which occurred off Queenstown. They were afraid the perishable cargo would be ruined by water and that the salvage costs would run into thousands of dollars.

At Lloyd's the reinsurance rate against the total loss of the Celtic has been placed at 26, which means the odds are about three to one that she can be refloated. The whole ship, including the machinery, is valued at $1,150,000 for insurance purposes.

"If the late reports are correct there must be a lot of water in the ship's hold," said one marine underwriter. "The salvage bill is evidently going to be heavy."

The White Star Line had no information as to the extent of the damage.

CELTIC SURVIVED TORPEDOES.

Vessel, Built in 1901, Was Saved by Submarine's Mistake.

The Celtic was built in 1901 and was the first of the White Star "big four," as the liners were named by the company. She was followed by the Cedric, the Baltic and the Adriatic. She is 21,170 gross tonnage, 680 feet 9 inches long, 75 feet 3 inches beam, with twin screw engines, which give the vessel an average speed of seventeen knots.

The Celtic was intended to be an intermediate steamer and to carry first class passengers at a lower rate than the Oceanic, Majestic and Teutonic of that period. She was the largest ship afloat then and immediately became popular with passengers. Andrew Carnegie, Colonel William C. Whitney, the late J. Pierpont Morgan and many other prominent Americans traveled by her as well as the late Joseph Pulitzer, who had the doors of one of the suites on the "B" deck packed with cork so that he could rest undisturbed by any noise.

In February, 1902, the Celtic went on a cruise to the Mediterranean under charter to Frank C. Clark with 835 American tourists on board and she was on view at every port from Madeira to Alexandria.

She had many adventures during the World War, the most serious being when she was torpedoed off the Isle of Man during the war. If the German submarine commander had not made a mistake the liner would not have been in the White Star service at the present time. He put one torpedo into the liner on the starboard side by the engine room and the vessel began to list rapidly and fill with water. Not being content with one torpedo the submarine commander went round to the port side and fired another, which straightened the Celtic up and she drifted into shallow water and sank on an even keel.

In addition to carrying troops, ammunition and supplies during the war the Celtic also carried $25,000,000 in American securities from the Bank of England to New York.

At an earlier period in the war the vessel hit a mine in the North Atlantic, off the coast of Ireland, but it did very little damage to her hull, which was easily repaired.

Two years ago she was in a slight collision with the American freighter Anaconda off the Nantucket Lightship in a thick fog. The Celtic had some of her plates damaged above the water line, but made the harbor of Boston, where she was bound, without any difficulty.

Captain Gilbert Barry, the master of the ship, is one of the most careful navigators in the North Atlantic trade and is due to retire at the end of 1929, when he will have reached the age limit of 60.

Americans Among Passengers.

The list of cabin passengers who sailed from New York and Boston aboard the Celtic included the following:

Albert E. Dixon of New York, Mrs. F. H. Emerson of Forest Hills, Joseph Ferguson of Rye, N. Y.; Mrs. Ferguson of Rye, N. Y.; Mrs. Frederick Kerr of New York, Mrs. M. T. Kirstein of Woodside, N. Y.; Hon. J. J. McGowan of New York and William Smellie of New York.

Among the third class passengers were the following: Edward Chelford, Patrick Callaghan, Anton Larsen, Nora Malone, Mr. and Mrs. Muldoon, Cavin Malone, Patrick J. Killeen, John Grant, Katherine Sullivan, Daniel Sullivan, Cornelius Kielty, Michael Heffernan, William Bushton, Mary Lowey, Margaret Roran, John P. Gilligan, Austin Thomas, John McNeill, B. Sullivan, J. Grainger, A. Knill, P. Hudson and N. Jones, all of New York; also Silas Hampson and Arthur Adamson of Brooklyn. Also listed were: John Threlfall of Ridgewood, N. J.; Kiernaa Carroll, 152 Sheppard Avenue, Newark; Margaret McGuire of Newark, Arthur D. and Mrs. Sarah Jackson, 1,010 Hamilton Avenue, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. Mary Killicorn, 92 Covert Street, Brooklyn; Mrs. Florence Warner, 478 Avon Avenue, Newark; A. Muldoon, 633 Columbus Avenue, New York; Nathaniel Farquhar, 364 Maple Street, Arlington, N. J., and Peter Nolan of Paterson, N. J.

PUPILS GET TYPEWRITERS.

Eighty Machines Installed by Horace Mann School.

Eighty typewriters for use by pupils in the elementary grades have been installed in the Horace Mann School of Teachers College and if they are found to be an aid in the children's studies they will become a permanent part of the school's educational equipment. Dr. Rollo G. Reynolds, principal, said yesterday that pupils of five and six years of age are already learning to manipulate the new machines and have taken unusual interest in them, spending much of their time in keyboard practice.

Dr. Reynolds explained that the main object of this experiment, which is the first of its kind to be tried in this country, is to determine whether the typewriter can be successfully used as a teaching device. The procedure and use of the machines in classes are left to the individual teachers, who will report their findings after the system has been tried during an adequate period of time.

"The typewriters have already helped some of the pupils in spelling," Dr. Reynolds said.

Music.... the Soul of Christmas cheer

The Panatrope... a synonym for Good Music

What an incomparable Christmas gift is The Panatrope! Not alone because music is closely entwined with the spirit of the Yuletide. Nor because The Panatrope—in combination with the Radiola or alone—is the musical miracle of the time... its tone re-creation so incredibly living.

But because The Panatrope's pleasure is so lasting... its joys so lingering. The Panatrope for Christmas... there is no finer gift. It will surely become a permanently prized possession. See and hear this treasure chest of matchless music!

THIS ONE GREAT MARKET CAN BE THOROUGHLY COVERED WITH ONE NEWSPAPER

SALES opportunities today lie in metropolitan markets: Where a city block consumes more than a rural community; where consignments are in carloads, not in parcel post packages;

Where salesmen travel from street to street, instead of from county to county.

It is a problem of delivering goods at a minimum cost, and of selling with least expense.

Analyze all of America's great city markets, and you find that in Philadelphia one newspaper reaches nearly every home.

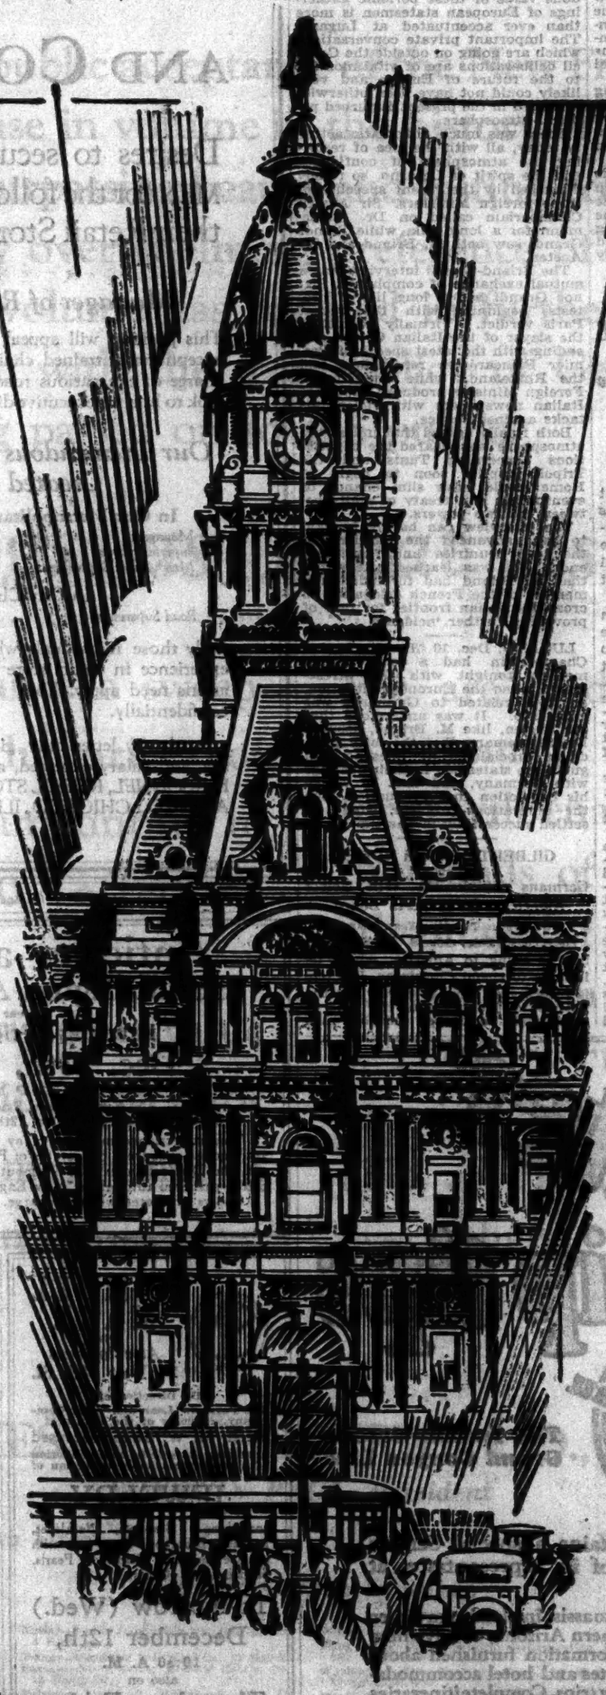
In city and suburbs, in mansion and modest home—The Evening Bulletin is the newspaper believed in by nearly every one.

Go deeper than the mere circulation total: Study its history, its character; how it was obtained, and how quickly has it grown.

You will find that these are the facts: In 1895,

A Careful, Unhurried Growth

The Bulletin has grown through the years to its present more-than-half-million total without premium or contest. Solely on its worth as a fine newspaper; on its ability to win and hold readers by editorial merit and accurate news treatment. Nearly everybody reads The Bulletin. In city and suburbs, it far exceeds any other newspaper's circulation; is one of the great newspapers of America.



The Bulletin came to its present owners with a few thousands of readers. Today the net paid daily average circulation is 549,148 copies.

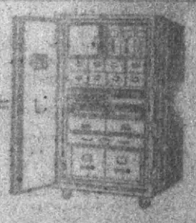
Nearly a generation of effort devoted to its building . . . Devoted to the winning of reader confidence by printing a newspaper worthy of that confidence.

Without bold headlines; without sensational writing; without tricks to win readers—such as premiums, prizes and contests.

Circulation is an elusive commodity to buy. Reader confidence is the asset upon which the advertiser can depend to produce sales.

Here is a circulation built upon reader confidence...concentrated in America's third largest market. . . thoroughly covering the city and suburbs. Here is one metropolitan trading center offering "one newspaper" coverage.

Philadelphia . . . Three million people . . . Six hundred thousand homes: A unique opportunity for effective advertising and selling today.



The Recognition of Leadership

Philadelphia business men place more individual retail store advertisements in The Bulletin than in all other Philadelphia newspapers combined. The Bulletin also carries more local and national display lineage and more individual classified advertisements than any other Philadelphia newspaper. CRITICS IN ENGLAND RAP CHAMBERLAIN

His Apparent Linking of Rhine Occupation and Reparations Is Hotly Assailed.

HE IS CALLED PRO FRENCH

But Foreign Ministers' Defenders Say He Is Trying to Bring France and Germany Together.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The reports of friendly conversations at Lugano between Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann, indicating that the spirit of Locarno still may live despite recent shocks to its vigor, failed today to stem the new tide of criticism rising against the British Foreign Minister at home.

The government's policy of keeping the British troops longer in the Rhineland and apparently linking occupation of that territory with the question of a reparations settlement according to French desires, is increasingly unpopular here, though defended stoutly by the Ministry's closest friends.

It was challenged by the Opposition both in the House of Lords and the House of Commons today and drew forth another scorching indictment from The Manchester Guardian and—more significant from the standpoint of popular feeling—was condemned in Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express like this:

"The strength and spirits of the British Foreign Secretary must be weighed down by the knowledge that his European policy is so strongly opposed by the people of his own country. That is his tragedy—but it is also ours.

"If he persists at this meeting of the League Council in his one-sided championship of everything French, if he continues to maintain that reparations and evacuation are indissolubly linked and that we cannot leave the Rhineland until all the terms of the Treaty of Versailles have been carried out to the last letter, then he will not be speaking for Britain, and the outside world should know it."

Friends Defend Sir Austen.

In all fairness the friends of Sir Austen retort that the Foreign Minister is not so pro-French as his foes allege. He has reiterated the British desire to bring all the troops of the former allies out of the Rhineland as soon as possible. The legal opinion Sir Austen cited that Germany was not necessarily entitled under the Treaty of Versailles to evacuation was to free the government of aspersions cast by Lloyd George and others here that Britain was not living up to the treaty in keeping her troops beside those of France on the Rhine.

"Two things ought to be kept in mind," say friends of the government, "concerning the British attitude in this matter. The first is that isolated withdrawal by any one party of occupation would be worse than useless. The second is that the very nature of the Rhineland occupation and reparations questions superficially sets up again the old alignment between victors and vanquished that held before Locarno.

"In making the Treaty of Versailles we made some agreements with France about occupation and refused to make others. If France insists on strict legal enforcement of the treaty to its ultimate terms we are bound by every consideration of honor and policy not to recede from whatever contract we have made."

What Sir Austen is trying to do, his apologists insist, is "to play the part of honest broker" in bringing France and Germany together in the bargaining they are engaged in. That rôle cannot please the popular mind at home, since England is increasingly friendly to Germany and distrustful of France. But it is the only rôle he can play under the obligations of Locarno.

The Manchester Guardian renewed its attack on Rhineland occupation today, asking whether the Protocol of 1919, signed by Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Wilson, which forecast evacuation of the Rhineland when Germany had given proofs of her good will, was to be treated longer as "a scrap of paper."

"Narrow, legalistic hair-splitting will not suffice," it says. "The fact remains that the former Allies are morally bound to withdraw their troops."

It insists that the alliance which faced Germany during the war came to an end at Locarno and that to remain on the Rhine further is merely "to take an unfair advantage, which the stronger party can always take over the weaker in the execution of an ambiguous, carelessly worded contract."

GREEK DEBT MEASURE APPROVED BY HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The next to the last of the debt settlements growing out of America's wartime loans to Europe was disposed of by the House today when, by a vote of 170 to 155, the agreement negotiated with the Greek Government was approved.

The proposal drew stiff opposition from Democratic members, who lined up almost as a unit. The bill now goes to the Senate. The debt settlement measure for Austria will be considered by the House tomorrow.

The Greek measure was approved after the House had declined, by a vote of 119 to 117, an amendment proposed by Representative Garner, Democrat, of Texas, to strike out the provisions for a loan of $12,167,000.

The plan involves the advance to Greece by the United States of $12,167,000, which that country would repay over a period of twenty years with interest at 4 per cent. It also would provide that the existing indebtedness of Greece to the United States, totaling $19,659,836, including interest, be funded over a period of sixty-two years.

Trinidad Oil Well Fire Kills 13.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 10 (AP).—Thirteen persons have been killed and three injured in an oil well fire adjacent to the centre of the Trinidad oil fields. Two wells and three tanks were ablaze in the fire, which started yesterday. The damage could not be estimated, as dense smoke surrounded the scene.

STRIVE TO MEET US ON NAVY AND COURT

which should know that Argentina will soon return to the League was pleasant news to those who have the organization's interest at heart, but above all is the question which has arisen as to whether the move presages much closer cooperation between the League and its Latin-American members than has heretofore been registered.

Furthermore the possibility of a Monroe Doctrine reservation being annexed to the Senate's approval of the Kellogg anti-war compact may, it is surmised, well have encouraged South American diplomacy to counter with a movement to seek closer ties with the Old World powers.

Naval Disarmament Up.

The naval disarmament question came up with the Council members today in connection with a report by M. Titulescu of Rumania, who had been charged with the duty of reporting on the reappointment of the chairmen of three special committees to deal with certain disarmament problems in Germany, Hungary and Austria. At the same time M. Titulescu reminded the Council members that the Preparatory Commission dealing with naval disarmament was scheduled to meet on March 1 and that there was no prospect of success attending its deliberations. A decision, he said, must be taken to avoid another fiasco.

The French Foreign Minister indicated his desire to postpone the meeting to a date agreeable to the American government. This was particularly urgent, he said in view of the reports of impending direct conversations between Britain and the United States.

As mentioned in last Saturday's dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, a serious effort has been under way to meet the difficulties of the situation and avert another failure. The whole disarmament question would now appear to depend on a solution of the Anglo-American differences. Certainly there is a tendency to delay consideration of all other phases of the issue until the two great naval powers try to come together.

It can safely be said that nothing would please the Council of the League more than to hear during this week's meeting that direct conversations between Washington and London had been arranged.

Any doubt over the desire of the European naval powers to deal with the disarmament question during the Lugano sessions was dispelled by the arrival here today of the leading naval experts of Britain, France and Italy, among them Admiral Kelly and Commandant Deleuze.

WORLD COURT ISSUE SHELVED BY LEAGUE

Council Acts in Hope of New American Move to Join the Tribunal.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUGANO, Dec. 10.—To President Coolidge's recent intimation of his desire to see negotiations for the entrance of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice resumed, two important moves were made here today.

The first was a unanimous decision by the Council of the League at the opening of its fifty-third session to postpone until next year settlement of the delicate and highly controversial question of whether or not the Council or Assembly may by a simple majority of its members ask for an advisory opinion from the court within the meaning of Article IV of the Covenant.

The second was a statement made later to the British press by Sir Austen Chamberlain, which interpreted as encouraging President Coolidge's initiative.

It will be recalled that the question of a majority or unanimity in asking advice of the court constituted one of the chief obstacles encountered by the American Government when participation was originally projected. By its action this morning the Council indicated its desire to await the development of a new American movement to join the court before proceeding to act on the issue.

Together with the other big powers the United States is strongly opposed to a simple majority, but arrayed against this viewpoint are all the smaller nations, led by Switzerland, which raised the issue in a resolution adopted by the Ninth Assembly last September. There is a feeling in some League quarters that the American Government may modify its original reservations and that nothing should be done at this time to discourage resumption of negotiations looking toward American participation.

In discussing the Council's action, Sir Austen Chamberlain said that both the League and Court were "very young" and must of necessity proceed slowly. The International Court, he went on, will accomplish most good if its rules of procedure are not too strictly defined. The Court must go forward and gather experience before becoming too fixed in its character, he concluded, and postponement of the question of the method of seeking its opinion had very rightly been decided upon.

The League officials are awaiting with much interest the next move from Washington. It is certain that the Council's members are still anxious to see the United States a member of the Court and will go far to meet the American attitude. Modification of the original reservations would, however, highly improve the prospects of American entrance, since it is feared reiteration of the old objections would lead to the same difficulties which arose before.

Apart from the Permanent Court resolution, the opening session of the Council was largely devoted to expression of appreciation for the warmth of Lugano's reception and of the hearty efforts of the municipality to make the stay of the delegates agreeable. Other pending questions, such as the report of the Permanent Mandates Commission and a proposal to reduce from four to three the annual number of Council meetings, were postponed until the March meeting.

There remain for the current session the problems of world traffic in opium and the Polish-Lithuanian differences, the latter being more or less in a state of permanent crisis with little prospect of immediate improvement.

But if the Council agenda itself is of only mild interest, the tremendous value of these periodic gatherings of European statesmen is more than ever accentuated at Lugano. The important private conversations which are going on outside the Council deliberations are of vital moment to the future of Europe and very likely could not have been otherwise arranged in the present disturbed political atmosphere.

There was much diplomatic activity today, all with the idea of restoring the atmosphere of confidence and the spirit of Locarno, so rudely disturbed by the recent speeches of three foreign Ministers. Sir Austen Chamberlain called on Dr. Stresemann for a long talk, while Signor Grandi saw both M. Briand and Sir Austen.

The Briand-Grandi interview was a mutual exchange of complaints. Signor Grandi had a long list of protests, beginning with the recent Paris verdict. Virtually acquitting the slayer of the Italian Consul and ending with the latest speech of Premier Poincaré on reparations and the Rhineland, while the French Foreign Minister produced copies of Italian newspapers with violent attacks against France.

Both finally agreed that unless the atmosphere was cleared the negotiations concerning Tunis and the Tripoli frontier soon to begin in Rome would have slim chance of eventuating in a treaty of amity between the two powers.

The interview can hardly be said to have advanced the relations of the two countries and, curiously enough, it was learned afterwards that M. Briand had forbidden any member of the French delegation to cross the Italian frontier for fear of provoking further incidents.

LUGANO, Dec. 10 (AP).—Sir Austen Chamberlain had a long private meeting tonight with Dr. Stresemann, when the European situation, as it is related to Germany, was gone into. It was understood that Sir Austen, like M. Briand, assured Dr. Stresemann that the lofty principles proclaimed at Locarno still guide the statesmen in their dealings with Germany, and that he voiced his conviction that evacuation, like the reparations problem, would be settled successfully in due time.

GILBERT COMING HOME.

Germans Think He Will Select Americans for Experts' Board.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—S. Parker Gilbert is going to America, where he intends to spend Christmas. His trip is interpreted here as purely for the purpose of looking over the field of economists to choose suitable men for the experts' commission to fix the total sum Germany must pay as reparations.

That Owen D. Young is the unanimous choice of the German people to head the commission has long been known, but Mr. Gilbert must arrange to have other important figures as well. Germany has faith that he will select men whose breadth of view will enable them to hand down verdicts best for the world at large, a prominent official close to the government said tonight.

SENDS $15,000 TO CHILE.

Red Cross Increases Earthquake Relief at Hoover's Suggestion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Red Cross today sent $15,000 more to the Chilean Red Cross at Santiago for the relief of earthquake sufferers, making the total contribution by the American Society $25,000, of which $10,000 was dispatched through the State Department when news of the recent disaster reached this country.

At the time of the first contribution, Mr. Hoover was notified in the following message from Chairman John Barton Payne:

"In view your approaching visit to Chile you will be interested in knowing American Red Cross in light of first reports has made contribution of $10,000 to Chilean Red Cross for earthquake relief."

In acknowledging receipt of the message, Mr. Hoover said:

"In view of heavy loss of lives and property, suggest that you raise the appropriation to $25,000."

URGES JUDAISM IN HOME.

Rabbi Silver Addresses 1,500 at Temple Brotherhoods Meeting.

Nearly 1,500 Jewish leaders of New York gathered at the Hotel Astor last night under the auspices of the Metropolitan Conference of Temple Brotherhoods to celebrate Chanukah, the feast of lights.

Representatives of twenty-two synagogues and clubs of metropolitan temples heard Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of The Temple, Cleveland, plead for a restoration of traditional Jewish piety in the home, for rejection of the vulgar and the bizarre in present-day cultural tendencies, and for the expression of a "creative rôle in American life."

"The American Jew," he said, "is in danger of losing his own native cultural traditions which sanctified life and should return to that holiness which is the hope of civilization today."

The Chanukah lights ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Simon Schlager, cantor of Temple Emanu-El, and the invocation was by Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of the Central Synagogue. Roger F. Straus, president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, presided. Other speakers were Charles P. Kramer, chairman, Metropolitan Conference of Temple Brotherhoods; Ben Altheimer, and Blanche P. Goldfarb, president of the State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. Traditional Hebrew music was sung by the Emanu-El choir.

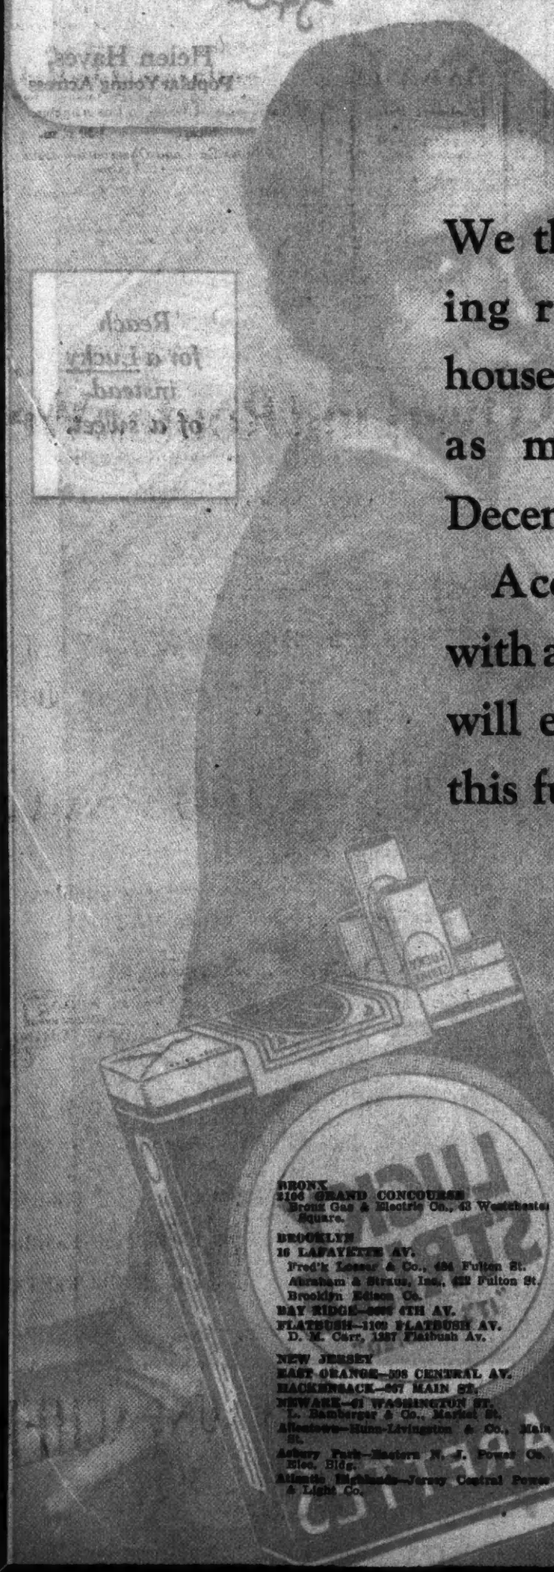
Greater Volume Now Brings Lower Prices on the New Frigidaire

The unprecedented public acceptance of the New Frigidaire has resulted in the greatest increase in volume in the history of the business.

Quiet operation, surpassing beauty and lasting economy have further increased an already overwhelming preference of buyers everywhere.

This tremendous volume has resulted in further production economies. In accordance with the fixed policy of General Motors these economies are being passed on to the public.

Savings as great as $110



We therefore announce a sweeping reduction in the prices of household models, amounting to as much as $110, effective December 11th.

A comparison of Frigidaire value with any other electric refrigerator will emphasize the importance of this further reduction of prices.

We are glad to make this announcement at the present time for it will enable many additional thousands of homes to have the advantages of Frigidaire Automatic Refrigeration for Christmas.

UNGER IS INDICTED IN DRUG CONSPIRACY

Prisoner at Buffalo Accused as Leader in Rothstein Ring—Mrs. Boyd Testifies.

PORTER AND NUTT ARE HERE

Representative Blames Nations for Breaking Opium Pact—Federal Narcotic Chief in Drive.

Mrs. June Boyd, the young woman who was arrested in a Chicago hotel last Friday night in the international narcotic conspiracy which was uncovered by Federal officials through leads obtained from the secret files of Arnold Rothstein, the slain gambler, was the principal witness yesterday before the Federal grand jury which later indicted Joseph Unger, a prisoner in Buffalo, as a principal in the plot.

Mrs. Boyd, who also is known as June Bowman, according to the Federal authorities, was taken into custody after Federal agents under direction of United States Attorney Tuttle, had seized two trunks, containing $2,000,000 in drugs, on a train at the Grand Central terminal that afternoon. Other Federal agents who arrested Mrs. Boyd in the Hotel North Sheridan had reported that they found another trunk and a satchel in her room in which an additional $500,000 in drugs was uncovered.

She was reported to have made a complete statement of her connection with the drug ring to W. D. Allen, chief of the narcotic agents in Chicago, before she started for this city last Saturday night, and had given information which indicated a close connection between Rothstein and the drug smugglers.

Nation-Wide Drive Launched.

As a result of her story, it was said, Federal officials in Washington had ordered a nation-wide hunt for others in the conspiracy believed to have been connected with the distribution of millions of dollars in drugs across the country in the last three years. Mrs. Boyd, who is 30 years old, was reported to have said that the two trunks which had been placed on the train by Unger were to be turned over to her by direction of other leaders in the conspiracy, and declared that the drugs found in her possession also had been sent on to her by leaders of the band here.

The interest of Washington authorities in the revelations brought about by District Attorney Tuttle's seizure of the Rothstein files under a Federal Court order last Thursday was indicated yesterday by the appearance of Representative Stephen G. Porter of the Foreign Relations Committee of Congress and Colonel L. C. Nutt, head of the National Narcotic Bureau there.

After a conference with Mr. Tuttle and Assistant Federal District Attorney Blake, Mr. Porter made a statement in which he pointed out that the development through the seizure of the Rothstein papers made it "perfectly obvious to any one" that some of the manufacturers in the six countries in Europe in which most of the world's output of drugs are made had not kept the agreement of the Hague Opium Convention of 1912, "with the result that dope rings exist throughout the world."

Says Treaty Could Halt Traffic.

"I have been gathering evidence in regard to this phase of the matter for a long time," he continued, "and I am hopeful that the Rothstein homicide will add materially to the data which I have collected." He added that this country had complied with the treaty and that all that would be necessary to stop drug smuggling would be for the European manufacturers to do likewise. Mr. Porter also revealed that he had given Mr. Tuttle and the local narcotic agents information which had helped in the Rothstein drug investigation.

Federal Judge Winslow, to whom the indictment against Unger, consisting of four counts, was handed up in the early afternoon, took occasion to praise the activities of Mr. Tuttle and the Federal narcotic agents to the grand jury.

"I want to commend the United States Attorney, his assistants and the Federal agents," he said, "for their consummate skill and perseverance in unearthing the facts which have been presented to the grand jury, resulting in this indictment. I want to take this occasion to say, gentlemen, that if law and order are to be maintained in this community, it behooves every public official, and that includes the grand jurors, to be persistent and relentless in the pursuit of crime."

The indictment charged that Unger and others "not known" to the government brought the $2,000,000 in drugs into this country in violation of the Federal law, and sold and distributed them.

Mrs. Boyd was mentioned in the indictment, but not as a defendant. This indicated that the drug charge lodged against her in Chicago would be held in abeyance. Narcotic agents still are tracing other leads on the conspiracy which they had found in papers seized in the Rothstein offices.

Mrs. Carolyne Rothstein, widow of the gambler, was questioned for almost an hour yesterday in the Federal Building by Assistant Federal Atorney Blake, but it was not learned whether it is the intention to call her before the grand jury when it resumes its investigation of the conspiracy today. The prosecutor announced, however, that Mrs. Esther Meyers, who was arrested as a material witness early last Saturday morning in the Hotel Hamilton in West Seventy-second Street, and Samuel (Crying Sammy) Lowe, another witness seized a few hours before in a midtown hotel, would be called before the grand jurors today. Mrs. Meyers was released in $5,000 bail on the night of her arrest.

A few minutes after the indictment was voted the grand jurors adopted a resolution requesting Judge Mancuso of General Sessions and District Attorney Banton to make available for the inspection of the body the secret Rothstein files impounded two weeks ago. John Herts and two other members of the body, Roy C. Baker and Rutherford H. Shepard, were appointed a committee to obtain any facts from the papers which might be pertinent to the drug-ring investigation.

A short time before Mr. Blake and Mr. Banton appeared before Judge Mancuso in General Sessions and made arrangements for the inspection of these papers, which are still in the custody of the court. Mr. Blake took occasion to tell Judge Mancuso that the Federal prosecutor's office and Mr. Banton were working in harmony in their quest for information from these files. Mr. Banton also revealed that last Thursday another of Rothstein's safes had been found in the Fairfield Hotel, owned by Rothstein, in West Seventy-second Street, and was found to contain canceled checks, stocks of defunct corporations and other data which was being investigated.

Mr. Tuttle, in telling of his conference with Mr. Porter, said that the Rothstein seizure had shown clearly the need for increased appropriations by Congress to combat successfully the international drug smuggling rings.

In the late afternoon Mr. Tuttle assigned Assistant District Attorney Sylvester to go to Buffalo to meet Unger's opposition against returning here to face the indictment. Unger is under $100,000 bail there, set by a Federal judge, after he was taken from the train near Buffalo, on which he had placed the two trunks.

SEIZE ROTHSTEIN WITNESS.

Atlantic City Police Say Prisoner Saw Gambler Night He Was Slain.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 10.—The Atlantic City police arested a man tonight who, they say, was with Arnold Rothstein, New York gambler, a few minutes before he was shot, and who told them that Rothstein had told him of receiving threats from George McManus, who has been indicted.

The man arrested is Leo Maloney, 43 years old, a New York gambler for whom New York detectives and the local police have been looking for several days. He gave his address as 173-53 103d Road, Hillside, Queens, N. Y.

REPUBLICANS COOL TO MACY PROPOSAL

Even City Leaders See Little to Gain by a Police Inquiry—Mayor Says He Is Not Afraid.

The proposal of W. Kingsland Macy, chairman of the Suffolk County Republican Committee, for a legislative investigation of the New York Police Department and more particularly the handling of the Rothstein murder, met with a cool reception yesterday from Republican State leaders and men who will be identified with the leadership of the Republican majority in the next Legislature.

Even among the Republican leaders in this city no enthusiasm was manifested when it was suggested that such an investigation might produce ammunition useful to the party in the Mayoralty campaign next year.

Mayor Walker said yesterday that he had no fear of the outcome of any investigation the Legislature might launch into the Rothstein case. He called attention to the fact that whenever irregularities had come to light in his administration, he invariably had investigated the charges and taken good care that punishment had been meted out to any one found guilty.

Samuel S. Koenig, chairman of the New York County Republican Committee, when asked for comment regarding the Macy proposal said:

"I am not prepared to say anything about it at present."

A similar statement was made by Jacob A. Livingston, leader of the Republican forces in Kings.

H. Edmund Machold, chairman of the Republican State Committee, said yesterday that Mr. Macy had not consulted him.

"The first I knew about it was what I read in the newspapers this morning," he said. "As far as I am aware the proposal originated with Mr. Macy."

"What is your present reaction toward it?" he was asked.

"There is no personal reaction; I know nothing about it," Mr. Machold replied.

"Then you are not opposed to it," was suggested.

"Nor has it my approval," he replied.

Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the Assembly, who was in the city yesterday, said:

"I know nothing about this proposition except what was contained in Mr. Macy's letter and what I read in the newspapers today. So far I have received no intimation from any of the leaders in this city that such an investigation was wanted."

"The Legislature cannot do any more than I am continually doing in investigating the departments," he said. "I have discovered more irregularities than any previous Mayor, and every one guilty of irregularities has been punished, as every one will be, no matter what his connections are. I am still closely scrutinizing everything of that sort, and if any more are found guilty they will continue to go to jail. If the suggested investigation is to be staged for political effect I am against it, but no bona fide investigation will ever find me in opposition."

The statement was made after former Police Commissioner George V. McLaughlin had appeared at the City Hall. Mr. McLaughlin did not see the Mayor, and it was explained that he had come merely to confer with Charles S. Hand, the Mayor's secretary, over a matter now before the Municipal Arts Commission. Mr. Hand is confined to his home by a slight illness.

MACY PRESSES PLEA FOR A POLICE INQUIRY

Reiterates Charges at Victory Dinner—Wants Tammany Judges Ousted From Suffolk.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Dec. 10.—W. Kingsland Macy, chairman of the Suffolk County Committee, repeated his suggestion for a legislative investigation of the alleged failure of the New York City police in the Arnold Rothstein murder case at the committee's "victory dinner" at the Elks' Club here tonight.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States Attorney, said that the greatest of a legislative reapportionment bill and legislation to give Suffolk County its own judicial district, and to "do away with Tammany judges from Brooklyn sitting at Riverhead."

Mr. Tuttle said that the greatest threat to the Republican party in New York State was the constant widening of the breach between New York City and the rest of the State. To remedy this he suggested the "humanization" of the labor laws, revision of the tax laws to bring about a more equitable distribution of taxes, the strengthening of the Martin stock law to include real estate securities, licensing of employment agencies by the State, and the placing of parks under county instead of city or State supervision.

LACKAWANNA TERMINALS IN MANHATTAN!

HUDSON TERMINAL
(at Cortlandt Street)
HUDSON TUBES
(at B'way & 33rd St.)

Lackawanna Railroad

BARCLAY ST. FERRY
CHRISTOPHER ST. FERRY
WEST 23RD ST. FERRY

FROM all points in New York travelers on business and pleasure are finding the Lackawanna Station at Hoboken the most convenient starting point for Buffalo, Syracuse, Ithaca and the West.

The financial district downtown and the midtown business district are within a few moments walk of its five Manhattan terminals. Brooklynites step from their B. M. T. trains into the Hudson Terminal without going to the street. Travelers from Long Island and subway travelers from upper Manhattan and the Bronx change to the Hudson Tubes at Broadway and 33rd Street. The theatres and shops are just around the corner for those who take advantage of every minute in the city.

A number of famous trains operate on fast and frequent schedules from the Lackawanna Station at Hoboken with direct connections at these five terminals. For timetables, reservations, etc., apply to J. L. Homer, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, 112 West 42nd Street, New York, (Phone Wisconsin 0670) or Consolidated Ticket Offices.

"Smoke a Lucky—snub a sweet"

Helen Hayes

Helen Hayes,
Popular Young Actress

"Smoke a Lucky—snub a sweet. With a disdainful glance ignore the pastry tray. The first time is the hardest. But, after you've smoked a Lucky the longing for a sweet disappears in smoke. That's the way modern daughters keep their trim, smart figures. Now, almost every woman knows what every man has always known, that the toasted flavor of a Lucky can't be matched—that they never irritate the throat."

HELEN HAYES

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Everyone is doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. Athletes, who must keep fit, testify that Luckies do not harm their wind nor physical condition. That's why Luckies have always been the favorite of those men who want to keep in top-top shape and realize the danger of overweight. That's why folks say:—"It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

Taking another giant stride into the future –

"Railroading . . . is about to see a job of rail construction that would do credit to the days when the continent was being spanned" – New York Times, November 18

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD has announced a plan for the progressive electrification of its main line from New York to Philadelphia.

This electrification, together with that already completed, will far exceed in magnitude and in importance that of any other railroad in the world in miles of track to be electrified and in number of trains affected—involving the expenditure of $100,000,000.

The benefits to be derived by the public will be far-reaching, including more rapid transportation, greater facilities for handling freight and passenger service, and easier connections between local and long distance travel.

Yet it is only a part of a far-reaching program of improvements including many other important projects recently completed or in active preparation. They represent plans formulated and projected after careful study by experts of all the business and engineering problems involved. They constitute invaluable assets of the railroad for the future.

These improvements include:

New produce terminals—the largest in the world—in New York, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh, revolutionizing the methods of supplying these cities with fresh fruits and vegetables.

The largest purchase of steel rails in the company's history to carry forward the extensive improvement of the whole right of way.

A fleet of 600 additional all-steel passenger coaches, rolling out of the shops to replace the last of wooden coaches.

These improvements – bold in conception and large in execution – anticipate the day, probably not more than 20 years hence, when the population of greater New York will be 30,000,000 and that of the nation not far short of 175,000,000.

They are the giant strides with which the Pennsylvania keeps step with the demands of the traveling public and with the growth of business.

URGES 'REPUBLIC' OF WORLD RELIGIONS

E. R. Clinchy Tells Federal Council of Churches of Need for Sharing of Values.

SUPPORT OF DRY LAW ASKED

President of Howard Challenges Churches on Negro—Rabbi Pleads for End of Anti-Semitism.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Formation of a league of the religions of humanity, embracing the representatives of every religion in the world, was a proposal placed before the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America today by Everett R. Clinchy, executive secretary of the commission on good-will between Jews and Christians.

Following the plea for a republic of religions and a reference of the idea to a committee, the delegates to the quadrennial meeting listened to the first address ever made by a Jewish clergyman at a Federal Council convention. Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein of Temple Brith Kodesh of this city gave his views on how Christians might eliminate anti-Semitism.

The negro problem in the churches was brought before the delegates earlier in the day by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, President of Howard University. Taking exception to some phrase in a speech by Dr. Shailer Matthews, dean of the Theological Seminary at the University of Chicago, Dr. Johnson declared that the 250 years of segregation of the negro as in slavery was being continued in the segregation of the negro in colored churches. He challenged the church to overcome this barrier.

Problems of Youth Discussed.

The convention today adopted resolutions on prohibition, the church and the drama and listened to an address by Dr. Valeria H. Parker of the American Social Hygiene Association on "How the Churches Can Help Parents to Meet the Problems of Children and Youth."

Cooperative possibilities in the educational work of the churches were discussed by Dr. Hugh S. Magill, general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education, and Dr. Robert L. Kelly, executive secretary of the Council of Church Boards of Education.

In arguing for a cooperative policy for the future of organized religion, Dr. Clinchy pointed out that Christianity was not the only religion interested in world peace or industrial justice or race relations. He therefore suggested cooperation of all religions in "a republic of the religions." He said that the best of the religions are in process of development, just as Christianity is.

"As civilization advances all of the religions are reading in new meanings and new concepts of their ideals," he said. "It is highly important that those religions which believe that they have values, share their values with other developing systems of thought. We might have regular appointed times when elected Christian representatives would meet in parliament with the other religions."

Rabbi Attacks Anti-Semitism.

Rabbi Bernstein, who spoke in place of Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Chicago, who was prevented by illness from attending, declared that the un-Jewish attitude of many Jews toward Jesus was due primarily to "the unchristian attitude of many Christians to Jews."

"Suppose the Jews were in the majority and the Christians were in the minority," he said. "Suppose we taught constantly the stories of Christian responsibility for crime, for the Spanish Inquisition, the persecution of John Huss, Savonarola and Galileo and the St. Bartholomew massacre. What if we were to preach constantly and to teach and enact these historical occurrences and thereby engender hatred and prejudice against helpless Christians and incited riots and outrages against them?

"My Christian friends, if you would eliminate anti-Semitism you must begin by deliberately ignoring or minimizing or denying the story of the Jews' responsibility for the crucifixion of Jesus."

Urges Support of Prohibition.

The council adopted a resolution calling upon all Americans "scrupulously to observe the provisions of the prohibition law in all their own personal actions and also to support those officials who are charged with the enforcement of the law. Where education concerning prohibition has been dropped from the schools, the resolution stated, it should be promptly restored.

Cordial support of the work of the Committee on Religious and Educational Drama in friendly relation with the Church and Drama Association was urged on the delegates in another resolution.

An address on cooperation in the world-wide missionary movement was made this evening at the Baptist Temple by the Rev. A. L. Warnshuis, general secretary, International Missionary Council, and the Rev. E. Stanley Jones of India spoke on "The Christ of the Final Word."

BRITISH PLANE TO TRY A 6,000-MILE FLIGHT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The giant British monoplane which was built to break the world's endurance record will soon be flown in long hops to Cape Town, where it will start a proposed 6,000-mile, nonstop flight to England.

Originally it was intended to circle England for three days and three nights, if possible, to establish a record, but the Air Ministry, for which the Fairey monoplane was constructed, has now decided in favor of the African venture. The machine is going to fly to South Africa because its wings are too big to carry by road, rail and steamer so far from home. Its senior pilot will be Squadron Leader A. Jones-Williams, who took it up in successful flights over the week-end.

The monoplane is practically one big wing with a span of ninety feet. The fuselage has been designed of sufficient size to carry a Napier Lion engine of 530 horsepower and also to provide two men with a cockpit cabin for sleeping and navigation.

The fact that the machine will be flown to Cape Town is considered a fine test in itself even before the real test begins.

A 2,100-mile non-stop flight from London to Cairo—the first ever made—is being contemplated for the start of the southward journey.

A specially prepared airport will be needed somewhere in the neighborhood of Natal, but otherwise Africa has plenty of flying fields to handle the heavily loaded monoplane which will be carrying more than 7,000 pounds of fuel. The course of the non-stop return flight probably will be over Rhodesia and Central Africa, crossing the north coast near Tunis, then striking Europe at Marseilles and so north to mouth of the Seine.

SCHELLING'S GIFT $9,000.

Proceeds of Concert Go to Fund in Mrs. Marquand's Memory.

More than $9,000 was earned at Ernest Schelling's piano recital in Carnegie Hall last evening for the New York artist's volunteered tribute to the memory of Mrs. Henry Marquand. The entire proceeds were devoted to the District Nursing Association of Northern Westchester County, of which Mrs. Marquand had been founder and for many years president, the immediate aim being a newly planned endowment fund for a public health nurse. Many Westchester residents were present and, though not all who held tickets were in their chairs, the entire house was sold out for the charity.

Mr. Schelling was applauded as he appeared at the piano, his clear and lyric style giving pleasure in the Schumann "Fantasy," which was followed after a few transitional chords by the pianist's own "Theme and Variations," music of distinctive quality which he has before presented here. A concluding third of his program comprised short works of Chopin, Granados and Blanchet, together with Wagner's prelude and finale from "Tristan."

WHY FREE OF COST.

Every cent contributed to the Hundred Neediest Cases goes to those in want; there are no deductions of any kind. The New York Times, which assumes the entire cost of collection, feels itself fully compensated in the knowledge that it is doing a public service. The seven organizations that administer the fund without charge and with the most scrupulous supervision, consider themselves fully repaid in the spreading of the Gospel of Giving, which the publication of the cases brings about. That is why functions which would ordinarily cost many thousands of dollars are performed without any charge whatever.

"I'm glad we got the Duo-Art and the AudioGraphic Music. It certainly is interesting—and we've all gained so much real knowledge too!"

The Gift that brings Music and the Key to Music's Beauties to Your Home

The AudioGraphic Duo-Art Piano

THROUGH an entirely new form of musical presentation, made possible by the AudioGraphic Duo-Art Piano and AudioGraphic Music, everyone can now enjoy music more than ever before.

In line with the recent inventions in moving pictures and the coming development in radio, television, where seeing and hearing are presented in unison, AudioGraphic Music appeals to the ear and eye simultaneously.

You hear the music and at the same time you read its meaning

—either supplied by the composer himself or one suggested by some eminent authority.

It is absorbingly interesting and highly instructive.

It is so simple that it appeals to the youngest child; and so authoritative that it has been adopted by the leading educational institutions in this country and Europe.

AudioGraphic Music is already exerting a profound influence

It has become a great factor in the development of musical appreciation throughout the world. It is bringing a new and cultural pleasure into thousands of homes. The AudioGraphic Duo-Art Piano together with AudioGraphic Music, marks as great an advance over the Reproducing Piano as that instrument did over pianos of the original player type.

You will be surprised to learn how easy it is to own an Audio-Graphic Duo-Art Piano. A moderate down payment brings you the instrument, and the balance may be paid in convenient monthly terms.

"The enlightened amateur or even the teacher of music will find in the system of AudioGraphic Music exactly what he most needs, a system that opens to him the inner secrets of music without imposing upon him the difficult routine of practical study of the art."

DAVID STANLEY SMITH
Dean of Music, Yale University

"The new AudioGraphic Music comes at a boon and a blessing. I am glad to commend with all my heart this great world movement so magnificently sponsored by the Aeolian Company."

ETHEL BARRYMORE RETURNS

Again in "The Kingdom of God"—To Open Barrymore Theatre Dec. 20

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 10.—Ethel Barrymore returned tonight to the leading rôle in "The Kingdom of God," at the Wilbur Theatre, after being confined for the last week to the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, with an infected ear. The noted actress received a warm welcome upon her entrance, and she was obviously enlivened by the reception and her return to the stage.

This is the last week of the play in Boston, and physicians have assured Miss Barrymore that she is fit to continue without danger.

On learning of Ethel Barrymore's return to the cast of "The Kingdom of God" in Boston, the Shubert office yesterday definitely announced the play's New York opening for a week from Thursday night at the new Barrymore Theatre in West Forty-seventh Street. Because of changes in the construction of the box-office at the new theatre, the advance seat sale will take place at the Shubert Theatre, beginning this Thursday.

"The Kingdom of God" is from the Spanish of G. Martines Sierra. Miss Barrymore has been touring successfully in it for several weeks.

MISS ZIEGLER WED TO JOHN GIBB ALLEY

MISS F. BORING A BRIDE

Miss Frances Ziegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Ziegler of this city, was married to John Gibb Alley, son of Mrs. A. Bryan Alley of Larchmont, N. Y., and the late Mr. Alley, yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Howard.

The bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a long-sleeved gown of three shades of bois-de-rose chiffon with a silk-and-velvet hat to correspond, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Her cousin, Mrs. Richard Emmett Le Blond of Cincinnati, was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a frock of blue moiré taffeta with a large velvet hat to correspond. She carried a bouquet of Spring flowers.

A reception followed in the Italian Garden of the Ambassador. After a wedding trip South, Mr. and Mrs. Alley will live in this city.

Taylor—Boring.

Miss Frances Boring, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mark Boring of Johnson City, Tenn., was married to Folsom B. Taylor, proprietor of the John Sevier Hotel in Johnson City, yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. W. Robert King of the Home Missions Council, who is an old friend of the bride's family. A buffet supper and reception followed.

Miss Garnett Boring, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Harry Smith was Mr. Taylor's best man.

After a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will live in Johnson City.

Pack—Foster.

Miss Marcella Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Foster of 7 Wendover Road, Montclair, N. J., and Randolph Greene Pack of Greenwich, Conn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lathrop Pack of Lakewood, were married at 4:30 yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride. Only the immediate families of the couple were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. E. S. Wier.

After a honeymoon in Italy and Egypt, the couple will make their home at Greenwich.

ELIZABETH CRISPIN ENGAGED TO MARRY

New York Girl to Wed Oliviero Tripcovich of Trieste, Italy, Son of Countess.

MISS E. CHACE BETROTHED

M. Jackson Crispin of 375 Park Avenue has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Brockway Crispin, to Oliviero Tripcovich of Trieste, Italy, younger son of the late Commendatore Diodato Tripcovich and the Countess Gilda Tripcovich-Pozza.

Miss Crispin is a direct descendant of Silas Crispin, who came to Pennsylvania in 1681 and who married a daughter of Captain Thomas Holme, first Surveyor General of Pennsylvania. Silas Crispin was the son of Captain William Crispin, a Rear Admiral of the English Navy, whose wife was a granddaughter of Captain Giles Penn, grandfather of William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania. Captain William Crispin was a descendant of William Crispin I, Count of Vexin, who fought in the battles of Hastings with William the Conqueror.

Miss Crispin was introduced to society in New York three years ago. She has traveled extensively in Europe. Mr. Tripcovich was graduated from the Royal University of Italy. He is a partner in the Tripcovich Shipping Company.

The wedding will take place the latter part of next month.

Chace—Brady.

Announcement has been made to their friends in New York by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm G. Chace of 79 Williams Street, Providence, R. I., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eliot Chace, to James Cox Brady, son of the late James Cox Brady of this city. Miss Chace is a granddaughter of Arnold B. Chace, chancellor of Brown University. She attended Smith College and was introduced to society in Providence three seasons ago. She is a member of the Junior League of that city. She is a member of the Agawam Hunt Club. Malcolm G. Chace Jr. is her brother.

Mr. Brady is a grandson of the late Anthony N. Brady of Albany. He is a nephew of Nicholas F. Brady, Mrs. Carll Tucker and Mrs. Francis M. Scarvan of this city. He is the brother of Mrs. Frederick S. Mosely Jr. and of Miss Ruth Brady, whose marriage to the Hon. Michael Simon Scott will take place on Dec. 31. Mr. Brady is a senior at Yale University and the marriage will not take place until after he is graduated in June.

Bark—Knubel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bark of Grand Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Bark, to the Rev. Frederick R. Knubel, only son of the Rev. Dr. Frederick H. Knubel of New York City, president of the United Lutheran Church in America. The announcement of the engagement was made at a tea given by Mrs. Bark at her home Saturday afternoon.

Miss Bark was graduated last June from the University of Rochester. She is a member of the Alpha Sorority, Phi Beta Kappa and Marsien, the latter the senior honorary society at the university.

Mr. Knubel is 31 years old. He is a graduate of Gettysburg Lutheran College and the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mount Airy, Philadelphia. He served in the Officers' Training Camp. He was ordained to the Lutheran ministry by his father in Utica, N. Y. He was for some years an assistant at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, Rochester, under the Rev. Dr. F. F. Fry, the pastor. Some months ago after Dr. Fry resigned to become general secretary of the Lutheran Board of Home Missions, with headquarters in this city, young Mr. Knubel was elected to the pastorate. His bride-to-be is an active worker in the parish.

Drysdale—Wright.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Charlotte Robinson Drysdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Drysdale of 147 South Mountain Avenue, Montclair, N. J., and John Aubrey Wright Jr., son of John Aubrey Wright of Bellevue, Ohio. Miss Drysdale is a member of the Junior League of Montclair. Mr. Wright is a graduate of Williams College and is with the Guaranty Company, New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

Murray—Westcote.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fletcher Murray of 316 West Ninety-fifth Street have announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Mary Campbell Murray, to William Timpson Westcote Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Timpson Westcote of Wakefield, R. I.

Miss Murray is a junior at Vassar. Mr. Westcote attended St. George's School at Newport, R. I.

No date has been set for the wedding.

JEWISH WOMEN OPEN BUILDING FUND DRIVE

Plans of Campaign for $150,000 for Bronx Centre Made as Mrs. Schiff Gives Luncheon.

Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff was a luncheon hostess yesterday afternoon to a group of women at her home at 965 Fifth Avenue at the opening of a drive by the New York Section of the Council of Jewish Women for $150,000 to complete the new council building in the Bronx.

Mrs. Schiff was an organizer of the council, which is one of the oldest of Jewish organizations in the city. It is engaged in immigrant aid, Americanization, legal aid, social service in city hospitals and other welfare work.

The new building of the council is to be erected at 1,122 Forrest Avenue, the Bronx. It will contain a large auditorium, five school rooms for English classes, kindergarten rooms, gymnasium, library, clinic and playgrounds.

Mayor Walker, in a letter to Mrs. Nathan Straus Jr., president of the council, praised the work of the organization.

"I am quite familiar with the very splendid contribution which your organization has made toward the welfare of a very large and desirable proportion of our citizenship," he wrote. "I congratulate you and those associated with you in the council upon the relocation of your council house in the fast growing section of the Bronx, and express the sincere hope that your work in the future will be as conspicuously successful as in the past."

Plans were made at the luncheon yesterday to conduct a series of meetings and teas to obtain the necessary building funds. Those who attended were Mrs. Straus, Mrs. Frederick Brown, Mrs. Zion De Frece Bernstein, Mrs. Abram I. Elkus, Mrs. Edward Josephy, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Mrs. Adolph S. Ochs, Mrs. Leo Sulzberger, Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, Mrs. David Sarnoff, Mrs. Sol Rosenbloom and Miss Sara X. Schottenfels.

Daughter to Mrs. R. F. Linderman Jr.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Linderman Jr. of 26 West Ninth Street on Dec. 4 in Miss Lippincott's Sanitarium. Mrs. Linderman is the former Miss Jane Elizabeth Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Wilkinson of Meriden, Conn. The child will be named Ann Sayre.

A Son to Mrs. Dudley J. Bachrach.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dudley J. Bachrach of 1,049 Park Avenue on Sunday at the Park East Hospital. Mrs. Bachrach is the former Miss Eleanor L. King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman King of this city.

ATLANTIC CAT CLUB OPENS ANNUAL SHOW

PERSIANS IN THE MAJORITY

Best Specimen Will Be Selected Today—Proceeds for Benefit of Bide-a-Wee Home.

The Atlantic Cat Club opened its twenty-seventh annual show yesterday at the Waldorf and will close it today. The proceeds will go to the Bide-a-Wee Home for Animals. Most of the 157 cats exhibited were long-haired or Persian, although some short-haired animals also were displayed.

The judges found the grays the most difficult to judge, there being fewer differences among them than among the cats of other colors. First prizes in the different classes were awarded yesterday. Today the decision as to the "best cat in the show" will be made. The judge of the black, blue, white, red and cream colored classes was Mrs. M. B. Warfel. Mrs. J. H. Richards judged the silver divisions, the brown tabbies and the short-hairs.

The awards follow:

GIVES GROUND TO DREXEL.

C. H. K. Curtis Donates $250,000 Plot to Philadelphia Institute.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 10.—The gift of a plot of ground valued at $250,000 to Drexel Institute by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the publisher, was announced tonight by Dr. Kenneth G. Matheson, president of Drexel & Co.

The ground on Chestnut Street adjoins Curtis Hall, the new $600,000 engineering building, now nearing completion, also a gift of Mr. Curtis.

Dr. Matheson said the Board of Trustees intended to demolish the present buildings on the gift plot and that several plans were under consideration for the use of the ground.

PAN-AMERICAN ARBITRATION.

In one sense, it was a sardonic coincidence that Bolivia and Paraguay should have broken off diplomatic relations, and threatened to make war on each other, at the very time when Mr. HOOVER was making his good-will journey, and at the moment when the Pan-American Conference on Arbitration and Conciliation was meeting in Washington. Yet in fact the conjuncture was not unfortunate. The quarrel between Paraguay and Bolivia is one eminently fitted for arbitration. It relates to a great unsettled and ill-defined territory, lying between those two republics, about which it would be absurd to fight, so long as peaceful means of satisfactory delimitation are available. The delegates at Washington acted promptly in urging that the dispute be arbitrated. If that proposal is not sufficient, undoubtedly various separate governments will step forward with their good offices to help bring about a friendly settlement.

In his address to the Pan-American Conference, President COOLIDGE showed how the republics of this hemisphere are bound both by tradition and treaty to seek a peaceful adjustment of their international differences. They have furnished several notable cases of arbitration. In more than one of them the United States Government has participated with good effect. This latest Pan-American Conference is an outgrowth of the Pan-American Congress which met at Havana last January. It adjourned without finishing all the business that had been laid before it. This very matter of arbitration was left over, and yet was felt to be of such great and pressing importance that an agreement was made to consider it at a special conference in Washington. That opened yesterday and ought surely to result in further strengthening the determination of the peoples of the Western Hemisphere to keep the peace between themselves, and to do everything in their power to reinforce the obligation of every country today to resort first of all to specific measures for ending international difficulties in accordance with the solemn pledges given both in the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg treaty.

LEGISLATIVE INQUIRIES.

There is this to be said for W. KINGSLAND MACY: he never runs away from a fight. And if none is offered, this Suffolk County Republican chairman will go out and hunt for one. First he took on Governor SMITH, in the matter of the State parks on Long Island, but found him a little beyond his weight. Now he has turned on Mayor WALKER. But he doesn't propose to fight him single-handed. Instead, he wants to prod the Legislature into action. He thinks an inquiry into the city's affairs would be in order. There is something rotten in the Police Department; a legislative commission, with WHITMAN, BUCKNER or TUTTLE for its counsel, should be able "to unearth the hidden influences at work to stay the arm of the law."

Mr. MACY doesn't pretend to know what such an investigation would disclose, but he hopes for the worst. "It might be a good thing to make it broad enough to take in more than the Police Department." He is delightfully open-minded about it. His idea of a fight appears to be a free-for-all, and the more the merrier. The legislative leaders will have something to say about that. Mr. MACY professes to have consulted some of them and found them in general agreement with his plan and purpose. Those with whom he has consulted are probably up-Staters like himself—for Suffolk is sometimes as up-State in its point of view as Fulton or Tioga. We don't observe any of the party's local lights rushing to his support. Is it possible that they remember the Meyer inquiry of 1921? Nobody else does, but they have good cause to. Rosy hopes were dashed by that incursion into the city's affairs.

We are on the eve of a municipal election. Of course, Mr. MACY would never let partisanship influence his thinking. But it is queer the way this idea of investigating New York City's affairs does pop up at such times. The fates have been rather unkind to the Republicans this year. Here was a fine sewer scandal out of which they ought to have been able to make all kinds of political capital, had not a Democratic Governor intervened. The grafters have been convicted and a Republican Borough President has been elected to clean up Queens County. There is nothing in it any more for the Legislature. Mr. MACY thinks that the Police Department is not what it should be. Many will agree with him about that, although they may disagree at the moment with his conclusion that a "legislative investigation is the very best way in which to get at the facts."

CAUGHT IN THE MACHINE.

In the complex life of New York there are many families and many individuals whose course, threading fairly clear through the maze, may be suddenly and disastrously tangled by an unpredictable slip in the machinery. Through no fault of their own, they may be unexpectedly thrown into confusion by the failure of the cogs of civilization to mesh properly. Some of the most pitiable of the Hundred Neediest Cases are people who only a few months ago were able to care for themselves and their families. In one devastating moment they have seen their livelihood and what small savings they have been able to accumulate torn from them.

A man who supported his wife and six children by long hours of work in his own small store is now reduced to want. Business was clocking along as usual, and the older children were helping with their earnings when they had jobs. One night when the 15-year-old daughter was taking charge of the shop while her father was busy in the rear workroom a bandit entered. If he had merely taken the contents of the till, the loss would have been keenly felt. MARY knew it, and, instead of putting up her hands, she struggled with him for the gun and screamed for help. Her father, coming to the rescue, was shot. The bullet lodged in his spine, and he has been in a hospital for several months, paralyzed. The business has been lost, and the occasional earnings of the eldest boy and girl are not enough.

These people are not of the class of shiftless paupers whom one helps again and again with no permanent independence resulting. They require less than a thousand dollars to keep them together until work of a suitable nature can be found for JACOB and HELEN. They are turning over every cent they earn to their mother, whose heart is sore with anxiety for her husband and the three younger children. She is desperately afraid of having to give them up, and unless help comes soon the family will be scattered.

No one is safe from unforeseen accident. The many friends of the Hundred Neediest, even though not themselves rich, may give themselves a lift of the heart by helping this and other worthy families over a rough place in the road.

THE RHODES FELLOWSHIPS.

Often throughout the year the people of the United States are reminded of the Rhodes fellowships at Oxford by events in the news. At this season particularly, when Dr. AYDELOTTE, American secretary to the Rhodes Trustees, announces the names of American youths who are going to Oxford under the plan, the subject holds much interest. Almost as many candidates as last year competed in the trials, and now thirty-two fellows from as many States are to continue the contact which CECIL RHODES hoped would produce an English-speaking imperial leader of unprecedented equipment and training.

RHODES was an enthusiast who believed that Great Britain, the United States and the British colonies and possessions would eventually make common cause, and it was unquestionably his belief that the fellowship idea would help to evolve leaders for his dream. He was inclined, late in his life, to admit the Teutons—the Latins never—as worthy partners in the sodality of nations—a fraternal impulse which the World War temporarily set aside. Too practical to be certain of, and yet visionary enough to expect, the development at Oxford of a super-Ameroangilan, the Rhodes exchange plan has been in force for over twenty years without the appearance of any prodigy of statecraft. Because of his continued absence, there has occasionally arisen some criticism of the Rhodes "scholar" system. In our own country it has now and then been remarked that no Rhodes man has turned up very often in the light of dazzling fame or with the credit of distinguished achievement. In England the comment has been heard that the students, who in 1904 were too often "moral" leaders in such movements as anti-rum and anti-cigarette clubs, are now too consistently recruited from the ranks of athletes who have harmed Oxford athletics by exhibiting skill which keeps the English undergraduates from trying for track team or crew. In more remote circles in both countries it has occasionally been said that the Rhodesians at Oxford from America were inclined to "colonize" themselves and do not move enough among the English student groups.

The answer to the charge that Rhodes men remain as a group obscure in American life seems conclusive; the oldest of them are barely 40 and just entering their zone of high achievement, while those who have made important progress have turned to the cloistered occupations of scholarship, economics, government service and the law. Their percentage of emergence in the trade which familiarizes names only a little less easily than public life—creative fiction—is high, with CHRISTOPHER MORLEY and ELMER DAVIS springing quickly to mind. The accusation that the students too often are athletes need hardly be answered. In fact the most ponderable criticism of the workings of the plan is questioning the requirement that the students be chosen by States, as if they were Senators, with New York, for example, being entitled to no more places than Arizona. Now Parliament is being asked to change the selective arrangement and divide this country into districts. That may improve the quality of the educational exiles. But even as things stand they are making their mark in this country, and their turn toward public life is not yet overdue.

OVERWORKED PRESIDENTS.

In his interesting article about the Presidency, written for the fiftieth anniversary of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Mr. COOLIDGE adverts, without complaint or bitterness, to the heavy burdens laid upon the Chief Executive. He thinks that something might be done to relieve him of part of them, but declares that, after all, a man in good health can carry them without injury to his health, provided he establishes for himself intelligent rules of official conduct. He should limit himself to what must be done and forego many things which he would like to do. He must control his hours; keep to a fixed schedule; follow a sound regimen in the matter of eating and exercise. The chief thing which President COOLIDGE suggests is an alternative residence for the President, within an easy automobile ride from Washington, where he could escape the intolerable heat and stagnant air which often overwhelm the capital in the Summer time. But, on the whole, Mr. COOLIDGE concludes that, from his own experience, as a man of no great robustness physically, it is possible for a President to do the work laid upon him without wrecking his health. He rather prides himself upon leaving the White House in as good condition as when he entered it.

As he remarks, schemes to lighten the load which the President of the United States has to carry have often been put forward, but nothing of consequence has been done. It is hard to see how he could be relieved of his most severe strain by legislation, or in any way except by an iron resolution of his own. This is the necessity, or supposed necessity, of seeing an endless string of callers—devastators of his day. It is an old cause of reproach. More than a hundred years ago when JOHN QUINCY ADAMS was President he wrote that the succession of daily visitors, asking for appointments to office or for other favors, became to him "inexpressibly distressing." They left him little time to think or work. They made life so difficult for him, from early morn to dewy eve, that he could not even keep his beloved diary up to date. Pursued by this horde of interrupters month after month, he was almost glad to retire from the Presidency in order to escape such "crazy cares."

Since his day, of course, the labors of the President have increased many fold. Perhaps the number of intrusions on his time is not greater, because there are only twenty-four hours in the day, and callers on the President would take up every one of them if they could. But subjects requiring his official attention have greatly multiplied. It was the estimate of a Washington correspondent, who lived for thirty years in contact with the White House, that the tasks laid upon the President were three times as many at the end of President ROOSEVELT'S term as they had been at the beginning of President CLEVELAND'S first term. Mr. ROOSEVELT himself, who probably took to the office a more abounding energy than any other President, felt the physical pull before he got through, and was once heard to exclaim that the amount of work thrust upon the President—often thoughtlessly or needlessly thrust—had come to be "an infamy."

Yet he thoroughly enjoyed it. JOHN MORLEY, who spent several days at the White House in 1904, observed the work of the President for an entire day. It consisted of receiving a long row of individuals, with several delegations, all of whom President ROOSEVELT addressed with characteristic vigor and free gesticulation. It was hard for Mr. MORLEY to imagine a man doing that day after day and year in and year out, and actually liking it! However, even the Roosevelt dynamo in time felt the friction.

Health, even of Presidents, is a relative term. We have had a few semi-invalids in the White House, and perhaps one or two Presidents have sadly broken down under its heavy work. But most of our Chief Executives have survived the Presidency, some of them in unusually excellent condition. The Presidency did not cut off JOHN ADAMS in the prime of life, nor did it even impair the strength of his son, JOHN QUINCY. Heredity sometimes overcomes bad environment. Yet there is no doubt that Presidents are asked to do far too much. If they could be freed, for example, from the duty of signing endless official documents, it would be a great help and harm no one. But there is no way of getting rid of the worst plague of a President's existence, unless he himself cultivates the ability to say no in the shortest possible time, and to deny himself to the swarms who fruitlessly beset him day and night.

ON SEA AND SHORE.

The American Merchant Marine Library Association, which has for the last six or seven years been supplying books to American ships, to life-saving stations and to lighthouses, has this year undertaken a new service. It continues to maintain a "public library of the high seas," having last year lent more than a quarter of a million volumes to sailors on 1,776 ships and to the amphibious men who at the edge of the seas keep the lights burning and those who hold themselves in readiness to go to the rescue of others. It is a promising field for adult education, for there are no such diversions on sea as on land, and consequently many of the 250,000 men in our merchant marine have leisure for reading when their work is over. The season for gathering these voluntary contributions is approaching and should be kept in mind as new Christmas books crowd out the old.

This association has compiled a "Baedeker for Jack Ashore"—a pocket volume which contains condensed information about 352 ports "from Aalborg to Yokohama," secured largely through our State Department from United States Consuls. This information relates to living quarters, climate, medical and dental aid, money values, population, laundries, amusements and points of interest. It also, occasionally, gives cautionary advice; for instance: In Tsingtao (whose pronunciation is given as "Ching low") the "safest beverage is beer where "the bottle is opened in the presence "of drinker." More summary counsel is given to those visiting the Society Islands. One item seems to reflect upon the hospitality of the reputed birthplace of the discoverer of America: "Genoa is a most difficult port in which to be stranded."

If the boy COLUMBUS who left Genoa for the sea at the age of fourteen were to come to the chief port of the New World today he would find, among several sailors' homes open to him, the Seamen's Church Institute, with 250 bedrooms supplied with hot and cold water, showers, a cafeteria and restaurant, a library, reading and writing and game rooms, a school for instruction in navigation, engineering, seamanship, first aid, &c.; concerts, lectures, motion pictures, laundry, barber and tailor shops, and, not least, a chapel. With such an institution in New York, no sailor need fear "to be stranded"; at any rate, he need have no such fear if the funds with which to complete the addition to this sailor's transient home are provided so that it will not be necessary to turn any applicant away after Jan. 1, 1929.

THE SIERRA CLUB TO THE RESCUE.

The resolution of the Sierra Club of California calling on Congress to take steps to enable the Federal Government to acquire the privately held lands within the National Parks is in accordance with the traditional policy of that organization. The late JOHN MUIR, its first president, who during his lifetime did so much to foster the establishment of national parks and the preservation of California's magnificent forests, would doubtless feel that his friends and successors are helping to carry forward the cause for which he made such a valiant fight. MUIR knew the rare beauties of the unspoiled wilderness, and realized that unless they were protected by the government they would ultimately be destroyed by predatory man.

Unfortunately, when the Yosemite and other national parks were created, patented lands within their boundaries were not taken over by the government. As a result, there are today large tracts of privately owned lands within the parks over which the government has not the same jurisdiction as over what it owns. In the Yosemite, in particular, these private lands include some of the finest tracts of sugar pine and other giant trees. Lumber companies which own them have been cutting, and will continue to do so unless the lands can be acquired for the National Park.

The destruction in the Yosemite was so appalling that there was a nation-wide demand that it be stopped. Many Californians of prominence, doubtful at first that the rest of the country would help, were surprised to find that from Maine and Florida westward the cry "Save the Yosemite trees!" was echoed. Fortunately the Sierra Club is peculiarly fitted to give effective response to this demand, as its influence in California is great, and its membership includes men prominent in national affairs, who have done much for conservation in past years. Their plan calls for an appropriation by Congress, to be matched by private subscriptions, and, if necessary, to be accompanied by provisions to facilitate the task of acquisition of the privately held lands. The fact that the measure will benefit the parks in other States as well as California indicates that the issue is not merely local, and that although California wishes to see her own National Parks relieved of privately held lands, she realizes that the other parks have the same need, and is proud, through the Sierra Club, to take the lead in this fight.

It is to the credit of the lumber companies which have so long held title to large sections of privately owned lands in the Yosemite and elsewhere that they have shown a disposition to go half way in meeting the nation's wishes to see the trees within the parks preserved. No one questions their legal right to their property or to do with it what they will. They cannot be deprived of it without due compensation, nor can they be forced into selling at a loss. The problem is one of making such adjustments as will assure both the government and the owners a fair deal.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Bequests for Women.

If the testamentary remarks of the late BRADFORD MERRILL are to be applied solely to his family conditions, and are held to relate to small bequests only, then his view that it is better to provide for women beneficiaries than men is sound. Since he was accustomed all his life to deal with words, it may be presumed that his double stress of the word "small," as qualifying his idea of property disposal, meant that this is to be taken literally. He was referring to the distribution of a small estate and was not offering counsel to multi-millionaires.

Mr. MERRILL believed that when a number of small sums were to be given by a testator, the women members of the family had better be selected because "poverty, hardship and want" were the best career-makers for a man, while security was an economic necessity for a woman. With a niece and nephew to choose between, then, Mr. MERRILL believed in leaving the niece $10,000 and the nephew nothing.

It may be noted that Mr. MERRILL had no son. His very rich neighbor, who lived across the Shelter Rock Road in Manhasset, had both a son and a daughter and left them many millions—the same number—each. That was PAYNE WHITNEY. But his example offers neither parallel nor contrast, for Mr. MERRILL was speaking of small bequests and—again it is worth noting—had no son to whom to hand down the responsibilities of name and fortune.

Ordered Better in Peking.

A strike of employes on subway or elevated trains or the bus or street car lines in any city in this country is one of the most unpopular kind. It is hard to be sympathetic with workers whose refusal to work causes so much inconvenience. But if they would put into practice the method recently used by Chinese strikers on the street cars in Peking the public would really enjoy the contest.

The men continued to operate the cars, but they refused to take any fares. Thus they kept the company from making money, and in fact used up capital every time a motorman threw in his lever, while they must have delighted the traveling public. People who would ordinarily have walked must have been tempted by a free ride.

The politeness of the Oriental must have made Peking sound a little fantastic to European ears during the two days of the strike. A gentleman, reading of the strike, sets out dejectedly to get to business somehow. At his usual corner the street car appears, the conductor smiling and imploring the honorable passenger to enter without dropping his admirable nickel in the box. Perhaps the cars were a little crowded for those two merry days, but the rejoicing should have lasted after the strike was settled. It was arranged so happily for those who are usually the chief sufferers.

Lawrence the Ubiquitous.

Russia, always the victim of odious conspiracies, has discovered that some one has upset the Russian applecart in Afghanistan, and trembles lest it be an act of LAWRENCE of Arabia.

The tale is almost like an incident from "Kim," reversed. Instead of the Russian agent working down from the north into India, the British agent is working northward into Russia's sphere. In this instance he is invested with the mystery and charm that have always followed the name of LAWRENCE in the East, regardless of his actual whereabouts.

If Colonel LAWRENCE were to write the memoirs of adventures which he has not been through, he could produce a volume even more enthralling than "Revolt in the Desert." Not even an airplane furnishes sufficiently rapid transportation to move him from one spot to another where, simultaneously, he is reported to be making peace or war.

In this instance, he is represented in a capacity which Kim would doubtless have described as "the father and mother of all agents," able single-handed and unsupported to knock a-gley the best laid schemes of the Bolsheviki.

Honor to Whom Honor Is Due.

If one were looking for the citizen who has done most to give to people a hobby that is a never-ending source of delight and satisfaction, the choice might well fall upon FRANK M. CHAPMAN, the ornithologist. This thought seems to go naturally with the announcement of the thirtieth birthday of Bird-Lore, devoted to the study and protection of birds, of which he is editor. Such a meritorious event is fittingly noticed on the editorial page of the issue of Dec. 1.

If any fault is to be found with the survey of thirty years, it is on the score of modesty. But here is a truth that should be repeated:

> No one can enjoy the friendship of birds without wanting to share his pleasures with others, and in the mere act of sharing reveal the sources of his joyous association with nature. The enthusiasm of the genuine bird-lover is contagious.

The editor rejoices in the usefulness of the American Ornithologists' Union, the inspiration of bird students who regard FRANK M. CHAPMAN as their beloved master. From the union sprang the auspiciously named Audubon Society. When this society was founded, every woman "wore in her hat the entire body of one or more native birds." How rare are the sight and the offense now!

With a copy of "Birds of Eastern North America" in his pocket and a seven-power glass in his hand, a boy or a girl has a world to conquer that never really succumbs, for no bird student can ever know it all. So much do the birds owe FRANK M. CHAPMAN that one would like to hear on the 15th of May a chorus in his honor of the Spring migrants.

A FOREST SLIPPING AWAY.

$2,000,000 More Is Needed to Preserve a Park in the Blue Ridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A final effort is being made to save those 500 square miles of forest in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia. The fight will be now won or lost. To those who have gone on with the matter during the years past the issue is of extraordinary importance.

Why is it so very difficult, in this country, to concentrate attention upon the crucial matter of saving our forests in general? And why, in a country the size of all Europe, must we fight in order to preserve a few paltry square miles for the health and pleasure of future generations? Our park areas east of the Rockies are but a few pitiful remnants of the original gifts of nature to this country.

Some of these forests in the Blue Ridge can be purchased for a dollar an acre. The average price is about $15 an acre. This price will save an acre of magnificent hardwood trees, the earth below carpeted with moss and wild flowers, near which sings some crystalline stream as it tumbles over the rocks.

This mountain area of 325,000 acres has been marked out by the National Park Service. The Federal Government will develop and conserve a park; but it never purchases the original site. Funds have been subscribed sufficient to pay for 200,000 acres. The $3,000,000 has been contributed by more than 26,000 individuals and by the State of Virginia. But the park site is a unified area.

There is a larger aspect of this matter. It concerns the most essential values of our future American civilization. Without abundant out-of-doors areas reserved for the recreation of all our people our city folk will continue to degenerate physically. Our rural population has been the sturdiest ever produced in the history of Western civilization. This people is now being concentrated in our cities. The speed of the process is profoundly disquieting. The American farm type, herded into factories and offices, loses much more than its physique. Its physical degeneracy breeds feebleness of character. To visualize the future of these millions of Americans, have a look at contemporary London.

Our position here is that only a life out of doors can ultimately save this people. We see all these hundred millions from our seaboard cities living part of their time in the country. Thousands of valleys and upland plateaus and seashore areas will be used for playing fields. Let every one enjoy himself according to his desire. The educative play of tomorrow must largely replace the educative work of yesterday.

While we spend, again and again, tens of millions of dollars for a great theatre which presents ten-cent artistic creations, can't we somehow find two millions more to devote to the park and playground plan in the Blue Ridge? There must be hundreds of citizens who will welcome the opportunity emphasized by this statement. The appeal is not made by an individual. It is made, on the one side, by a hundred millions of future Americans; and on the other, by a vast area of mountain forests which generously offers the fullness of their service for all the years to come.

FRANK BOHN.

Myrtle Beach, S. C., Dec. 5, 1928.

AT PARTING.

I am not grieved because it is broken,
Nor stricken because it lasts no longer,
Nor ashamed of any desire spoken.
God knows, had we been a little stronger
Life would have been surely less worth living!
And when the heart opens and is speaking
Its own tongue—there is no thought of giving
Or of taking; of asking or seeking.

No thought of Yesterday or of Tomorrow.
And I think it is greater sadness
For the heart to walk a hill of sorrow
Because of its own exquisite madness;
That only those who love can remember
The music of April in December!

HERT COOKESLEY.

A NEW FIELD OPENS.

We Need to Be Insulated Against Uncomprehended Vibrations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has any one yet invented a vibration proof retreat—some place where one can lie down in peace, free from the vibrations of radio waves, of the ether or atmospheric disturbances which accompany transmitting speech, power, music, thought and goodness knows what other crude and powerful man-made disturbances which now pulsate through space? If not, is it not high time that some clever scientist bend his effort in that direction rather than toward finding more ways for turning loose new tremors on the unoffending atmosphere?

I know little of vibrations—light, sound, heat, purple, violet, infra-red and other rays. These natural and God-established phenomena, however, seem reasonable, calm and sane enough even to the lay intelligence. But when you try to picture in your mind the state of affairs which must be wrought in the layer of atmosphere which so thinly covers the earth by the agitation of a thousand radio stations and other powerful devices you are really appalled at the thought of what their effect on man may be.

We know well enough how definitely detrimental to nerves and peace are continuous, abnormal vibrations consciously perceptible to the five senses; the din and bad smells of a great city—the glare of powerful artificial lights, the raucous sounds of cheap phonographs and ghoully toned loud speakers. We know what the rancid weeds and the sun glare of the desert do to us. But all these we are at least conscious of and can guard against to some extent.

But what of the thousands of waves, counter-waves, cross-currents and myriad vibrations which are now passing by and through and around us every minute without our being sensibly conscious of them until they are translated into jazz and other futilities? Is it not more than possible that these new and abnormal manifestations of energy, while not directly perceptible to the human being through the ordinary organs of sense, are, in fact, doing all sorts of things to us that we do not know about and therefore cannot define? With a good receiving set one can hear a jazz band at Coney Island or Aimee McPherson at Los Angeles, whether one be in the Cañon de Chelly or on the summit of Navajo Mountain. But are all these waves doing nothing to us when we are not "tuned in"? Is it possible nowadays for the "mind stuff" to be at rest without the aid of some protective nonconductor? And can't the experts tell us how to build for ourselves, either in our own homes or at occasional retreats, rooms impenetrable to these abnormal influences, just as the clinical operator guards himself with leaden apron and gloves against the emanations of radium?

Last year I visited in New York a great studio where they were experimenting with the recording of a talking picture, not the glaring sort of grating and crude production one now sees in the movie houses, but something much more delicately devised. The large room was lined throughout with thick layers of cork and other insulators in an attempt to exclude outside vibrations and one was cautioned not to speak even in a whisper while in the room. In the Bureau of Standards here and in other countries the standard weights and measures made, constituted and tested with almost infinite care are kept suspended with scales and holders operated from a distance in small chambers insulated and protected with many thicknesses of various nonconducting materials and touched directly but very rarely by human hands. We know in these and other instances what pains are taken to protect against extraneous physical and vibratory influences. The human body and its nervous system, while so constituted as to endure an awful lot of damage, is, after all, not omnipotently endowed, and it seems as though we should be as interested in maintaining it unscathed as we are items of lesser importance.

In fact, there never was an age in which so much was being done along this very line—thanks to the great hospitals and clinics and the generous endowments of wealthy men. But it would seem to a layman as though we may be missing out a bit along the lines herein indicated and not sufficiently protecting ourselves as we go along by an excess of zeal in the harnessing of new powers, forces and influences. These by-products of progress or civilization may not by any means be as innocuous as they seem. What their effect may be on the instinctive, emotional and intellectual centres of man no one knows and many people are beginning to wonder whether some of the ills of the present day are not directly due to them and how, if so, we can protect ourselves.

An Example to Animal Owners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recently the papers printed a story telling about the careful plans that Governor Smith has made for the members of his zoo in Albany, which must be broken up when he leaves office Jan. 1. Five dogs, a monkey and all the birds will be brought to the new Smith home in New York. Other pets will be given to friends, and the Governor has asked his successor to keep the deer and elk, because he fears the climate of the State Forest Preserve will be too cold for animals accustomed to the protection of the Executive Mansion zoo.

Many owners of pets might well take a leaf from the book of this man, who, in the midst of pressing duties, finds time to think of the dumb creatures that are dependent on him. The many homeless dogs and cats in the New York streets are sad proof that too many people are careless, sometimes cruel, in this respect. The New York Women's League for Animals, Inc., wishes to take this occasion to ask owners to protect their pets from getting lost, and to ask those who for any reason cannot keep their animals not to let them out to shift for themselves, but to take them to a shelter.

The Ellin Prince Speyer Hospital for Animals, at 230 Lafayette Street, receives unwanted animals, finds homes for the sound ones and puts the others mercifully to death. Its doors are never closed.

FARM CHIEF URGES EXTRA-SESSION AID

S. H. Thompson Tells Bureau Federation at Chicago Present Congress Lacks Time.

WOULD WORK WITH HOOVER

Agriculture Seeks No Emergency Treatmen, He Adds—Economist Assails Tariff Hopes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Advising that Herbert Hoover's proposed plan of farm relief be viewed sympathetically by the American Farm Bureau Federation, its president, S. H. Thompson, discouraged at the opening of the federation's convention here today the idea of any emergency treatment of the farm problem in the present session of Congress.

Mr. Thompson advised the delegates, said to represent 2,000,000 producers, to "wholeheartedly meet President-elect Hoover on an open basis and consider on their merits any proposal advanced by the incoming administration to obtain equality for agriculture."

The words of their chief apparently were a surprise to some of those attending the meeting, who had expected the Farm Bureau to continue its fight for the McNary-Haugen bill, which President Coolidge vetoed twice.

Quotes Hoover Statement.

Mr. Hoover's statement that the farm problem "is the most urgent economic problem of our nation today," and that a special session of Congress would be called if a solution is not reached in the December session of Congress, was pointed out by Mr. Thompson.

"To my mind," he said, "this is the most heartening thing that has happened since we waged our battle for equality for agriculture. It is recognized generally that surplus control legislation and agricultural tariffs are companion measures, each exerting a long-time influence. Emergency treatment of either measure is not sought by us, since a national policy for agriculture cannot be founded on emergency treatments."

The control of surplus crops and agricultural tariffs are inseparable, in Mr. Thompson's opinion.

"Both such major legislative projects should be considered at an extra session of the Seventy-first Congress, which we confidently expect will be called soon after the adjournment of the Seventieth Congress," he declared.

The delegates were told that if the Hoover Administration found a better way to give agriculture the benefits of the protective system than the measures they had supported in recent years "then we should support the better way and see that it is enacted into a law."

"This is of such vital importance to the welfare of thirty million farm people first, and to the nation as a whole," he said, "that the way it is accomplished is insignificant in comparison to the importance of having it done well and efficiently.

Expects More Farm Abandonment.

Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, challenged "emphatically the view that there has been any fundamental improvement in the economic position of American agriculture during the past six years."

He said that "agriculture is broke and has been since the war," and the only way to save agriculture is to find some means of making up its $5,000,000,000 deficit.

I see nothing to look forward to but the abandonment of two or three million farm enterprises in the course of the next ten years," he said.

"Those who are trying to sell tariff to the farmers, either as a way of raising farm prices or as a way of cutting farm costs, are merchandising a wooden nutmeg, and the wooden nutmeg business is unfortunately no longer confined to New England," Mr. Jordan said.

"The less American agriculture allows itself to be seduced into the blind log-rolling by which tariffs are made today, the better off it will be in the end. I feel that the time has come for honest men to put personal interest aside, to look the sacred cow in the face, to express themselves candidly on the tariff and to say that agriculture and industry alike are deluding themselves in their belief that it is a magic or sovereign remedy for all economic ills in this country.

Recalls Industry's Moves.

"Unless we are ready to throw up our hands and surrender the industry wholly to government control, no Federal farm board or other governmental agency can do what has to be done to readjust and restore American agriculture. If it is given any authority it is immediately hamstrung by political expediency, and if it is not given any authority it is a fraud and a deception.

"In recent years other basic industries, confronted with similar problems of readjustment of capacity and changing market demands, have established within themselves representative and authoritative organizations to assume the guidance and control of the development of the industry on the basis of better knowledge of its position and needs. As matters stand today, this is the great need of American agriculture.

"The political power of the farmer has had its test; we know now how strong it is and we know fairly clearly what it could conceivably accomplish toward meeting the fundamental problems which confront the industry. The future depends upon how energetically and aggressively the industry can develop within itself some agency of strong, scientific and economic leadership by which it can deal effectively with the fundamental problems of readjustment which it faces."

ALBANY PAPERS COMBINE.

Times-Union, Hearst Owned, Purchases The Sunday Telegram.

ALBANY, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Albany Times-Union, a Hearst newspaper, tonight announced the purchase of The Albany Sunday Telegram, owned by a stock company. The paper will be published, beginning Dec. 16, as The Sunday Times-Union and Telegram. The consideration was not made known.

The Sunday Telegram, forty years old, was founded by James Hill; The Times-Union was founded seventy-five years ago, and its first editor of record was Theophilus C. Callicot. The transaction has been under discussion for three months, the Times-Union announcement said.

Plans call for an average edition of seventy pages, or treble the present size of the paper. August C. Myers is publisher of the purchased paper. Other owners were announced as John Lehman, Edward Bates and Norman Jones, all of Albany.

RICCI DEFINES PLAN FOR ITALIAN STATE

Mussolini's Aide Asserts That Parliament Will Be Composed of Ablest in Nation.

HE LEADS 1,000,000 YOUTHS

Balilla Chief, Here to Study Our Physical Education, Says Boys Learn Strictest Discipline.

Fascism has ended all administrative and social disorder in Italy and has created new systems of national organization on a cooperative basis, Renato Ricci, vice secretary of the National Fascist party and a member of the Italian Parliament, said yesterday in an interview in the Plaza. Signor Ricci, who came here recently to study our systems of physical education, is accompanied by Noel Cripps and Professor Lucio Bugelli.

"Mussolini has not limited himself to making public waste absolutely impossible," he said. "He has also conceived and carried out a system of organizations which go to make cooperative Italy, by which the Italian Parliament will be the great national assembly. Its components will really and truly represent the aspiration and interest of the Italian people, since they will be delegated by the great cooperative organizations, to which must belong all those who work in Italy or employ laborers, together with the artistic and educational organizations of the country.

"The direct control of the Prime Minister over the suggestions which will be presented to him will guarantee in effect that the best among all those who represent thought, production and national work will have the honor and the responsibility of sitting in the Italian Parliament. And a choice so made will be the best guarantee that the discussions that will take place in Parliament will not be determined by vain glory or the hunger for the applause which crowds love to accord to their 'tribunes,' but with the unique intent of improving the harmonious development of Italian power."

Signor Ricci said that parallel with this action the Fascist Government is elevating the standard of life of the Italian people.

DR. TEMPLE IS ELECTED ARCHBISHOP OF YORK

YORK, England, Dec. 10 (AP).—Dr. William Temple, Bishop of Manchester, was formally elected Archbishop of York today.

He succeeds the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, who has been elevated to the archbishopric of Canterbury.

The Right Rev. William Temple, who is only 46 years old, apart from having served as King George's honorary chaplain since 1919, is connected with the British reigning family by marriage. His mother was a member of the historic house of Lascelles and the present Viscount Lascelles is the husband of Princess Mary.

Dr. Temple's father, as Archbishop of Canterbury, was the prelate who crowned Edward VIII. On his father's side, too, Dr. Temple is descended in direct line from Lady Godiva of Coventry.

He entered the ministry in 1904, and has served as chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, as head master of Repton School, as Rector of St. James's Church, Piccadilly, and as Canon of Westminster Abbey. He was named Bishop of Manchester in 1921. He visited New York City in 1915 to deliver the Paddock lectures at the General Theological Seminary. As early as 1924 he was named as a likely choice to succeed the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HELD IN LEVIATHAN THEFT.

Viennese Woman Arrested in Connection With Mail Robbery.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 10.—Slowly and methodically the Vienna police, with the cooperation of some other countries, appear to be drawing a net around the gang of international crooks who perpetrated the Leviathan mail robbery on June 23.

By cross-questioning Friedrich Rybar, who was arrested several days ago when he offered part of the stolen bonds for sale, the Vienna police obtained a statement that he received the securities, not at Monte Carlo, as was first alleged, but at Antwerp, from a man named Charles Larson, alias Frans Rudis. The police also learned that Rybar stowed part of the securities in the home of Minnie Mickner, a Vienna woman, a friend.

When this was discovered the Vienna authorities also held her and gave the Belgian police sufficient clues to arrest Larson.

GAS OVERCOMES SIX GIRLS.

400 Others Flee From Leak in Newark Factory.

Six girls were overcome, more than a dozen fainted and about 400 others fled in panic when a leak developed in a newly installed gas tank in the plant of the Gold Seal Manufacturing Company, makers of radio tubes, at 127 South Fifteenth Street, Newark, yesterday afternoon.

An emergency call brought two ambulances from the Newark City Hospital. The women removed to that institution were Adeline Soden, 16, of 147 Arthur Street, Hillside; Ann Quinn, 18, of 30 Windsor Street, Kearny; Anna Picardi, 18, of 100 Grafton Avenue; Mrs. Zoe Argueso, 28, of 450 Main Street, West Orange; Mrs. Theresa Boehl, 42, of 70 West Kinney Street, and Mrs. Sophie Weiss, 23, of 127 South Twenty-first Street, Irvington. All the women went to their homes after treatment except Mrs. Weiss, who remained at the hospital, suffering from hysteria.

Margaret Illington Recovering.

Margaret Illington, wife of Major Edward J. Bowes, managing director of the Capitol Theatre, is rapidly recovering from an appendicitis operation at the Harbor Sanitarium, 667 Madison Avenue. The operation was performed several days ago by Dr. Philip M. Grausman of 130 West Fifty-eighth Street. Dr. Grausman said last night his patient would be able to leave the hospital in about ten days. Miss Illington retired from the stage about eleven years ago.

$1,010,000 FUND VOTED FOR PALESTINE WORK

Budget Adopted by Economic Corporation Presages Extensive Developments.

Extensive development in Palestine is provided for in the budget of $1,010,000 authorized at the executive committee meeting of the Palestine Economic Corporation held last week, details of which were made public yesterday by Bernard Flexner, president of the corporation.

In cooperation with other agencies interested in the development of the country, arrangements have been made to purchase about 9,500 acres of land in the immediate neighborhood of Haifa Bay, where a harbor is being built by the government.

Part of the appropriation will be used to extend agricultural credits and approximately $235,000 has been set aside to develop orange and almond groves and vineyards, purchase livestock, construct farm buildings and for general farm improvements.

Additional funds to extend industrial credits will be provided by the budget, the money to be used in providing loans for the purchase of machinery, raw material, operating capital for tanneries, iron foundries, manufactures of paper products and furniture.

The corporation also appropriated additional funds to establish small houses in the colonies suited to the relatively low wage level for agricultural workers. This is a continuation of the previous plan whereby a family received a house, small plot of land for a vegetable garden, a cow and some chickens.

The corporation also will participate in building a first-class hotel in Jerusalem.

ARCTIC SHIP MORRISEY OUT OF PANAMA CANAL

Explorers Are Bringing Mummies, Animals and Other Specimens to New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Panama, Dec. 10.—With four mummies and the skeletons of a whale and a walrus aboard the yawl Effie Morrisey, Captain Bob Bartlett, commander, passed through the canal yesterday and sailed for New York, returning from the Siberian Arctic expedition for the American Museum of Natural History.

The greater part of the collection already had been shipped to the United States on the Canadian Pacific Railway. Three groups of each of the species collected include male, female and young of polar bear, seal and walrus and numerous birds and forms of ocean life.

Captain Bartlett said they encountered terrible difficulties on account of the ice and also heavy gales and heavy fogs. Others aboard the Morrisey are Charles H. Stoll, director, and Mrs. Stoll; Harold McCracken, leader; H. E. Anthony, naturalist; Andrew Johnson and R. B. Potter, taxidermists, and F. J. Jacques, artist.

The Morrisey left New York on the expedition last February.

A. W. REYNOLDS DIES AS BOAT OVERTURNS

Scion of Tobacco Family Who Disinherited Him Drowns Near Norwalk, Conn.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Dec. 10.—Alton W. Reynolds, 36, scion of the family identified with the tobacco trade, who disinherited him years ago because of his marriage to a railroad employe's daughter, was drowned Saturday in South Norwalk harbor when a skiff in which he was returning from a duck-hunting trip overturned.

His uncle-in-law, Herbert W. Preston, also was drowned, and his son, Alton W. Reynolds Jr., 14, was rescued in a serious condition after clinging to the overturned boat for several hours.

Lady McKendrick of Kew Gardens, L. I., Mr. Reynolds's mother, from whom he had been estranged since her disapproval of his marriage to Hazel Blasser of East Norwalk, was on her way tonight from her Long Island estate to the humble cottage in which the son lived.

MISS HUNSICKER'S RECITAL.

Soprano Heard Here In Former Years Gives Ambitious Program.

Lillian Hunsicker, a soprano who has been heard here in former seasons, gave a recital last night in the Town Hall. An ambitious program opened with an air from Bach's Cantata 149, which was followed by Strozzi's "Amor dormiglione" and Handel's "Sweet Bird" aria from "Il Pensieroso." The singer's light voice has not the firm and resonant quality or the brilliancy of timbre to cope with the demands of such music. She achieved some sustained tones of agreeable smoothness and purity of intonation, though these qualities were seldom in evidence in passages calling for vocal agility and animation. German Lieder by Strauss, Wolf, Mahler and Marx; a French group by Chabrier, Saint-Saëns, Fauré and Grovlez, and songs in English by Loeffler, Harriet Ware, Monro and Richard Hagemen, the accompanist, completed the list. As an encore Miss Hunsicker sang the melodious "Canzonetta" of Loewe, in which she appeared to better advantage than in much of what had gone before. John Amans played the flute obbligati to several selections.

Heavy Rain In Canal Zone.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Dec. 10.—The heaviest rainfall of the present wet season fell at the Atlantic entrance of the canal yesterday, when the gauges showed six inches of rain before noon. It is estimated that five inches of rain fell over the entire area of Gatun Lake, which was already at the maximum level of eighty-seven feet. This necessitated opening twelve gates of the spillway, which discharged the surplus at the rate of more than 7,000,000 gallons a minute.

General Brown Heads Canal Area.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Dec. 10.—Brig. Gen. Lytle Brown arrived here today on the transport San Mihiel, which transited the canal en route to San Francisco. General Brown takes charge of the Atlantic Division of the army forces in the Canal Zone, replacing Major Gen. Charles D. Rhodes, who recently retired from the service. He came here from Washington, where he served as Assistant Commandant of the War College.

PEARSON EULOGIZED BY DR. A. T. HADLEY

Notables of Railroad World Attend Funeral of the New Haven's Ex-President.

TRAFFIC ON ROAD HALTS

Services Held at Yale University—Mr. Pearson's Spirit in His Great Task Lauded.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10.—At 12 o'clock noon today all trains, trolleys, buses and vessels of the New Haven Railroad and its subsidiaries paused for a minute to honor the memory of Edward J. Pearson, president of the road for eight years, whose funeral took place at that hour in Battell Chapel, Yale University, the church where he had worshiped. Offices of the railroad in New York, New Haven, Hartford, Boston, Waterbury, Danbury and Taunton closed for the afternoon.

A special train brought officials and directors of the railroad and bankers and business men from New York for the services. A private car brought officials of the New Haven and other railroads from Boston.

Battell Chapel was filled with friends of Mr. Pearson. Professor Henry H. Tweedy of the Yale Divinity School, assisted by the Rev. Elmore McKee, pastor of the Church of Christ in Yale, officiated. President Emeritus Arthur Twining Hadley of Yale, a director of the New Haven Railroad for the last fifteen years, spoke in eulogy of his friend.

A Discouraging Task.

"Never has a man faced a more discouraging task than that which confronted this man in 1920," Dr. Hadley said. "Only those who were at his side in those dark days can know the burdens which he was called upon to carry, and the superb way in which he bore them. Step by step, with infinite patience and undaunted courage, he brought order out of chaos in the operations and finances of the New Haven system, and put it into a position to serve the community under present-day traffic conditions.

"Two years ago we saw that he was beginning to wear himself out, and besought him to take a well-earned rest, but he was not the man to rest while his work for others was undone. Only when he saw light ahead, saw that the heaviest part of his work was done and that he might safely confide the future to others, was he willing to think of rest, and then it was too late for him to enjoy the fruition of his hopes and plans, not too late for him to have received that profoundest enjoyment which comes from the confidence and loyalty of those who have worked with him and under him.

Gratefully Remembered.

"In every part of the country, north, south, east and west, the name of Pearson is gratefully remembered by his fellow-workers from chief engineer down to trainman. Of the arts by which popularity is commonly secured he had not a trace, but he had as friends those who were doing their work in the spirit with which he did his—for the sake of the thing to be accomplished and not for persons' remuneration. For them he gave generously of his strength as long as it lasted, for them he laid down his life when strength was gone."

The body of Mr. Pearson will be taken to Fresh Pond, L. I., for cremation.

STUDENT FLIER DIES IN LONG ISLAND CRASH

M. Van Voorhis of Canton, Ohio, Loses Plane's Control Near Hicksville—Craft Falls 200 Feet.

Special to The New York Times.

HICKSVILLE L. I., Dec. 19.—While starting a flight from a practice field about two miles from this village at 12:20 P. M. today Marvin Van Voorhis, 22 years old, of Canton, Ohio, a student pilot in the Curtiss Flying School, was killed and his plane burned, when it fell to the ground from a height of 200 feet.

According to officials at the Curtiss Flying Service at Curtiss Field, Van Voorhis had left on a practice flight fifteen minutes before his death. From the time consumed it was estimated that he had time to make one landing at this practice field, which is about six miles east of Curtiss Field.

Tom Kelster, a farmer at Island Trees, said he saw the plane making a full nose-dive into the ground.

According to Curtiss officials this is the first death of a student pilot of the school over a period of more than ten years, during which time more than 1,500 students received instruction.

BATTLE FOR MLLE. LENGLEN

Members of Her Party Strike Reporter at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP).—Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star whose visit to this country has aroused various rumors of matrimony, arrived at Glendale, near here, today on the special car of Mrs. Anita Baldwin.

She departed for the Baldwin home at Arcadia, east of Glendale, after two members of her party had struck a newspaper reporter when he interfered with their attempt to prevent a photographer from taking pictures.

As Mlle Lenglen stepped from the car at the station, a small group of photographers and reporters came forward. Quickly she called to two members of her party. The fisticuffs followed. The photographers snapped his picture as the tennis star stepped into an automobile.

Definite announcement was made today by Mrs. Baldwin that her guest has not been engaged to her son, B. M. Baldwin, or to her daughter's divorced husband, T. A. Winter of Los Angeles.

"So far as I know, Mlle. Lenglen's plans are to complete her visit with me and then return directly to her home in France," Mrs. Baldwin said.

Club Honors Father McQuade.

About eighty members of the Cathedral Club of St. Patrick's Cathedral honored the Rev. Bernard F. McQuade at a dinner last night at the Waldorf. Father McQuade was for many years the moderator of the club. Among the other guests of honor was Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, the Rev. John M. J. Quinn and James B. McQuade.

G. W. OCKENDON DEAD; LONG A RESTAURATEUR

Was Known to Thousands in the City as 'Billy, the Oyster Man.'

George Washington Ockendon, the portly restaurateur, known to thousands of New Yorkers as "Billy, the Oysterman," died on Sunday in the Murray Hill Sanitarium after a long illness, at the age of 53. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Florence S. Ockendon, and three brothers, Joseph S., William T. and Harvey G. Funeral services will be held at 10 A. M. tomorrow at the Elks Club, 108 West Forty-third Street. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Ockendon's father, William T. Ockendon, was the original "Billy the Oysterman," and the son succeeded to the title. The father opened a restaurant under that name fifty years ago, after starting with an oyster stand at Wooster and West Third Streets, where oysters sold for a cent a piece. "Billy the Oysterman" became an institution known throughout the city. The restaurant was located at first in a basement in Wooster Street. Later it moved to West Third Street, then to Nineteenth Street, and in 1912 to its present location, 7 East Twentieth Street.

The present restaurant of "Billy the Oysterman" offers a sharp contrast with the sawdust-covered floors of the earlier places. It has tiled floors, mounted fish on the walls and expensive furniture.

George W. Ockendon, as eldest son of the founder, became president of the firm when his father died. With his brothers, he would personally greet the prominent guests. Among those who came frequently were Governor Smith, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and leaders of sport, politics and the stage.

BASHFORD DEAN'S FUNERAL.

Representatives of Many Societies Honor Former Columbia Professor.

Funeral services for Dr. Bashford Dean, honorary professor of vertebrate zoology at Columbia University, were held yesterday afternoon in St. Paul's Chapel on the campus. Graduates of the university and members of many societies were among those present. The services were conducted by the Rev. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of the university, and the Rev. George M. Duff, pastor of the Riverdale Presbyterian Church.

Professor Dean, who died on Friday at Battle Creek, Mich., was former curator of the arms and armor department of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, a trustee of the museum and honorary curator of fishes at the American Museum of Natural History.

The honorary pallbearers included President Nicholas Murray Butler of the university, George H. Sherwood, Edward Robinson, Robert W. de Forest, Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, George D. Pratt, Howard Mansfield, R. T. Haines Halsey, Stephen H. P. Pell, Professor Livingston R. Morse, Charles Moore Beecher, Frederick Allison, Reginald Pelham Bolton, Dr. William K. Gregory and Albert Gallatin.

Representatives were present from the Metropolitan Museum of Art's department of arms and armor, the New York Aquarium, the New York Botanical Society, the American Museum of Natural History, Columbia University's department of zoology, the Museum of the City of New York, the Century Association, the Hobby Club, the Armor and Arms Club, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Dyckman Institute and the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

Burial was in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Tarrytown.

MRS. CORNELIA S. N. CLIFFE

Woman Who Faced a Union Battery to Burn Bridge Dies.

FRANKLIN, Tenn., Dec. 10 (AP).—The ranks of the South's "unreconstructed" women were further thinned when Mrs. Cornelia S. Nichols Cliffe, widow of a Union soldier, but follower of the lost cause, died yesterday at the home here of her son, Dr. Daniel B. Cliffe. It was Mrs. Cliffe who, aided only by an old man, faced fire of a Federal battery to burn the Nashville bridge and temporarily halt the Union advance on Franklin.

After the engagement Mrs. Cliffe was among the first on the field to minister to the wounded Confederates. Her home was converted into a hospital.

Adam L. Dutrow.

Special to The New York Times.

GUTMAN—Malvin. At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of The Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, held at the home on Sunday, Dec. 9, 1928, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: We learned with great sorrow of the death of our valued Trustee and friend, Malvin Gutman.

For eighteen years he most faithfully served the Home as a Trustee and at the time of his death acted as Chairman of the important House and Budget Committees.

He visited the institution almost daily acquainted himself with every detail concerning its affairs, and spared no time nor effort in furthering its interests. His fellow Trustees will sadly miss him and the Home, which he loved so well, will lose a most earnest, zealous and devoted friend.

To his widow and family we extend our heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow and resolve, that a copy of these resolutions, suitably engrossed, be presented to them, and that as an added mark of respect, the Board of Trustees attend the funeral, to be held at the Universal Funeral Chapel, 841 Lexington Av., on Tuesday, Dec. 11, 1928, at 2:30 o'clock P. M.

Never So Colorful a Christmas Store as Wanamaker's

Nor One So Well Equipped to Serve its Patrons Satisfactorily

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

"Guess I Need Other Eyeglasses"

Whether the world is blue or gray depends much upon the use of glasses as our eyes grow older, or upon the stronger spectacles needed after our first glasses. It is the glasses and not the world that's wrong. Take off the smoked glasses of prejudice, or long-worn old "glasses of years ago," or "the specs" of "let well enough alone," and then take a good, fair look at modernized business as it shows in this store.

Some Book Types FOR GIFT CONSIDERATION

Just a few from a collection that is alluring with tantalizing titles...books, any one of which will be a Christmas gift worth cherishing.

"Labrador Looks at The Orient"

Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell left his beloved land of ice and snow and for twelve months went looking around the world...the book is the log of that perfect journey... interesting for its point of view as it is for its entertaining style..... $5

"The Great Horn Spoon"

A tale that recalls the strange adventures of that prince of travelers, Marco Polo...for this breathless young American has gone pell-mell into the midst of life in all the out-of-the-way corners he could find on the map...nothing escaped him and his book is as vivid as the sun-drenched places he describes..... $4

"Rasputin The Holy Devil"

The strange peasant who wandered into the midst of Russian court life and by his uncanny personality and practices turned the last years of that ill-fated group of Russian royalty into an orgy of superstition and unnatural living...this book by Rene Fulop-Miller, says Romain Rolland, "is an extraordinary romance of reality." $5

"Cap'n George Fred"

Here is a book that will fascinate all lovers of sea tales...one of the last of the old salts of New England who ran away to sea in their teens and hunted whales in the South Seas and experienced every mysterious adventure that the sea has to offer, told by himself and charmingly illustrated from paintings and drawings by Harry Neyland. It is..... $4

"Long Lance"

Here is one of the Blood Band of the Black Feet Indians writing of his people...of his own life among them...it is a fascinating close-up of two civilizations by a young man who for all his cosmopolitan accomplishments is first of all an Indian...rejoicing in the splendid privilege of being a real American..... $2.50

"Coming Up The Road"

"Memories of a North Country Boyhood," by Irving Bacheller... Reading the descriptions of beautiful Paradise Valley and the life of its inhabitants one is moved to regret the triumph of cities and the ensuing artificiality... In the characters appearing on these delightful pages one finds the originals of many of Mr. Bacheller's characters.... Eben Holden and the rest...restful, end-of-the-dayish reading, intimate and smile provoking..... $3.50

"Custer"

"The Last of the Cavaliers," by Frazier Hunt...one of America's great fighters...a picturesque figure...enmeshed in things martial from his youth... called "Lucky" Custer, but came an hour when Fortune turned her back, and what boy but has been held spellbound by the story of his gallant death at the hands of the marauding Indians that day on the Little Big Horn ...A great book for boys of all ages..... $2

NEEDIEST FUND GETS $15,886 ON FIRST DAY

Total Goes to $20,238 as Gifts Come From Near and Far to Help the Unfortunate.

LARGEST DONATION $5,000

It Comes From Charles Hayden —Four Send $1,000 Each, One Gives $1,230, Another $1,200.

CHILDREN ARE EAGER TO AID

Boy, 10, Tells How He and Sister, 7, Earned $100 — Regiment Lists Gift in Memory of Its Dead.

Contributions of $15,886 for the Neediest Cases Fund, including one donation of $5,000, were received yesterday. This sum brought the total of gifts to $20,238.80 on the first day after the opening of the appeal.

A total of $285,834 sent last year enabled the fund to care for about 400 families and individuals. In many cases the contributions meant life itself to the needy, in others whole families were kept together, while homeless, neglected children found a chance to start life on an even footing with children more fortunate.

It is hoped that this year the fund's range of usefulness will not only be maintained but extended. After reading the typical neediest cases set forth on this page, those who are impelled to join in the effort to alleviate the sufferings of the neediest may send checks to The New York Times or to any of the seven organizations which attest the cases and administer the fund free of cost. Every dollar contributed goes in its entirety to the cases.

One of Largest Gifts to Fund.

The contribution of $5,000, one of the largest in the sixteen years' history of the fund, was sent by Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., stock brokers at 25 Broad Street. Mr. Hayden, who has been a regular contributor to the fund for many years, took notice of the fact that many cases other than the original Hundred are taken care of through the generosity of Times readers. He wrote as follows:

Dec. 10, 1928.

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

I was delighted to see your Sunday supplement again calling attention to the One Hundred Neediest Cases.

While in periods of great prosperity there is less unemployment and therefore the percentage of people in distress may be less, with the growth of population there must always be an increasing actual number of people who are most decidedly in that class.

Therefore, the needs this year are greater than ever.

I hardly think all of your readers realize that this fund which you raise annually is not only for these specified one hundred cases, but is also for the numerous other cases that it is imperative to take care of out of the general fund of the different charities mentioned for their regular budget during 1929, and certainly these charities are doing such good work that they are entitled each year to be more generously supported for the above-mentioned reasons. I, therefore, take much pleasure in enclosing my check for $5,000, Wishing you all success in getting over the top early, I am,

Very sincerely,

CHARLES HAYDEN.

Another large gift was a check for $1,230 sent by Albert B. Boardman. Mr. Boardman, who is a member of the law firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Parkes & Fox, 120 Broadway, distributed his contribution between two cases—No. 5, "They Made $100 Last Nine Months," and No. 22, "A Couple Old and Feeble."

Four Send $1,000 Each.

Four contributors sent $1,000 each. They were Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Horace C. Stebbins and "A. M. B." All are old friends of the neediest cases.

Another contributor sent $300 each to four of the organizations participating in the appeal. A similar series of gifts was sent to the organizations last year.

There were three contributions of $250 each. One was "In Memory of 306th Infantry's Gallant Dead"; the others came from Mrs. W. T. W., and "Anonymous." There were two donations of $200 each, one sent anonymously and the other as "Christmas Greetings."

Contributors of $100 each were many. Those who forwarded this sum, many of them old friends of the fund, included Joseph Strouck, Blanche T. Pierson, George W. Dewey, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Mrs. Joseph G. Mayer, Edwin Mayer, R. Wilson Philip and Irene Steckler (two youngsters who "ran a store"), two anonymous givers and several who sent their subscriptions as memorials. These were "In Memory of Mary Burchard Fine," "In Memory of George H. Chickering" and "In Memory of Mary N. Chickering."

Another friend of the fund made its annual contribution yesterday. This was John D. Rockefeller 3d, whose letter was postmarked Princeton, N. J., where he is an undergraduate at the university.

Even thus early in the appeal, yesterday's mail showed that the scope of the response to the neediest was widening rapidly. Contributions yesterday came from Boston and other points in Massachusetts; from Providence and other cities in Rhode Island, from New Jersey, Vermont and from up-State cities and towns. Experience in the past has shown that as copies of the Sunday Times, containing the stories of the neediest, travel through the country one can almost time the arrival of the newspaper by the contributions that begin coming in from distant points.

Memorial Gifts Increase.

The steady growth of contributions sent in memory of dear ones who have died bids fair to be continued this year. Of the donations made yesterday thirty of the 193 contributions were given as memorials. Another form of contribution that is being sent in steadily increasing number is a gift made to mark a birthday, usually the natal day of a child.

Another form of giving to the fund is to send a contribution in behalf of child friends. For instance, a woman contributor sent $5 which she desired credited to five youngsters, each as having sent $1. They were Armand Schwab Jr., Lorrie Schwab, Alice May Eltinge, Constance Eltinge and Jay Stahl. Among the regular contributors to the neediest cases are many children whose parents point out to them the good they can thus do for others. Many parents have impressed upon their children the striking lesson in helping others which is found in the Hundred Neediest Cases.

A novel contribution yesterday was one of $5 in payment of an election bet. It came from "One Who Bet On Al," and who, according to the terms of the wager, is paying his debt by aiding the unfortunate men, women and children who are among the neediest by reason of illness, accident or bereavement.

Many Send Wishes for Success.

The following excerpts are from letters accompanying contributions:

Mrs. S. Solomon—Am always glad to do my bit toward so worthy a cause, and trust you will meet with the same success as in the past years.

H. Silberberg—May your worthy fund be more successful in attaining its magnificent cause, is the sincere wish of the Silberbergs, whose little bit we hope may help to make some one happy.

Mrs. William Henry Rosenstein—It is with great pleasure that I am again permitted to send my small help to the Hundred Neediest Cases, and I would ask you to apply this amount to a case or cases which do not receive the full amount required.

Mrs. Ilka von Frankenberg—Best wishes for the greatest success since you have inaugurated this noble work for unfortunate humanity.

Mrs. M. S. Goepper—I want to be among the first to send my contribution to your splendid work for the Hundred Neediest, which has come to be a part of Christmas. * * * I should like to have it sent to Case No. 8. For my dear mother's sake I always like to have my small contribution go toward the relief of some older woman, and this case appeals especially to me.

Nicholas Acridas—Enclosed you will find a five-dollar bill for Case 62 in memory of my parents. I am very sorry for this unfortunate family which suffers everything. I wished to send you more, but I have four widowed sisters in Greece who are dependent on me. For this reason I cannot send you more. I wish you a very big success for your effort.

S. P. J.—For a kind mother.

Children's Store Yields $100.

Philip and Irene Steckler—My sister Irene, 7, and I, 10 years old, have gotten a little store up together where we have sold all kinds of little gifts to get money for the Hundred Neediest Cases for Christmas. Our goal was $50, and we are overjoyed to say that we have made $100 instead. Will you please give $10 to Case 4, $25 to Case 89, $10 to Case 100, $10 to Case 9, $10 to Case 32 and the rest to Cases 25 and 88, in hopes that it will bring them happiness.

H. B. Gammons—Enclosed find check for ten dollars to apply on Case 17, for "Dannie." Contribution is from Baby Paul Gammons.

Alice W. Tucker—Enclosed please find my check for $5 for my namesake, Alice—Case No. 1. I wish you good luck in your appeal.

Mrs. W. T. E.—Please use for some tubercular case in memory of Andrew Wilson.

Florence F. Myers—Enclosed please find my check for $10 to be used toward your most worthy charity—aid for the Hundred Neediest Cases. I wish you all success and that you will far exceed last year's contributions.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon S. Newman—I sincerely hope that your success this year will be even greater than all previous ones.

Miss Rita Guggenheimer—Please use this donation for Case No. 22. Wishing you the best of success in your great work.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Goutelman—Enclosed please find check for $5 for Hundred Neediest Cases Fund in loving memory of John Franklin Silverstein. We wish you much success in this good work.

CASE 2.

Jimmy's Fifteenth Birthday.

This is the story of Jimmy's fifteenth birthday. Five years ago the lad's father died and since then his mother, although crippled by varicose veins, has been the support of the family. Jimmy longed for the day when he should be 15 and eligible for working papers. He wanted to do his bit. But when the great day came along, and Jimmy, losing no time, appeared before the doctor for the physical test required, he was told that his heart was very bad—too bad for him to go to work. When he got home he found that his mother had been served with a dispossess notice. She insisted that her son go to a near-by clinic and take treatment at once. After Jimmy had been going to the clinic for a while the story of his birthday disappointment was related to a nurse, who notified the organization. Plans for Jimmy include a special training in a trade where his heart will not be taxed, and the removal of his mother from their present top floor flat, where there are too many flights for the boy to climb. All this, however, means that the hard-working mother's wages must be supplemented.

Amount needed, $700.

CASE 71.

Two Sisters Are Friendless.

They are old now and once again without friends in the city. Many years ago two fresh-cheeked country girls came here, found employment and in time brought their parents and remaining brothers and sisters to join them. The years sped, sisters and brothers passed on, and now Mary, 70, and Kate, 65, are too frail to do work of any kind. Their meager savings and the aid given by a former employer have kept them together up to the present. The savings are all gone, and the lives of the two sisters hang in the balance. Good food and the right care will help them to win out and enjoy each other's companionship for the few years that stretch ahead.

Amount needed, $700.

CASE 45.

Coral Longs for Music.

Constant pain and a life of unhappiness have made Coral sullen and moody. Nothing seems to arouse her from fits of despondency but music, of which she is passionately fond. Then the 11-year-old forgets the constant ache in her ear and all is ecstasy. She forgets her insecure life, her unfit parents and poverty-stricken relatives; she forgets the unhappy experience she had with a foster mother, who, although kind, did not understand a moody little girl. If there were only money enough to relieve the aching ear, feed her, and perhaps keep her where the talented child could have lessons on the piano, all of Coral's moodiness would vanish. She needs happy days in the country, excellent medical care and some one who understands and encourages her talent.

Amount needed, $350.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 1454.)

CASE 6.

Powder Puffs and Poverty.

Powder puffs piled in rainbow heaps in a tenement kitchen, and an emaciated girl of 13 stitching on them hour after hour—this was the scene to which a school teacher called attention when she asked aid for Rosie, who is threatened with tuberculosis. The father, formerly a longshoreman, has chronic rheumatism in his left knee and can no longer work on the docks. He earns $20 a week as night watchman, but that does not go far in a family of nine, and the mother and children have to help. The home consists of four rooms near the city dump, where Jack, a 14-year-old newsboy, and his father get the family fuel. Theoretically, the powder-puff work is given only to the mother, but she has her hands go full that the task is done largely by the children. Rosie stitches the colored disks together, then drops them in a pile for Elmer, 11, and Philip, 9, to turn right side out and stuff with cotton. It is not yet certain that Rosie has tuberculosis, but the clinic reports that she is 24 per cent under weight, and she says that she is "never hungry." Danny, the 14-months-old baby, is Rosie's particular charge. When Amy, 6, and Tom, 4, tease Danny he runs to Rosie. At bedtime he usually falls asleep in her lap while the thin fingers above his tiny head put ribbons on the puffs. The doctor says that Rosie is doomed unless she goes away for a rest. The funds that are sought are to take the place of her earnings and to provide the milk and other foods that even her best efforts could not provide.

Amount needed, $350.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 285 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone, Triangle 0710.)

CASE 32.

Almost Blind, He Asked for Work.

Mr. B. could not bring himself to tell how desperate things were with him. He could hardly see to get to the district office and he was weak with hunger, but he asked only for a job, not for help. In a year no one had been able to discover what was wrong with his eyes. Then when he had become almost totally blind it was found that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the eyes. He and his 30-year-old wife, with Ruth 7, and Denny, a new-born baby, lived in three stuffy rooms. Mr. B. had been one of the best tailors in his shop, but when he began to lose his sight his pay had suffered and they had moved into cheaper quarters. The darkness, worry and lack of food made his condition so serious that he can probably never be cured entirely. Mrs. B. understands that if he is to get well and not go insane she must stay at home with him and carry out the doctor's orders. For at least a year the B. family cannot earn anything for themselves. To provide adequately for them, including special treatment for Mr. B. and for little Danny outside aid must be enlisted.

Amount needed, $320.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the New York Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, 67 West Forty-seventh Street. (Telephone, Bryant 5070.)

CASE 1.

Alice's First Christmas Alone.

A young woman walked into the office of the association. She was crying. Alice, 6 years old, her daughter, was with her. The mother said: "My husband is dead and the doctor says I must go to the hospital. I may die and I want to be sure my little girl is in good hands." She kissed Alice good-bye and went to the hospital. She died a week later. In the week that preceded her mother's death, Alice had told how often her mother had been ill while Alice had been left to the care of persons who beat and abused her. They had given her scraps to eat, and even now her legs tremble when she walks. She still remembers her mother, although her age prevents her from realizing that she will never see her again. This is reflected in the remark she makes frequently—"the nicest thing you can do is to pick flowers for your mother." People wonder why she thinks of flowers, for the only ones she has ever seen have been the scrawny potted plants of tenement window ledges. Alice's first Christmas alone may be the beginning of brighter things if some one wills it.

CASE 21.

A School Teacher's Tragedy.

Without warning the course of Mr. G.'s life changed. He went from health to illness and from independence to utter dependence. For many years he was a teacher in a religious school, an honored and respected member of his school and community. Several months ago he began to suffer severe pain and was unable to sleep or eat. Examination revealed that he had serious heart disease and there is more than a suspicion that his may have cancer. He was unable to continue at his work; there were six in his family to be fed; and then another child—Max, now 2 months old—was born. Henry, who is 16, left school and went to work in a factory. He makes $10 a week, which is the sole income of the family, which includes Sidney, 12; Bernard, 9, and Sadie, 7. Physicians hold out no hope for Mr. G.'s recovery. But his life can be prolonged, his pain and anxiety eased and the devoted ties of the family maintained if help is extended for the ensuing year.

Amount needed, $925.

CASE 65.

The Breadwinner Has Cancer.

In one of the old-fashioned houses that quaintly hide away among the towering apartments of the present day, a young man, his wife and their two youngsters are having a hard battle. A priest asked that aid be extended to them, after he had made an investigation. Michael T., 38, was working hard and Nora, his wife, was making a good home for Katherine, 7, and John, 6, when misfortune befell them. Early last April Mr. T., who had been very robust, began to feel ill. He went to the doctor, who advised an operation. A sturdy, self-reliant American, he had no worry over the outcome. But the operation was not a success. He learned, too, that his ailment was cancer. The young wife worried herself ill, for they had no one to whom to turn. Michael's health has not improved. He must have rest and special care and treatment for a long time, and his wife and the children also need care.

CASE 50.

An Overburdened Mother.

Three operations for mastoiditis have not shaken the courage of 13-year-old Bobbie. He is as eager to help his overworked mother as is his older brother, Charles, 16, who has been suddenly forced to become the man of the family owing to the desertion of the father. The mother tries to make up to the boys for their father's cowardice, and there is splendid devotion in the group. Albert, although only 7, shows the same spirit as his brothers. Charles's first job is in an engraving shop, and his mother works as a waitress. The strain of Bobbie's illness and worry about supporting her family has brought the mother to the verge of a breakdown. She did not take time to recover from a nose operation she had last Winter. Some rest is imperative if she is to avoid a serious illness. She knows that Charles cannot carry the burden. In addition to giving him overburdened mother as breathing spell, money sent for this case will buy much-needed nourishing food.

CASE 41.

Dim Eyes and Fine Laces.

"They haven't a thing to eat in the house, but my mother says the old ladies would starve rather than have us know it," said the girl who brought word of two gray-haired sisters living in distress near her home. Madeline, a childless widow, 69 years old, and Jeanette, a spinster aged 67, are all that are left of a once prosperous family. They had a good education, including the art of needlework. When hard times came they took up fine embroidering as a means of livelihood. But now, as Miss Jeanette explained it in her tired, gentle voice, it seems "almost impossible" to get work. Sympathetic neighbors say that her eyes are so poor she cannot see to do the work right and thus spoils material which old customers send. Bills for the bare necessities of life are awaiting payment by the sisters. Doctors say that new glasses and more nourishing food than she has dared to eat lately might make it possible for Jeanette to increase her earnings. She could not, however, make enough to support two persons, even though they are used to living on $13 a week. Their unspoken plea, for even now they will not admit their need to strangers, is for enough help to keep their home for another year.

Amount needed, $900.

CASE 18.

On the Brink of Suicide.

During the week before a neighbor asked help for her, Mrs. L. had lain alone in a room on the top floor of a rickety tenement trying to get up enough courage to drink the bottle of lye she had bought with her last 15 cents. She had no relatives anywhere and she had been forced to divorce her husband, who had made her support him. She sought her freedom when she learned that he was a bigamist. Mrs. L. had been a practical nurse and earned a good living until her health gave out and her husband squandered her savings. When the doctor was brought to her, after her suicide project had been blocked, he found that she was half-starved and so ill that only a major operation could save her. After two months in a hospital, Mrs. L. is slowly convalescent. Her two little rooms are scrubbed and shining. The starched white curtains at the windows are faultless. She knows that doing her housework is too much for her strength, but it helps her to forget the humiliation of being unable to support herself. The doctors have told her that she cannot work for another year, and until then she must be assisted.

CASE 24.

Betty and Ethel Adrift.

Betty and Ethel—slender blood sisters—were floating aimlessly in an indifferent world. When the parents—whose chief interest in the children had resulted from their availability as pawns in a game of mutual retaliation—turned them over to a social organization, they found their first security. Until then it had been an even chance whether they would not be tossed back and forth from one relative who cared nothing for them to another even more indifferent. And they were far too attractive and prideful to be cast aside. Both are brighter than the normal, both have deep blue eyes shaded by long lashes, both are slender and delicate and trusting. They were left friendless when their parents' casual marriage ended with the arrival of responsibility. The young mother was flighty and easily led. To make safe the haven of Betty, who is 4, and Ethel, who is 7, until they may find permanent security in a foster home is necessary. If that care can be given now the future is bright; if it cannot, there is no certainty that they can survive the storm.

Amount needed, $900.

"Can't Any One Do Something?"

The family became destitute when the father had to remain a long time in hospital suffering from a blood-clot. His frightened, worried wife kept asking, "Can't any one do something?" She has Nicholas, 8, and John, 10 months old, to think about. Just before Easter her husband, working in a laundry, was stricken. His recovery is so slow that it is hard for the wife to think that he may some day get well. She nursed him before he was taken to the hospital and managed to keep the home going. She is at the end of her resources now, and is convinced that no one can do anything. Prompt aid will answer the question properly and will bring the family through until the father can get back to work.

CASE 42.

Albert's Iron Braces.

Life so far has given Albert little cause for gratitude. Running and frolicking in the sunshine, good things to eat and the love of a father never entered into his scheme of life. Shortly after birth he became paralyzed and is now encased in iron braces and pain is his constant companion. At 14 Albert still looks forward to the day when he will be like other boys. His mother struggled valiantly for twelve years to support herself, for the father, hopelessly ill, had been removed to a home for incurables. Mrs. B. will not part from Albert, even though her health has collapsed and her means of livelihood is uncertain. Aid is asked to keep mother and son together.

Amount needed, $1,000.

Patient Under a Heavy Load.

Suffering from a weak heart, her husband out of work and a child to care for, Hattie C., 34 years old, had no alternative except to let her story become known. It soon proved to be a greater tragedy than was at first suspected, for the husband was found to be mentally unbalanced. He is not sick enough for institutional care, nor is he able to keep a job. To add to the problem of the woman's 2-year-old Alice now has a baby sister, Gertrude, born four months ago. Mr. C. was a clerk and at one time a detective, and the wife had been a child's nurse. She is finding life hard, but does the best she can, is patient with her husband and cares well for her babies and her home. Sometimes she gets discouraged under the burden, but friendship and assistance will make it easier for her to fight on through the ensuing twelve months.

CASE 14.

They Want to Remain Together.

Mrs. B. and her daughter Ethel were well-to-do in Warsaw, where they had a grocery store. Then in the war they lost everything. Mrs. D., a daughter in America, sent them transportation to this country. She thought they could make a living. But Mrs. B., whose sufferings had caused her to become prematurely old, developed a serious heart condition and rheumatism. Ethel, 25, is weak and unskilled and can work only irregularly. Mrs. D., too, is poor and unable to support her mother and sister. Ethel is earning about $8 a week, but that scarcely pays the rent on a small three-room apartment, which is damp and bare and immediately cold. Discouraged but devoted to each other, the mother and daughter are determined not to separate. Neighbors have asked that they be assisted in the coming year.

CASE 88.

She Is Still Working at 84.

Mrs. Betsy C. is a wage-earner at 84, but when a call was made at her small flat there was no food in the house and on every hand there was evidence of the dire need of the valiant old woman. Twenty years ago she was left a widow with one son. The husband had been a vaudeville actor and the son became a handy man around the theatres. Mrs. C., a woman of strong character and views, did not approve of such employment, but she tried to maintain a home for husband and son. Intemperance and neglect by the husband and by the son made her lot doubly hard, but she carried on. Two years ago the son died and Mrs. C. continued her attempt to be self-supporting. She made rugs, but now her back is too bent for years and struggle. She is still too energetic to give up her work entirely, but her lot can be made easier if her wages are supplemented through the year.

Spirit of True Giving Rules Appeal for Neediest Cases

Contributions to the neediest cases fund are, above all else, spontaneous gifts. There is no solicitation in this philanthropy, no "follow-up" tactics are used. The cases are published as the neediest of all New York's unfortunates. They are read. Then, if the reader is impelled to aid, a contribution follows.

The non-compulsory feature of the neediest cases cannot be too strongly emphasized. The impulse to give to the neediest cases must originate in the heart of the contributor. He or she gives because compassion has been aroused, and not because the donor has been made to feel that a contribution is an obligation.

Every dollar contributed to the fund goes in full to those for whom it is intended. There is no deduction anywhere for any purpose between the giver and the recipient. The administration of the entire fund is cloaked carefully in anonymity, and where names or initials are used in the stories of the cases they are fictitious ones. Those who give and those who receive know nothing of each other, their only bond is one of the spirit.

Will Rogers Interested In Second White House Plan

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I told you Mr. Coolidge would run again some day. Didn't you see where he asked the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to get another White House where you could escape the asphyxiation of the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue? That request couldn't have been made for Hoover, for it will take eight years to get it through Congress. I think that trip to Virginia the other day did it, when for the first time he saw Washington's and Jefferson's old week-end hideaways.

But he can acquire the same results by just shutting the gate on the house he is in. It's not the humidity in Washington, it's the humility in having to meet who you do. Every Senator with a bill east of the Rocky Mountains will start to paddle it to us now.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

MOORE SENTENCED; ADMITS TAX FRAUD

Former Connolly Aide Agrees to Guilty Plea After Jury Is Out Five Hours.

GETS 30 DAYS, $1,000 FINE

Term Scheduled to Start Monday— Ex-Engineer Asks Postponement Because Wife Is Ill.

Clifford B. Moore, former consulting engineer in the office of Borough President Maurice E. Connolly in Queens, agreed to a plea of guilty to charges of having falsified his State income tax return for 1926, after a jury in the Supreme Court at Long Island City had been out for five hours last night, and was fined $1,000 and sentenced by Justice Arthur S. Tompkins to serve thirty days on Welfare Island.

The jury went out at 5:30, and when four hours had elapsed, and it looked as if the jury would be unable to agree, Prosecuting Attorney John M. Harlan conferred with David Siegle, counsel for Moore, who said his client was willing to plead guilty, provided the penalty was not too severe. The sentence is scheduled to begin next Monday, but Moore asked a postponement because of his wife's illness.

The indictment charged Moore with having given $6,870, his salary as consulting engineer in Queens, as his total earnings in 1926, whereas he had actually received more than $60,000. To substantiate this charge records of the bank in which Moore kept his money were produced, showing that during 1925 and 1926 he had deposited more than $60,000 of which $47,637 was in cash.

When the trial started yesterday morning Siegle admitted that Moore had not made a correct income tax return for 1926 but explained that it was the result of a misunderstanding. He said that Moore's excess earnings had been profits made in a stock pool, and that Moore had failed to enter them upon his return because he thought the tax had already been paid by the company operating the pool.

When Moore learned that the money should have been entered upon his tax return, Mr. Siegle said, he immediately sent a corrected return to Albany, together with a check covering the money due the State. But Prosecuting Attorney Harlan pointed out that the corrected return had not been made until April 12 of this year, a month after

Up from an East Side tenement he came, up from bitter poverty and want . . . up . . . up . . . climbing an endless ladder of laughs . . . climbing . . . until he stepped off the last rung into the middle of Broadway and saw his name in electric letters three feet high. 'SANTA CLAUS' GLUCK IGNORES HIS CRITICS

MANY MISSIVES RECEIVED

Postal Inspector Says Department Objects to "One-Man Rule" of the Association.

With the United States postal authorities refusing to turn over to the Santa Claus Association, Inc., the letters addressed by children to Santa Claus, on the ground that it is a one-man organization responsible to no one, and with the Welfare Department refusing to endorse the association, John D. Gluck went ahead yesterday with his plans to handle Santa Claus mail. He admitted his association was a "one-man organization," but maintained it was more effective for that reason.

Mr. Gluck has received several hundred letters from children to Santa Claus, forwarded to his offices in the Knickerbocker Building, Forty-second Street and Broadway, by the Board of Child Welfare, headed by the Rev. William A. Courtney. A letter from the Child Welfare Board accompanying the children's missives expressed appreciation of the work of the Santa Claus Association in other years in providing Christmas food and toys for families and children referred to the organization by the board.

Another long list of Santa Claus letter writers was from the New York Foundling Hospital, including more than 500 names.

At the offices of the Board of Child Welfare it was learned that the Santa Claus letters had been solicited among poor children and forwarded to the Santa Claus Association before it was known that there was any controversy between Mr. Gluck and the United States postal authorities and the Department of Public Welfare. The Board of Child Welfare received later a communication from the office of Welfare Commissioner Coler, asking the Board of Child Welfare to sever all connections with the Santa Claus Association. It was not known at the offices of the Board of Child Welfare whether that department would recall the Santa Claus letters.

Coler Urged Inquiry Last Year.

Mr. Coler has refused his endorsement to the Santa Claus Association since last Christmas, when he suggested that the Postoffice authorities investigate the activities of Mr. Gluck.

Board of Child Welfare workers in past years have reported that poor families were well taken care of by the Gluck organization. Families who had never had a Christmas feast or gifts before received food and toys, according to these social workers.

The New York Foundling Hospital has also expressed to the Santa Claus Association its thanks "on behalf of the little children under our care for the happiness you brought to them at Christmas time."

Inspector Explains Federal Stand.

Postoffice Inspector Clarahan said the postal authorities had refused to turn over Santa Claus letters to Mr. Gluck's organization because the Santa Claus Association was a "one-man organization." He emphasized that the postal authorities in their investigation of the activities of the Santa Claus Association had found no evidence of any wrong-doing.

Mr. Gluck said he expected to receive more than 25,000 Santa Claus letters. His organization, mostly volunteer workers, is assorting these appeals and is mailing to the parents or guardians of the children a post-card questionnaire designed to establish the association's legal right to distribute Christmas charity and to provide information to prospective benefactors. When the postcards return they are distributed among those who wish to make gifts.

Mr. Gluck said that about 1 per cent of the Santa Claus mail received by his organization would be affected by the refusal of the postoffice authorities to let him have the Santa Claus letters this year, because the bulk of it was addressed direct to the association.

LINCOLN LETTER GETS $11,750 AT CHILDS SALE

Page and a Half of "Pickwick Papers" Brings $9,000 at Philadelphia Auction.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—A letter written by Abraham Lincoln from Springfield, Ill., in 1859 to Judge Nathan Sargent in reference to the attitude the Republican party should assume toward the slavery question and other issues in the next year's Presidential campaign was sold for $11,750 at an auction held by Samuel T. Freeman & Co. here tonight.

The letter, bought by Temple Scott, was part of a collection of autographed documents owned by the late George W. Childs, Philadelphia publisher, and disposed of at an executor's sale. Buyers were present from New York, Washington and other cities, and the bidding was brisk at both afternoon and evening sessions.

A series of letters written by General Grant brought varying prices. The highest, $260, was paid by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach for a communication to General Meade. An autographed presentation copy of Clement C. Moore's "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," was knocked down to Charles Sessler for $450.

A page and a half of the original manuscript of "Pickwick Papers," signed by Charles Dickens, brought $9,000 at this afternoon's auction. Mr. Sessler was the purchaser.

GUITRYS IN 'MARY DUGAN.'

Will Appear in Paris in French Version of American Play.

Sacha Guitry and his wife, Yvonne Printemps, two of the leading players on the Parisian stage, will soon appear in a French version of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," according to word received yesterday at the A. H. Woods office. Mme. Printemps will appear in the role Ann Harding originated and M. Guitry will be seen in the part of the District Attorney, first acted here by Arthur Hohl.

M. Guitry, who is a versatile playwright, is making the translation. His most recent play, "Charles Lindbergh," opened in Paris a fortnight ago. The Guitrys appeared in New York two years ago under the management of A. H. Woods.

Blind Man Will Run Column For Bridgeport (Conn.) Paper

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Dec. 10.—A totally blind man, Arthur Sullivan of New Britain, has broken into the ranks of newspaper writers. Mr. Sullivan has been made a correspondent of The Bridgeport Sunday Herald. He will have a column with the caption "What the Blind Man Sees."

Mr. Sullivan was at one time on the staff of the now defunct New Haven Palladium. He lost his sight about eight years ago.

13 PERSONS INDICTED WITH 2 NIGHT CLUBS

Liquor Conspiracy Charge Names Two Women—Both Resorts in Padlock Proceedings.

The Owl Club at 161 West Forty-ninth Street, the Yacht Club at 70 West Forty-fifth Street, eleven men and two women are named as defendants in a liquor conspiracy indictment returned on Dec. 3 and unsealed yesterday by Assistant United States Attorneys Robert E. Watts and U. S. Grant.

The individuals named in the true bill, which alleges that they conspired to operate night clubs and sell liquor therein, are Germaine Saint Avit, known also as Mrs. Germaine; Julie Podell, Dudley Broderick, Jack Morganti, Jack Carroll, William Daly, Gus Anderson, John Kent, Ben Slevin, known also as Harry Marks; John Hollenbach, Thomas Russell, Charles Lischner, known also as Harry Phillips, and Samuel Walker. All of these except Daly were held by Federal Judge Winslow in bail ranging from $1,000 to $3,000. A bench warrant was issued for Daly.

Padlock proceedings have been started against both the resorts named in the indictment, the Owl Club having been raided on Oct. 4, Nov. 3 and Dec. 4, and the Yacht Club on Sept. 21 and Nov. 16.

Mrs. Germaine was arrested on Sept. 21 with Angelo Ford, on a charge of violation of the prohibition law at the Yacht Club and also at "The Germaine," 17 West Forty-eighth Street. Ford, who pleaded guilty, was fined $50 by Federal Judge Burrows on Dec. 10.

The defendants, Broderick, Morganti, Carroll, Daly and Podell, were also indicted by the July Federal Grand Jury. Ralph Navarro, an investigator attached to the conspiracy section of Prohibition Administrator Campbell's office, obtained the evidence against the two night clubs.

HUGE SUBWAY STATION IS OPENED IN LONDON

Piccadilly Circus Junction Is Capable of Handling 50,000,000 Passengers Yearly.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Beneath the ever-increasing traffic whirl of Piccadilly Circus, London's largest and handsomest underground station opened today. The new station is designed to handle 50,000,000 passengers in a year.

Already London's underground traffic is growing by leaps and bounds, and the new Piccadilly station is equally notable as an engineering feat and as a sign that London's future expansion will be by underground tunnels instead of by surface traffic.

The station has been under construction for four years and cost $2,800,000. The vast building hall, with its automatic ticket machines, was scooped out beneath the roadway while London was hardly aware of it. A shaft only 18 feet wide was the only outlet for the material dug up under millions of hurrying feet. London's soft soil presented less engineering difficulties than New York's rock, but even so the engineering achievement was considerable.

One of two tube lines intersecting at Piccadilly lies deeper below the street than the Queensboro subway at Grand Central in New York. To reach the tracks eleven escalators have been built. All eleven started rolling this morning by the touch of a single electric button.

Artistically, the station is an example of the interest shown by the London Underground in bright attractive posters, tasteful lettering and good station design. An underground concourse 186 feet by 144 is surrounded by shops, with access from all sides of Piccadilly Circus above. The wall decorations are pleasantly colored. At the head of the escalators there is a huge colored panel—a map of the world with Piccadilly Circus at its hub—executed by Stephan Bone, son of Muirhead Bone the painter.

Lord Ashfield, chairman of the Underground Company, in opening the station to the public today, said:

"This is not only the best underground station in London, but it will bear comparison with any station in New York.

A report issued by the Transit Commission on Dec. 2 estimated at 180,000,000 the total passenger traffic for the year at the Times Square subway stations of the Interborough and Brooklyn-Manhattan lines.

A total of 89,723,896 fares was collected from passengers boarding trains at these stations. Of these 66,088,646 were deposited in the turnstiles of the Interborough station.

JURY TRIAL BLAMED FOR LAW'S DELAYS

Commercial Law League Head at Dinner Finds Fault With Legal Machinery.

PROCEDURE BEHIND TIMES

Rules of Evidence and Restrictions on Judges Declared Responsible for Expense and Uncertainty.

Jury trials of civil cases, rules of evidence and restrictions upon judges were declared last night by Raymond G. Young, president of the Commercial Law League of America, at the annual dinner of the New York branch of the league, at the Hotel Plaza, to be responsible for most of the delays, uncertainty and cost of court processes.

Admitting that there was "an unmistakable movement away from the law and the courts," Mr. Young said this was due more to dissatisfaction with the legal machinery than to a loss of respect for the law and the courts. Changed and changing conditions, he asserted, were subjecting the courts and the law to a terrible strain.

Pointing out that, in former days, the machinery of the law had been adequate and had served a splendid purpose, he declared that today, in many respects, court procedure was inadequate to the needs of the times. More time, effort and expense, he said, had to be devoted to the machinery of the law and its system than to the merits of the case.

"Weighing the disadvantage of the jury system against the dangers of judicial oppression under modern conditions, the balance seems to be distinctly against the former. It may be taken for granted that far-reaching changes in our jury system are in the making and that the trend of modern thought is rapidly proceeding toward the abolition of the jury in civil cases, or, at least, to the elimination of general verdicts in civil cases and limiting the jury in practice as well as in theory to the decision of questions of fact.

"With a thorough reform in our jury system, with a revision of our rules of evidence which such a reform will make possible, with ample powers conferred on the courts to make and keep their working tools in order and to simplify practice by court rules, we may reasonably expect a far-reaching improvement in the processes of our courts. This improvement would be manifested in simpler issues and pleadings, in a vast saving of time, in better and shorter arguments, in direct and scientific results.

"It would eliminate the so-called 'sporting theory' of law suits with its wasteful, forensic display and overcontentiousness. The submission and determination would cease to be a trial by battle. Possibilities of error would be reduced and appeals would be minimized and speeded up."

Mr. Young, who was the chief speaker of the evening, was introduced by Edward B. Levy, president of the New York branch of the league. A reception and dance followed the dinner.

LITTLE POWERS FEAR LOSS IN DEBT REVISION

Rumania and Others Resent Not Being Invited to Parley on Dawes Plan, It Is Said.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10.—Rumania is annoyed and so also are a number of the other smaller European nations, according to reports published in Bucharest. Led by England, the big powers are planning, so these smaller ones feel, to make them bear the brunt of the losses when the Dawes plan is ultimately revised in Germany's favor.

Persons close to the government here are credited with having declared that Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Poland and Belgium were entirely ignored when the invitation list for the forthcoming revision conference was made out.

Great Britain started the idea, it is asserted, and France as England's ally, agreed that the revision conference would be for the big powers only and that the spokesmen of the smaller countries would only crowd the table and hence should not be invited.

Rumania and the other countries already named see in such a move an intention to lower German reparations without their getting any benefit, either of a positive or negative nature. One man, who should know how the land lies, states that M. Titulesco will have a few words to say at Lugano concerning this alleged intention to slight the small powers.

POLICEMEN TO BE X-RAYED.

Association Votes Funds to Restore Equipment to Operation.

The $15,000 X-ray machine given to the Police Department some time ago by August Heckscher and Frederick Phillips, philanthropists, which has not been used for some time because of lack of funds, was again put in operation yesterday at Police Headquarters. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association at a recent meeting voted to pay operating costs, deeming that the machine was necessary to maintain the health standards of the department.

So that the machine may do maximum service, Dr. Daniel W. Donovan, chief surgeon of the department, has fitted up a laboratory for it in a suite adjoining his fourth floor offices at Police Headquarters. Operators have been assigned to the machine in charge of Dr. Richard Rendick of Kings County Hospital and Dr. Louis Freidman of Bellevue, both X-ray specialists.

Approximately 1,500 members of the department will be X-rayed each year, Dr. Donovan predicts. Where incipient growths are found, the subjects will have yearly Roentgen examinations, Dr. Donovan said, so long as they are in the department.

VICTORIA DEPICTED AS GLADSTONE'S FOE

Queen Treated Premier With "Remorseless Hostility," His Son Says in Biography.

DISRAELI "VILLAIN OF PLAY"

Reply to Queen's Published Letters Asserts Beaconsfield Controlled Her by Flattery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—How Queen Victoria treated her Prime Minister, William E. Gladstone, with hostility "so designed, persistent and remorseless," that it embittered his life and made his resignation a relief, while, by laying flattery on "with a trowel," his rival, Benjamin Disraeli, "like Solomon, captivated a Queen," is revealed by Viscount Gladstone in a book, whose publication tomorrow is likely to cause a stir.

Mr. Gladstone kept the details of the Queen's treatment and of his resentment of it from the world, but in "After Thirty Years" his son takes up the cudgels on his behalf. Admitting that he writes as a partisan, Viscount Gladstone makes out Disraeli to be practically the villain of the piece. The Queen's coldness toward Gladstone, he writes, dated from Disraeli's ascendancy over her.

"Undoubtedly Lord Beaconsfield [Disraeli] as he himself said, made flattery of women an invariable practice," declares the book. "The unreality of it all was shown by his cynical observation that a trowel was necessary in dealing with royalties. Her sex gave Queen Victoria her great advantage over all her Ministers but one. Like Solomon, Lord Beaconsfield captivated the Queen."

Reply to Victoria's Letters.

Viscount Gladstone's book undoubtedly is intended as a reply to the third volume of Queen Victoria's letters published several months ago by the historian, G. E. Buckle. In "enriching the life of Disraeli with choice denunciations of Gladstone by the Queen, Mr. Buckle has definitely released us from a sacred obligation," Gladstone's son contends.

That England's great Liberal Prime Ministers was deeply saddened and embittered by the Queen's hostile attitude is indicated in numerous passages of his diaries. He wrote "Off to Windsor. Much civility, but I am always outside an iron ring."

"The iron ring was maintained unbroken" until Gladstone's resignation. Of that he wrote: "To me, personally, it was a great relief, including in this sensation my painful relations with the Queen, who will have a like feeling."

His final audience with the Queen in 1894, he wrote, "was a singular one when regarded as a probable last word with a sovereign after fifty-four years of political life and a good quarter-century's service rendered to her in office. She asked after my wife. About me personally, I think her single remark was that I should require some rest. The same brevity, perhaps prevails in settling a tradesman's bill when it reaches over many years."

Mentions Queen's "Foolish Letter."

Gladstone's idea of the Queen's statesmanship may be gathered from his remark about one of her missives. "To this rather foolish letter I shall make no reply," he wrote.

After the Queen rebuked Gladstone for a certain speech he found she had read nothing but an incorrect summary of it. But she did not apologize.

"The Queen, unhappily for her, can no more confess error than a journalist!" was Gladstone's comment.

On her opinions on the Irish question her Prime Minister wrote: "Poor Ireland! It has but a small place in her heart."

An audience with the Queen in 1893 was "a form, as usual. Indeed, I fear, a sham."

Viscount Gladstone sums it up thus:

"There was the same studious politeness. What it concealed is now well known. It was woman's art, impossible to be misunderstood, and designed to be persistent and remorseless."

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Although the authors of "Wings Over Europe," which went on at the Martin Beck last evening, have confined their play within the stout, earthy walls of the English Prime Minister's house they have let their imaginations soar boundlessly. They have dared to dream of international peace. In fact, the idea of their odd and original play is so preposterous that it is probably true, and it does credit to their intelligence and vision. Even with the artful ministrations of the Theatre Guild to stage it, however, they succeed only spasmodically in keeping "Wings Over Europe" in terms of the theatre. To remark that it must seem far more exhilarating in print than on the stage is to repeat the obvious, without helping the authors in the solution of their theatrical problem.

Robert Nichols, an English poet, and Maurice Browne, an actor and director—for these are the authors of this new Theatre Guild production—have supposed that a young scientific genius has discovered the ultimate secret of material existence. He has learned how to control the energy of the atom. To him, and to mankind whom he plans to endow with the magic formula, all material problems and struggles are now potentially solved. By his astounding discovery man is released from all material considerations for the cultivation of his soul. Being an idealist, the young scientist believes that it is humanity's instinct to create and not to destroy. Accordingly, he has no misgivings about the abuse of his secret. He is certain that, in humanity's hands, this supernatural power to control all material things will be used only for the advancement of life.

In order to express their idea in the theatre the authors have had to discover an adversary; and probably not without some private chuckling they have assembled the British cabinet in a long conference room. Confronted with an idea so colossal the cabinet, after the gravest consideration, can think of nothing to do except pledge the young genius to destroy his formula and engines, or clap him securely in prison. To all such talk he coolly replies that he will use his discovery to blast the earth and all its people, including himself, into destruction. In the last act, while the British cabinet is impatiently awaiting the destruction of the world at the stroke of noon, "Wings Over Europe" enjoys a few sober moments of disturbing emotion. For the crack of doom always lets out a lurid flame.

Writing in deadly earnest, the authors express themselves not only in unrelieved conversation, but in conversation that is almost completely abstract. And having chosen a theme difficult to grasp in the theatre they have scarcely lightened the playgoer's burden with their setting. For whatever cabinets may be in fact, they are comically pompous on the stage. And this one, in spite of the actors, looks suspiciously like a collection of stuffed shirts.

The difficulties of postulating so tenuous a situation are not lessened by a performance difficult to hear, and, seemingly, far away. The all-male cast includes several able actors. Ernest Lawford, as the Prime Minister, and Frank Conroy and John Dunn, as his colleagues, act their heavily solemn parts to good advantage. As the fulminating young genius, Alexander Kirkland not only has the best part, but he makes its medley of values all count in the theatre. His is conspicuously good acting.

More experienced and alert authors than Mr. Nichols and Mr. Browne could doubtless give the same theme greater cogency in the theatre without sacrificing any of its aspiring idealism. For all they have put into "Wings Over Europe" these poetic crusaders have drawn out comparatively little to upset the complacency of their audiences. And that, one assumes, is the purpose of their adventure.

WITTGENSTEIN WELCOMED.

Pianist Shows Technical Thoroughness in a Brahms Group.

Victor Wittgenstein, pianist, played a group of Brahms pieces, including the First Ballade, the Second Rhapsodie, the E flat Rhapsodie, two of the Intermezzi and the Capriccio, Op. 76. No. 2; the Chopin B minor sonata; the Bach-Busoni Chorale in E flat; Scriabin's F sharp minor sonata; "Five Children's Pieces," by Casella, and the Liszt "Campanella" Etude, yesterday afternoon in the Engineering Auditorium. With an appreciation of Brahms that is unusual even today, Mr. Wittenstein had the enterprise to explore extensively the treasure-house of his piano music. Perhaps his substantial Brahms group, with the rest of the extended program, tended toward the Gargantuan, but his musicianship and his technical thoroughness were deservedly applauded, and he made his listeners aware of the richness and variety of Brahms's writing for the piano. The performer differentiated thoughtfully between the heroic Rhapsodies and the more fanciful and tender Intermezzi. Thereafter Mr. Wittgenstein ranged from the clarity and classicism of Leonardo Leo to the simplicity, yet modernity of the Casella of the Children's Pieces. He is a pianist of wide and eclectic appreciations, and his program was a fortunate departure from convention. An audience of good size was cordial in its applause.

'MADAME POMPADOUR' AGAIN

Beppie De Vries, Dutch Prima Donna, to Sing Title Role.

A revival of "Madame Pompadour," in which the title rôle will be sung by Beppie De Vries, a Dutch prima donna, is promised for the latter part of the season by J. F. Lebret, a Dutch producer. The cast, aside from Miss De Vries, will be American. Miss De Vries, who is at present in New York, will pay a visit to Amsterdam before the start of rehearsals, which are scheduled for January.

J. C. Williamson, Ltd., of Australia, who have recently been presenting the operetta in that country with Miss De Vries as its star, will be associated with Mr. Lebret in the American production.

"AFTER DARK" REVIVED.

Boucicault's Melodrama of '80s Faithfully Acted by Morley Company

Those who made a pilgrimage to Hoboken last night to see Christopher Morley's revival of the old Dion Boucicault melodrama, "After Dark; or, Neither Maid, Wife, Nor Widow," were amply rewarded with an evening's entertainment which abounded in thrills and heart throbs. The play, first produced in the late sixties, was certainly the most satisfying production that has been seen at the Rialto Theatre since Mr. Morley and his associates gave the old playhouse a new lease of life last Labor Day.

It was a success in the same way as was the Provincetown Theatre revival of "Fashion," that play of an earlier day, in that it was carefully and conscientiously staged by Harry Wagstaff Gribble and done with all seriousness on the part of the players, no attempt being made at "kidding" the quaint old piece, as Mr. Morley said in a curtain speech.

The company let the drama speak for itself, carrying along the interest of the audience in the difficulties of the hero and heroine and the chicaneries of the villains plotting their downfall. The Boucicault original was faithfully adhered to, even down to the scene in the Lackawanna Railway tunnel, which ended just as the train is about to pass over the hero tied to the track. He is saved, of course, by the faithful Old Tom, admirably played by Arthur Morris, who turned out to be the long lost father of Eliza, the heroine.

Cleon Throckmorton deserves high praise for the manner in which he mounted the play, reviving the feeling of the period, especially in the scenes of the old Grand Central Station and the Germania Garden, Hoboken. Bradley Cass and Marcia Hanan did well with the rôles of the young lovers united at the final curtain.

The play will continue for three weeks, to be followed by Mr. Morley's own dramatization of his "Where the Blue Begins."

EUGENE O'NEILL IMPROVED.

Had Mild Attack of Bronchitis—His Lawyer Says Health Is Sound.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 10.—Eugene O'Neill, American dramatist, is suffering from a mild attack of bronchitis. His physician says that his improvement is satisfactory and that he will recover soon, Mr. O'Neill is uncommunicative regarding his future plans.

A published report that Eugene O'Neill was dangerously ill with a lung complaint in a hospital in Shanghai, China, was denied in a statement given out by Harry Weinberger of 70 West Fortieth Street, Mr. O'Neill's lawyer, yesterday.

Mr. Weinberger said that after the report was published he communicated with Mr. O'Neill by cable and was informed that he was in perfect health; that, while he had a little touch of influenza requiring a few days in a hospital, he was now out and there was nothing serious.

CHRISTMAS SONG FESTIVAL.

People's Chorus to Have Schelling, Pianist, as Soloist on Sunday.

The People's Chorus will hold its first Christmas song festival at Carnegie Hall next Sunday afternoon. Ernest Schelling, composer-pianist, will be guest of honor and soloist. Dr. Henry van Dyke is the honorary chairman of the chorus, and Mrs. Walter Ewing Hope is the active chairman.

The People's Chorus was organized in 1916. In 1925 Mrs. John Henry Hammond and Mrs. Dunlevy Milbank organized for the chorus a unit of society women, called the Hammond Unit. All the units will sing Christmas carols of many nations on Sunday. The audience will be asked to join in singing several familiar carols. William C. Breed, president of the New York State Bar Association, will make a short address. Lorenzo Camilleri is the director of the chorus.

PLAYS OF CHRISTMAS WEEK.

"One Way Street" and "Sakura" Added to Many Announced.

Two new plays were added yesterday to the list of theatrical productions for Christmas week.

The first of these, "One Way Street," will open at the George M. Cohan Theatre on Monday night, Dec. 24. It is a melodramatic mystery play by Beulah Poynter, and will include in its cast Gertrude Hitz, Joan Blair, Robert Hudson and John R. Hamilton.

On Christmas night, at the Belmont Theatre, Walker Whiteside will appear in "Sakura," a play which he has already acted for a season on the road. "The Royal Box" will be withdrawn from the Belmont this week and the house will be dark during the pre-Christmas week. "Sakura" is the work of Atherton Brownell.

About a dozen new productions have already been announced for Christmas week.

MANY HEAR "TURANDOT."

Jeritza Sings the Heroine Fourth Time—"Ernani" Next Monday.

Puccini's posthumous Chinese opera, "Turandot," opened the Metropolitan's seventh week before a large subscription last evening. Mme. Jeritza for the fourth time sang the heroine of the fatal riddles and the crowded court scenes. A familiar cast also included the Misses Guilford, Flexer and Parisette and Messrs. Lauri-Volpi, De Luca, Ludikar, Bada, Cehanovsky, Tedesco and Altglass. Mr. Serafin conducted.

Tonight the company will give in Philadelphia the first performance of one of this season's revivals of Verdi's "Ernani," presently to be heard on Broadway, with Pons, Martinelli, Danise and Pinza. Last evening's programs announced "Ernani" for the Metropolitan next Monday night, with Ruffo in the baritone rôle on that occasion.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Sign of the Leopard" will open at the National Theatre tonight.

"Torch" was withdrawn from the Totten Theatre on Saturday night.

The engagement of "Macbeth" at the Knickerbocker Theatre has been again extended, this time to Jan. 12.

Roy Gordon has joined the cast of "The Red Robe," opening at the Shubert Christmas Eve.

"Well, Well, Well" upsets in New Haven last night.

Cornelia Otis Skinner will give a full evening's recital at the Selwyn Theatre next Sunday night. This will be the last of the Selwyn's Sunday night series for the present.

The Midnight Frolic is scheduled to open on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre Christmas week.

John T. Doyle has been added to the cast of "To Him," the A. E. Thomas play which George M. Cohan is producing.

Reforming Apaches.

APACHES OF PARIS, with Ruth Weyher, Jacques Catelain, Nikolai Malikoff, Olga Limburg and others, directed by Nikolai Malikoff; "stalling the Killer"; Joyce news reel; "His Royal Slyness," a Harold Lloyd comedy; "Beautiful Germany." At the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse.

An odd piece of work called "Apaches of Paris" is now on exhibition at the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse. Parts of this old Ufa film are peculiarly ingenious, but it is so old-fashioned in its acting and in the make-up of the players that it affords quite a good deal of amusement. It is a picture that if anything elicits sympathy for the apaches, for while they are fools they do at times show flashes of intelligence. On the other hand the so-called American reformers (made in Germany) have ideas about uplifting the cabarets of the Boulevard de Clichy in Paris and to shame the blackguards into taking the narrow path, the Uncle, Aunt and niece act in such a way that would cause one to suspect that they were lunatics at large.

The girl, whose mouth is doctored with make-up to obtain the cupid's-bow effect, wears about as much jewelry as she can conveniently carry. The Uncle affects a cap, and while he pretends to frown on strong drink, when he tastes wine, his expression is quite beatific. The German producers meant to prod America with drinking as well as the reform idea.

The pseudo hero happens to be an apache. Call him Montmorency, after the dog in "Three Men in a Boat," because he hasn't got a name. Montmorency meets the fair (she hasn't a name either, but she looks as if she would turn her head if one shouted Bedelia) creature, henceforth known as Bedelia. Montmorency has eyes like a Christmas doll and ideas on dress that hover between those of a careless fishmonger and a commonplace Chicago thug. In short, Montmorency matches from Bedelia's wrist a bracelet which must have cost, roughly, $75,000. Bedelia is credulous. Her eyes are etched with mascaro, with a pencilled arch above them. The lashes are fairly distinct. Whether in anger, repose, amusement or love, the expression in these blue orbs changes but little. The same thought always seems to be in them, and that thought may have been: "Will I, I wonder, make good in this picture? I think I ought to knock them cold."

This clever Bedelia only discovers her loss when she reaches her hotel, and not long afterward Montmorency, eyes glazed with admiration, returns the piece of jewelry, and from then on to the closing cuddle and kiss, it is certain that Bedelia unwittingly is going to uplift one apache by marrying him.

In one chapter of this absurd fable there is a French Hawkshaw who tells the three reformers that, while it may astonish Uncle, Aunt and Bedelia, the girl suddenly could lose a piece of jewelry and recover it in less than ten minutes. This Hawkshaw arises from the table, stands behind Bedelia and forthwith, unknown, of course, to the damsel, removes her diamond pin and puts it in his pocket. A murderous apache (quite a sympathetic chap), unknown to Hawkshaw, deftly takes the pin from the detective's pocket, and then Hawkshaw, for a few moments, is more than slightly embarrassed. Montmorency, whose doll-like eyes have seen the dark deed, quickly gains possession of the diamond pin and attaches it to Bedelia's gown, to the surprise and relief of Hawkshaw.

Uncle and Aunt and also Bedelia continue their strange efforts to reform Paris, until Montmorency takes Bedelia in his arms.

On the same program is that stirring short film, "Killing the Killer," depicting a remarkable battle between a mongoose and a cobra.

A Bank Note's Adventures.

After witnessing the adventures of a ten-mark bank note, as set forth in another German production called "Uneasy Money," it is apt to make one conclude that one could have dreamed a better story any afternoon or evening in a cinema where they were exhibiting a dull picture.

"Uneasy Money," which is the second film offering of the new Little Carnegie Playhouse, frequently gets too far away from its theme. It shows the bank note being given to the young heroine as the first money she has earned. Immediately after it is given to the girl's mother, it is stolen and thereafter a man is killed.

The story hops about from one thing to another and it is seldom directed with the imagination one expects from such a subject. The acting is none too good and quite a number of the incidents are far from plausible.

In the end the soiled bank note, which bears the number 13513, falls to the floor while the hero and the heroine are embracing. A friendly dog happens to observe the bothersome piece of paper and he decides that it is something with which to pass the time and it is not long before the bill which is supposed to have caused so much worry and trouble is in small pieces.

Perhaps the story would have been more interesting if the amount of the note had been larger, for while some men might attack a girl and commit murder for a thousand marks, there are precious few who would risk their necks for two dollars and a half.

On the surrounding program is a short film called "Flashes from Paris."

Spain Decorates Lucrezia Bori.

The King of Spain has bestowed the Order of Alfonso XII upon the prima donna, Lucrezia Bori, who was instrumental in organizing the benefit performance at the Metropolitan Opera House on Nov. 27, realizing more than 250,000 pesetas for the fund being raised to construct the building for the University of Madrid. About 250,000,000 pesetas will be needed to complete the task.

E. H. Sothern in Recital Today.

E. H. Sothern will appear at Town Hall this afternoon under the auspices of the League for Political Education in the first of a series of four dramatic recitals. Daniel Frohman, under whose management Mr. Sothern first became a star forty years ago, will present the actor to the audience.

Mr. Sothern will give another recital a week from today. The other two will take place on Jan. 8 and 15.

DENY ANY POLITICS IN HAGUE INQUIRY

Two Jersey Senators Testify in Habeas Corpus Case They Did Not Hunt Campaign Material.

COUNSEL ALSO QUESTIONED

Watson Asserts Attacks by Larson on Mayor Were Not Inspired by Him—Hearing Again Delayed.

The legislative leaders who have been investigating the régime of Mayor Frank Hague in Jersey City were themselves subjected to examination on the witness stand yesterday before Vice Chancellor Fallon in Jersey City by Merritt Lane, counsel for the Mayor, in the habeas corpus proceedings by which he is fighting the efforts of the Legislature to punish the Mayor for contempt.

Questioned for the announced purpose of proving that politics guided the committee, Senator Clarence E. Case, committee chairman; Senator William A. Stevens, President of the Senate and vice chairman of the committee, and Russell E. Watson, counsel for the committee, smilingly accepted the reversal of their accustomed rôles. The two Republican Senators admitted that in the last campaign they had attacked "Hagueism" on the basis of disclosures made by their committee in Democratic Hudson County, but they denied that the investigation was politically inspired or conducted.

Watson's Objections Overruled.

The examination was made over the repeated objections of Mr. Watson, who declared it was irrelevant to the question of Mayor Hague's contempt. His objection was sustained only when Mr. Lane sought to bring into the proceedings campaign statements made by Governor-elect Morgan F. Larson with a view to showing that as head of the Republican ticket he had utilized for political effect material brought out by the legislative committee.

Over the protest of Mr. Lane, who said that the committee had spent weeks in "digging out something against Frank Hague which they call 'Hagueism'" for campaign consumption, the vice chancellor ruled that Senator Larson had not been sufficiently connected with the Case committee to have his statements or testimony admissible as evidence.

"We are not trying the Republican party," he commented.

Mr. Watson, the first to testify, was shown a series of newspaper articles quoting him on phases of the activities and plans of the Case committee. He verified the substantial accuracy of most of them. He denied having had any communication with Senator Larson which might have led to the gubernatorial candidate's announcement that "Hague is the overshadowing issue." He also denied prior knowledge of a letter sent to Republicans on Oct. 23 by the State Republican Committee enumerating highlights in the Case investigation and urging emphasis upon them.

Vice Chancellor Fallon also overruled Mr. Watson's objection to the summoning of Senator Case to the witness stand.

"You have charged me with bias and unfair dealing. I think the same thing can be said against your chairman, who has been going around the country making these statements," the vice chancellor said, referring to newspaper accounts of Senator Case's speaking activities, which Mr. Lane purposed to have verified. "I don't think he is any more biased than I am, but I think this evidence is admissible."

Admits Anti-Hague Charges.

The Senator testified that he had been correctly reported when he had made charges of graft in contracts, padded payrolls and inefficiency under Mayor Hague. Asked if it would not have been just as effective for the purposes of legitimate investigation to have summoned the Mayor before the committee the day after election instead of a week before, he retorted that the committee would have been ready to arrange the change if the Mayor had appeared and requested it.

Senator Stevens testified that failure to have called Mayor Hague would have indicated fear on the part of the committee. He admitted that he had suggested to the Republican State Committee that it broadcast the salient points in the disclosures before the Case committee and that he had supplied publicity material.

Pending completion of a summary of the Case committee testimony, which Mr. Lane wishes to place on the record, the hearing was continued until next Monday morning because Mr. Watson refused to present his side of the case before Mr. Lane finished. The vice chancellor ordered that the record show that he was not responsible for the delay.

The Case committee held a brief session yesterday morning in Trenton before Senators Case and Stevens left for Jersey City. A few notes and sketch books relating to the Rockaway Valley sewer were received for record purposes from Fred Guerin, representing Clyde Potts, sewer engineer. The committee will sit again Thursday, and on Monday and Thursday of next week.

Senator Case reiterated his determination to bring Mr. Hague before the committee. He said he believed the life of the committee extends beyond the present Legislature because the resolution creating it directed it to report at either the 1928 or 1929 session.

Fannie Ward's Maid Is Freed.

Betty Flecher, 21 years old, of 341 East Seventy-sixth Street, who was charged with the theft of two fur coats worth $280 from her former employer, Fannie Ward, actress, was freed yesterday by Magistrate Alexander Brough in Jefferson Market Court because of lack of evidence. Miss Ward was in court and testified against her former maid.

WHY FREE OF COST.

Every cent contributed to the Hundred Neediest Cases goes to those in want; there are no deductions of any kind. The New York Times, which assumes the entire cost of collection, feels itself fully compensated in the knowledge that it is doing a public service. The seven organizations that administer the fund without charge and with the most scrupulous supervision, consider themselves fully repaid in the spreading of the Gospel of Giving, which the publication of the cases brings about. That is why functions which would ordinarily cost many thousands of dollars are performed without any charge whatever.

SEEKS $50,000 FUND FOR SARATOGA SPRINGS

Conservation Commissioner Plans a Great Cure Centre on State Reservation.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—The New York Legislature at its next session will be asked by Alexander Macdonald, State Conservation Commissioner, to appropriate $50,000 for development of the Saratoga Springs Reservation, according to a statement issued today by the State Conservation Department.

The commissioner's plans for the reservation, as he will outline them in his report to the Legislature, include making it a cure centre that will give the public the benefit of the medicinal waters and baths throughout the entire year. His report will show how the development of the reservation has been directed toward this end, the preliminary work of which will be ended with the completion of the new Lincoln bath house, replacing the one which was burned this year.

"To establish a cure centre at Saratoga that will compare favorably with the great European spas will require years and this is an appropriate time to prepare definite plans," says the statement.

"In the past ten years the State Reservation at Saratoga Springs, which contains one of the most valuable collections of mineral waters in the world, has been more than doubled in area, increasing from 456 acres in 1918 to 1,062 in 1928, and the number of mineral water baths and hydrotherapeutic treatments given annually has increased from 23,305 in 1918 to 107,799 in 1927-28. The daily capacity of the baths in 1918 was 1,000. With the completion of the new Lincoln bath house, the daily capacity will be 5,000.

"The income from the reservation has increased 184 per cent, while the expenditures, including equipment and improvement have increased only 83 per cent.

"As a result of commercial exploitation many of the most valuable of the springs had been practically ruined when the State, to conserve them for their medical properties, took them over. The pumping of the wells for gas was stopped, the wells were capped and the springs given an opportunity to recover their natural flow.

"With the improvement in the bathing facilities, the park surrounding the bath houses has been enlarged; walks, drives and bridle paths have been laid out in the natural wooded ravines, and picnic grounds have been prepared for the accommodation of the public."

Morgenstiern Case Dismissed.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—A grand larceny charge against Dr. E. F. Morgenstiern of Chicago, Vice President of the International Life Insurance Company of St. Louis, who was indicted jointly with President Roy C. Toombs in connection with the disappearance of $500,000 in securities of the company, was dismissed today when the case was called for trial. The case against Toombs was continued to Dec. 19. Assistant Circuit Attorney Lemon said he understood Toombs was in custody in Chicago attempting to obtain bond under a Federal charge.

A MRS. BROWNING NAMED.

Witness in Allen Divorce Trial Tells of Young Woman's Visits.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 10.—The suit for divorce of Mrs. Katherine Allen against Edgar Allen, former booking agent of Frances (Peaches) Heenan Browning, came to trial today before Supreme Court Justice Young after Justice Young had refused to grant the defense another adjournment.

After Stanley Fowler of Manhattan, attorney for Mrs. Allen, who before her marriage was known on the stage as Katherine Murray, had agreed to strike from his complaint two paragraphs charging intimacy "with a woman known as Mrs. Browning" in Chicago and at the Hotel Forrest in Manhattan, Mrs. Susie Mullen, a nurse in the Allen household, testified that on several occasions during last February and March while Mrs. Allen was in Florida, Allen returned home with a blonde young woman.

On one occasion, Mrs. Mullen testified, she heard Allen call the blonde young woman "Mrs. Browning."

A maid, Gussie Armstead, formerly employed by the Allens, testified that after one visit of a "blonde young woman about 20 years old" to the Allen home at Larchmont, when Allen was at home and Mrs. Allen was in Florida, Allen had told the maid and her husband, the housman, that they were "fired" and threatened to throw them both out by the neck.

King Signs Italian Council Bill.

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—King Victor Emmanuel today gave official approval to the bill passed by the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies establishing a constitutional status for the Grand Council of the Fascist party. One of the principal powers granted to the council is the right to nominate a successor to Premier Mussolini should he retire or die.

IDENTIFY HINCHLIFFE TIRE.

Goodrich Officials Believe Plane Wreck Was Sea Flier's.

AKRON, Ohio, Dec. 10 (AP).—Officials of the B. F. Goodrich Company today announced they were reasonably certain that the tire found on an airplane landing gear washed ashore near Donegal, Ireland, last Friday, belonged to the ill-fated plane of Captain Walter Hinchliffe.

Hinchliffe and Lady Elsie Mackay, daughter of Lord Inchcape, were never seen again after taking off on an attempted east to west Atlantic flight last March.

Through a serial number on the tire officials of the company ascertained that it had been sent to the Stinson-Detroiter Company of Detroit and used in equipping a monoplane which was shipped to England last January.

Goodrich records also show that Captain Hinchliffe's plane was the only transatlantic plane lost which was equipped with 36x6 tires of Goodrich make.

The serial number which made identification possible was plainly visible on the casing.

HAGUE FIGHTS GAS RATES.

Jersey City Mayor Plans United Action by Hudson County.

Mayor Hague of Jersey City is organizing a movement of Hudson County municipalities to fight the increase in gas rates recently announced by the Public Service Gas and Electric Company. He plans to file a protest with the State Public Utilities Commission. A protest will automatically suspend the rates until a hearing is held. The rates are scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1.

Mr. Hague sent a letter yesterday to the Mayors of all municipalities in the county asking them to attend a conference in his office in Jersey City at 4 P. M. next Friday. There the plan of campaign will be mapped out. Jersey City is taking the lead in the movement, and its interests will be handled by Corporation Counsel Brogan, assisted by John J. Treacy, former President of the Public Utilities Commission.

On the AIR at 7:30

A SOCONYLAND SKETCH

ALASKA! Cold, snow, hunger, and men driven mad by loneliness and the lust for gold. That is the theme of the Story of the Yukon, the Soconyland Sketch for tonight.

Arthur Walden, now with the Byrd Expedition in the Antarctic, knows the frozen northland and loves it. He has put his knowledge of life on the Alaskan frontier into a dramatic book, Dog Puncher of the Yukon. Tonight's Soconyland Sketch is based on this story.

You'll hear the wind whipping across the Alaskan snows. You'll face hunger and suffering and death. And when it's all over you'll feel as though you'd been right there yourself fighting it through with the last of the American pioneers...the Alaskan "sourdoughs."

Tune in at 7:30 and hear "A Story of the Yukon." Every Tuesday evening a Soconyland Sketch goes on the air from stations WEAF, WEEI, WTIC, WJAR, WTAG, WCSH, WGY, and WGR.

TOLL BASIS URGED IN HIGHWAY SYSTEM

PURICELLI OUTLINES NEEDS

Favors Private Construction, With Fees to Pay Cost, Then Turning Over Network to States.

Express highway development on the toll road basis in parts of the country that need it immediately and eventually throughout the nation was indorsed in a paper and discussion yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting of the National Highway Traffic Association. The session was held in the assembly hall of the Automobile Club of America, 12 East Fifty-third Street, where the meeting will be continued today and tomorrow.

Principles considered essential to the building of such highways were set forth in a paper by Piero Puricelli, president of the Societa Anonima Autostrade of Italy and chairman of the association's national committee on the economic status of toll roads. Arthur H. Blanchard, president of the association, who presided at the session read the paper in Mr. Puricelli's absence.

Mr. Puricelli maintained that toll roads did not conflict with either public or private rights. He specified that the creation of such roads must be called for by special conditions of locality and traffic.

The amount of the toll, he declared, must be in direct relation to the advantages which the user of the road enjoyed.

His argument in favor of private enterprise constructing express highways with the provision that they be turned over when paid for to the State and nation also was advocated by George H. Pride, chairman of the vehicle transportation committee of the Board of Trade.

Their proposal was opposed by Lester P. Barlow, president of the Union Highways Association, who favored Federal road loans to States, to be repaid by tolls.

A four-track concrete express highway between New York and Boston could be constructed for $150,000,000 and could be paid for in ten years on a toll basis, according to Mr. Barlow. L. D. Stephens of the New Jersey Public Service Commission said the first nineteen miles of New Jersey Route 25, had cost $30,000,000.

Truck and bus regulations and development of highway safety as a school subject were urged in other reports.

COMPLAINT AMENDED IN PARK CASINO CASE

Counsel of Lessee Says New Data Include Proposed Lease and Agreement on Alterations.

Alexander Rose, counsel for C. F. Zittel, lessee of the Casino in Central Park, also counsel for Samuel Krengel, who has brought a taxpayer's suit to restrain Mayor Walker and Park Commissioner Herrick from leasing the Casino to the Dieppe Corporation at the expiration of Mr. Zittel's lease, said yesterday that he had filed an amended complaint in the taxpayer's suit after serving it upon Charles L. Hoffman, counsel for the Dieppe Corporation, and Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson.

According to Mr. Rose, the amended complaint consists largely of data obtained from the opposing side, including a copy of the prospective new lease and the agreement of the Dieppe Corporation covering the alterations to the Casino. Mr. Rose further explained that his amended complaint would automatically block the motion to dismiss the original complaint made on behalf of the Dieppe Corporation before Supreme Court Justice Ingraham. The motion was returnable tomorrow.

SMITH IS PACKING UP.

Governor Declares He Knows Nothing About Bank Position.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 10. — Governor Smith began packing up today at his office in the Capitol, and many of his personal things are being moved over to the De Witt Clinton Hotel, where he plans to remain for some time after Jan. 1.

The Governor told newspapermen that he had not made up his mind as to his future. Referring to a statement that he would be chairman of the board of a new bank planned by John J. Raskob and William F. Kenny, he said:

"I read about that bank job with a great deal of interest, but I know nothing about it."

Although he had disposed of all the animals in his famous zoo, within half an hour after he had turned over to Lieut. Gov. Corning two pet dogs, a friend in the western part of the State sent him a St. Bernard puppy. Franklin D. Roosevelt as Governor will fall heir to half a dozen animals now remaining in the zoo.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 10.—David Breen, former watchman on the estate of Dwight W. Morrow, and now operator of a dairy farm near Tenafly, N. J., is in the Englewood Hospital near death as a result of a bullet wound in the abdomen received yesterday while investigating an attempt by hi-jackers to loot a still in operation on his property without his knowledge. The police here are holding three men charged with operating a still, and are seeking to apprehend the alleged hi-jackers.

JUDGE HASTINGS GETS DU PONT SENATORSHIP

Wilmington Jurist Named by Governor to Succeed Incumbent, Retired Because of Health.

DOVER, Del., Dec. 10 (AP).—Governor Robinson today appointed Daniel O. Hastings, now judge of the Municipal Court in Wilmington, to be Senator to succeed T. Coleman du Pont, who resigned last week.

Senator du Pont resigned because of ill health.

Judge Hastings, when advised of the appointment, said he hoped to be shown in at Washington on Thursday if necessary arrangements could be made.

Judge Hastings, a Republican, is a native of Maryland, having been born in Somerset County March 5, 1874. He finished his education at Columbian University (now George Washington University) and was admitted to the Delaware bar in 1902. He has been a resident of Wilmington ever since.

From 1904 to 1909 he was Deputy Attorney General of the State. He was Secretary of State of Delaware from January to June, 1909, when he became a justice of the State Supreme Court. He resigned in January, 1911, to become counsel for the Legislature. He was City Solicitor of Wilmington from July, 1911, to July, 1917. For eight years he has been presiding judge of the Municipal Court of Wilmington.

For the past year Judge Hastings has served as Republican National Committeeman on a proxy from Senator du Pont, who held that office, but was prevented by illness from attending meetings of the committee. He was a delegate to the Republican Convention in Kansas City.

Judge Hastings is married and has a family.

Housemaid Going Back to Chicago.

Dorothy Bakker, 19-year-old housemaid, who after stealing $2,100 from her employer, Mrs. Nellie Bauer, of 11,333 Lowe Avenue, Chicago, came here and included among her pleasures a round-trip taxi ride to Niagara Falls, was discharged by Magistrate Brough in Jefferson Market Court yesterday and turned over to Policewoman Marion Wightman of Chicago. She had been held as a fugitive from justice. She will be taken back to Chicago for trial.

RADIO BOARD DENIES FULL TIME TO WNYC

CITY WILL APPEAL THE CASE

Licenses of Radio Corporation Are Referred to Counsel After Supreme Court Ruling.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Radio Commission today denied the application of WNYC, the New York municipal broadcasting station, for full-time operation on 570 kilocycles, which it now shares with WMCA of New York. The commission's vote was unanimous and followed an announcement that because of the small number of channels available in New York it would be impossible to grant the municipal station full time.

WMCA has an application pending for seven-eighths time on its assignment and will now obtain a hearing.

A lengthy hearing was held Nov. 16 by the commission in the WNYC case, at which time Grover Whalen, Albert Goldman and other New York City officials appeared in support of the application.

The commission also denied the application of WKBO of Jersey City for full time on 1,450 kilocycles and a power increase from 250 to 1,000 watts. The board held that if this application were granted it would cause interference with Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts stations.

The commission today considered in executive session the finding of the Supreme Court that the Radio Corporation of America had violated the Clayton act in the tube clause of its agreement with radio manufacturers.

While officials refused to discuss the matter, it was learned tonight that the commission refused to act on all pending applications of the Radio Corporation for licenses, and referred the matter to the legal division of the commission. The Radio Corporation has pending before the commission a number of applications for experimental and commercial licenses, and it was on these that the commission refused to act today.

The radio act of 1927 provides that if any corporation is found guilty by the courts of violating the Clayton act or other anti-trust laws, the commission may revoke its license.

Radio Corporation Asks Rehearing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Radio Corporation of America today urged the Supreme Court to reconsider its refusal to pass upon the legality of contracts by which it licenses competitors to use its patents in the manufacture of radio receiving sets conditioned on the competitors' purchase of the corporation's tubes for equipping the sets.

City Will Appeal to Courts.

Concerning the refusal of the Radio Board to grant WNYC full time, Mayor Walker said yesterday:

"I think it is so important to the city that, if possible, and if necessary, we will carry the matter into the courts."

Christie Bohnsack, manager of WNYC, said he was unable to make any comment on the report pending receipt of official information that the city's appeal had been denied by the commission.

"Our sole information," said Mr. Bohnsack, "has been the accounts in the newspapers."

PLAN REPUBLICAN ACTIVITY.

Leaders to Discuss Foreign-Born Voters at Jacoby Dinner Tomorrow.

Plans for a permanent Republican organization among foreign-born voters will be discussed by party leaders from all parts of the State at a dinner at the Hotel Roosevelt tomorrow evening. The dinner will be in honor of H. Murray Jacoby, who was the director of the Naturalized Citizens' Bureau of the Hoover-Curtis Campaign Committee during the recent campaign. State Chairman H. Edmund Machold, Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Chairman, and William H. Hill of Binghamton, who was chairman of the Hoover-Curtis Campaign Committee, will be among the speakers. Judge William Blau will preside.

During the campaign Mr. Jacoby estimated that 46 per cent. of the voters of the State were of foreign parentage and that 90 per cent. of this vote was regarded as favorable to Governor Smith. His efforts were devoted to swing enough of this vote to Hoover to carry the State for him.

"Mr. Jacoby will lay before the party leaders his plan for perpetuating the work of the Hoover-Curtis Naturalized Citizens' Bureau," Judge Blau said. "We all feel that such an effort is worth while and that it is in line with the installation of Hoover efficiency into the party organization."

ROBBER KILLER PROMOTED.

Detective Burns Shot Thug Trying to Hold Up Candy Store.

At the recommendation of Inspector Coughlin, Police Commissioner Warren promoted Detective Thomas Burns of the East Fifty-first Street Station yesterday from third to second grade, increasing his salary from $2,500 to $2,700.

On Saturday afternoon Burns shot to death a robber who, armed with an imitation revolver, tried to hold up the Fanny Farmer candy store at 571 Lexington Avenue. From fingerprints the robber was identified as Theodore Clark, about 25 years old, who received a suspended sentence for robbery on Aug. 21, 1925, and was sentenced to two years in Sing Sing on Dec. 11, 1925, for a Syracuse robbery.

Lucien Klotz Not With Pinaud.

In connection with a cable dispatch from Paris in the New York Times, it was stated that Lucien Klotz "and associates in the Pinaud company were among the most conservative of French investors." M. Klotz was Minister of Finance in the Clemenceau war cabinet and is now ill in a Paris sanitarium. George Panopulo, General Manager of Pinaud, Inc., informs THE TIMES that Lucien Klotz has never had any connection with or interest in either the French or American Pinaud companies.

PROPOSE TO EXTEND AUTO PARKING BAN

Broadway Association Directors Would Advance Midtown Evening Hour to 4:30.

TRAFFIC LIGHT CEREMONY

Program to Be Planned for Opening of System From 72d to 181st Street Next Week.

Suggestions for remedying traffic congestion in the midtown area were embodied in a resolution adopted yesterday by the directors of the Broadway Association and will be forwarded to Deputy Police Commissioner Philip D. Hoyt, in charge of traffic. The chief recommendation is that the hour for nonparking be advanced from 5 P. M. to 4:30 P. M. to allow traffic policemen time to clear the streets before the rush hour sets in.

The area in which relief is sought extends from Thirty-third to Fifty-ninth Street and from Lexington Avenue to Eighth Avenue. The present regulations prohibit parking between the hours of 5 and 7 P. M. in the district, and the overcrowded situation, it is believed, would be improved with the elimination of thousands of automobiles now allowed to stand the additional half hour.

The association appointed a committee to plan a formal demonstration at the extension of the Broadway traffic light system from Seventy-second Street to 181st Street, a distance of five miles. This unit, which is expected to be turned on in about a week, will be the largest yet put into operation in the city.

The program will included addresses by Mayor Walker, Commissioner Hoyt, Commissioner Albert Goldman and other city officials, officers of the Broadway Association and civic leaders. Following the ceremonies outdoors a luncheon will be given by the association at one of the hotels in the section over which the new lighting system extends.

Frank A. Duggan, manager of the Hotel McAlpin, was elected a member of the board of the association at the meeting. The annual election of twelve directors will be held at a meeting of the association on Jan. 14 next.

RACE ON MOTORCYCLES TO WIN A GIRL'S KISS

Three Yonkers Youths Set Out, Two Are Halted for Speeding, Laggard Comes in First.

Romance in Yonkers is not dead, although occasionally it is very sorely tried by circumstances. The most recent bit of discouragement came through a wistful desire to combine it with the mechanical age.

Three young men of Yonkers—Floyd Carter, 19 years old, of 7 Wood Place; Stanley Allen, 25, of 120 Woodworth Avenue, and one Reginald Ryer—all seek the favor of the same young lady. She lives in New York and appears to have something akin to a sense of humor. A week ago Sunday, at all events, she invited the three friends to a party at her home—stipulating that they come by motorcycle, the first arriving to receive a kiss.

As romance is not dead in Yonkers the three agreed. They were speeding south along Broadway when, at 210th Street Ryer's engine coughed sadly and gasped for air. Presently it stopped altogether and a furious young man uttered words unfit for a young lady's ears. Allen and Carter laughed. It was between them now. They raced on, turning into Dyckman Street, then into the Harlem River Speedway.

At 190th Street they heard a motorcycle coming up behind them. Opening up their machines they hurled back taunts—and sped on. At 170th Street the third motorcycle came alongside and the two discovered not Ryer but Patrolman Murtha Lennon of Squad 1. He was not in good humor. He delayed them for some time.

Ryer, meanwhile, had repaired the damage to his motorcycle and set out again for the party. He felt himself badly beaten, so he drove slowly. But when his two friends finally separated themselves from Lennon and arrived at the house, Ryer was already there. He was smiling.

The conclusion of the episode was played yesterday in Traffic Court when Magistrate Richard F. McKinley found Allen and Carter guilty of speeding. Carter was able to pay a $25 fine, but Allen went to jail for two days.

National League Bans Draft Meeting; Robinson to Remain Brooklyn Manager

DRAFT IS DISCUSSED IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Club Owners, in Session Here, Decline to Send Committee to Minors' Conference.

LEGION BASEBALL SUCCESS

Circuit to Recommend Continuance Next Season—Heydler to Be Re-elected Today.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The National League will not send a committee to confer with the minor league committee which was appointed at the Toronto convention last week and which will meet on Jan. 10 at West Baden, Ind., to take up the perplexing question of the draft.

This course of action was decided upon by the owners of the major circuit as they met yesterday afternoon in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in the opening session of the League's annual Winter meeting.

"We feel," said John A. Heydler, president of the League, "that there is no reason for us to be represented at the West Baden conference. The major leagues already have agreed upon a draft schedule, and this we submitted to the minor leagues at their convention in Toronto last week.

"They failed to agree with our proposals and also failed to agree on any proposals of their own. So until they do, the National League feels there is nothing it can do about the matter. If any definite proposals on the draft are made by the minor league committee at West Baden next month, we will then be glad to take the matter up."

Farrell Requested Committee.

Discussion of the draft, President Heydler explained, was prompted by a letter from J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, in which the National League was asked to send a committee to the West Baden conference.

The discussion, it also developed, produced about the only definite action taken on anything by the league owners, who stated that the chief purpose of yesterday's session was merely to talk over matters that would come up for decision today. They therefore were not inclined to reveal much of anything that they had talked about, although it is a matter of record that they talked all of five hours.

A report on the American Legion boys' baseball tournament, toward which the National League contributed $50,000, showed that 8,700 teams and 122,000 youngsters had taken part in the tournament this year. This was characterized as a marvelous showing, which in truth it was. Of the league's $50,000 it was reported that $45,200 had been used, and the league at once recommended a continuance of the tournament next year.

Improvements for Press Boxes.

The baseball writers who toil in the press boxes during the playing season were pleased to hear that all the owners in the league were instructed to install telephonic communication at their parks between the playing field and the press box.

The radio broadcasting of ball games and its effect upon attendances was discussed and brought to light the fact that the four Western clubs were heartily in accord with it, while the four Eastern teams felt less enthusiastic about it.

There was also discussion of the playing rule which refers to the interference of a base runner by a fielder. This, it is understood, was brought up by Charles A. Stoneham, whose Giants lost a spirited argument last September when they contended Catcher Hartnett of the Cubs had unduly interfered with the good intentions of Andy Reese to score a run.

President Heydler commented rather reluctantly on what transpired during this discussion, but said no action was taken.

"However," he concluded, "I do hope that if anything like that occurs again there'll be no photographs taken of it."

$21,000 in Players' Fund.

A report from the Professional Baseball Players Association, an organization which has for its purpose the giving of aid to broken down ball players, showed that it has a membership of 2,500 players and a fund of $21,000.

Announcement also was made that the league's annual schedule meeting for next year had been changed from Feb. 12 to Feb. 5.

Commenting on the report that Umpire Bill Klem had resigned, President Heydler said the league still had received no official notice and therefore had not discussed it.

"The main business before the house at the concluding session of the meeting today will be the election of a president, and in this the re-election of President Heydler is assured. There will also be the reading of the financial report and decision on the various matters discussed yesterday.

Present at yesterday's conclave were Barney and Sam Dreyfuss of the Pirates; Charles A. Stoneham, John McGraw, James Tierney and Leo Bondy of the Giants; Wilbert Robinson, Steve McKeever, Joseph Gilleaudeau and Frank York of the Robins; Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves; W. F. Baker, L. C. Ruch and J. P. Nugent of the Phillies; W. L. Veeck of the Cubs, Sam Breadon of the Cardinals and C. J. McDiarmid and L. C. Widrig of the Reds.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TO MEET.

Nothing but Routine Business Slated for Chicago Today.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—The American League convenes here tomorrow with nothing but routine business on its slate. Several trades, however, are rumored, for practically every club is looking for strength to bolster up weak spots before the 1929 season gets under way. The Board of Directors meets in the morning, with the owners and presidents scheduled to start their meeting at 1 P. M.

That the draft question would be considered was remote, President E. S. Barnard said today. The minor leagues rejected the major leagues' offer last week, and President Barnard indicated his league would take the stand that the next move must come from the minors.

The owners, however, may choose to discuss the move of the minor leagues to force all major clubs to sell their "farms." This question is almost certain to come up at the joint meeting of the National and American Leagues Thursday.

Blackburne to Lead White Sox In 1929; Signs Year Contract

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—Russell (Lena) Blackburne, manager of the White Sox since July 4, today signed a one-year contract to pilot the Chicago club next year. Blackburne's signing contradicted reports that he would not be at the helm of the White Sox when the 1929 season opened.

ROBINSON TO STAY AS ROBINS' PILOT

Will Continue as President and Manager of Brooklyn for Another Season.

NO MEETING IS HELD

Wilbert Robinson will remain as president and manager of the Brooklyn Robins for at least the balance of his contract, which has one more year to go. He is not to be ousted, as Steve McKeever, half owner of the club and Robbies' arch foe, so fervently had hoped, nor will he step down as manager and remain only as president, as Robbie himself had proposed to do at the close of the last season.

That was the upshot of the widely heralded directors' meeting of the Robins, which was scheduled for yesterday morning, but which caused even greater surprise in the ranks of assembled baseball men in the city by not being held at all.

There was no meeting for the simple reason that the warring factions in the club's ownership, the McKeever and Ebbets interests, could not agree even on a common battleground.

McKeever and Frank B. York, the two members of the board of directors representing the McKeever interests, wanted the meeting held at Ebbets Field.

Robbie Ignores McKeever.

But Uncle Robbie, arriving in the city early in the morning for the opening of the National League conclave, established himself at the Waldorf-Astoria, from where, he announced, he had no intention of budging. In this stand he was joined by Joseph Gilleaudeau, who since the death of John Scholl last August is the only member on the board representing the Ebbets estate.

"There is no ball game at Ebbets Field," said Robbie upon his arrival at the Waldorf-Astoria, "and I know of no other reason why I should go to Flatbush at this time of the year. Our constitution provides for no formal meeting of the board of directors until next April, and, so far as I am concerned, there won't be any until then."

It therefore was a startled group of newspaper men who either called in person or phoned the Ebbets Field offices yesterday morning, seeking information on how "the big fight" was coming along.

There they found only Dave Driscoll on the premises, who seemed totally unaware that any meeting was to be held and well pleased that there wasn't any, although he lost his breath rapidly as he danced from one to another of six telephone receivers.

Battle Is Called Off.

It then took the bewildered correspondents the better part of the day to gain piecemeal most of the facts in the mystery, which, summed up, brought the conclusion that the attempt to oust Uncle Robbie before the expiration of his contract next year had died with the combatants on opposite sides of the bridge and unable to strike a single blow.

This was admitted by McKeever himself, who later in the day appeared at the Waldorf-Astoria not to pay his respects to Robbie but to attend the National League meeting.

"So far as I can see," said McKeever, "there is no way that Robbie can be put out. His contract of $25,000 a year has still another year to go, and we will have to let it go at that. The club cannot afford to pay him in full an dismiss him, nor will the club hire some one else to manage the team so long as Robbie is being paid to do that as well as act as president."

All this was quite all right with Robbie, who, having the full support of the Ebbets interest, never did have any intention of resigning. He did say several weeks ago that he might propose to step out as manager but remain as president if the board of directors accepted the idea, but, as there was no meeting of the board yesterday, he announced that he no longer entertained the idea of making such a proposal.

"I guess we'll just be the one big happy family we have been in the past," said Robbie, with a laugh. "and I'll be in there doing the best I can both as president and manager."

SHAW IN RING TONIGHT.

To Face Kline in Main Ten-Rounder at 22d Engineers Armory.

Barney Shaw and Jerry Kline, contenders for the National Guard welterweight championship, are to furnish the action tonight in the main ten-round bout at the Twenty-second Engineers Regiment Armory. The winner of this bout is promised a title match with Champion Eddie (Kid) Whalen. Johnny Huber and Lou Massey, featherweights, are paired in the ten-round semi-final.

TWO GOLF MEETINGS TODAY.

New Jersey State Organization and Met. Association to Convene.

Two golf associations will hold their annual meetings today. The New Jersey State organization will convene at the Railroad Club at 4 o'clock this afternoon, while the Metropolitan Golf Association session, at which 400 delegates and guests are expected, will be held tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Moscowitz Ill, Bout Off.

The Lenox S. C. will formally notify the State Athletic Commission today that Lou Moscowitz, who was to have boxed Tony Pellegrino in the main event tonight, is confined to his home from grip and requests that the match be deferred for at least a fortnight.

ALDRIDGE IS SOLD TO NEWARK CLUB

McGraw Also Sends Wrightstone, Utility Player, to Tris Speaker's Team.

PRICE IS PUT AT $25,000

Aldridge, Who Came to Giants From Pirates in Exchange for Grimes, Had Been Hold-Out.

The gathering of the club owners of the National League at the Waldorf yesterday renewed rumors of trades now pending between the various clubs, but the day brought to light only one transaction that was announced as completed. This concerned the sale of Vic Aldridge, right-handed pitcher, and Russell Wrightstone, utility infielder and outfielder, by the Giants to the Newark Bears for a reported price of $25,000. It was the first important deal engineered by Tris Speaker since becoming manager of the Newark club.

Aldridge came to the Giants in the trade last Winter that sent Burleigh Grimes to the Pirates. He was a holdout in the Spring was late in reporting and never gained the point of effectiveness that McGraw had hoped for. He was loaned to the Newark club late in the season, when he suddenly regained his old-time form and won five straight games. On the strength of this showing he was recalled by the Giants at the close of the campaign, only to be sold outright by McGraw yesterday.

Prior to coming to the Giants last season Wrightstone had been a member of the Phillies for eight years, and in that period gained the distinction of having played every position in the infield as well as doing duty in the outfield.

MISS COLLETT SCORES 80 ON PASADENA LINKS

With Miss Van Wie, Holds Loos and Hutchinson All Even in 18-Hole Handicap Match.

Special to The New York Times.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 10.—Miss Glenna Collett of New York and Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago finished all even in an eighteen-hole match at the Pasadena Golf Club today against two professionals, Eddie Loos of Chicago and Willard Hutchinson of Pasadena. The women received a handicap of five bisques.

Loos equaled par of the course, 70, and Hutchinson had a 74. Miss Collett scored an 80, including a 2 on the 195-yard hole, where her tee shot stopped close to the pin. Miss Van Wie chipped in a mashie-niblick shot for a birdie on the eighth. Her total was 83. The last six holes were played in rain.

The match was the last of a series of exhibitions for local charities, given by Miss Collett. The national champion will leave tomorrow for the East, going direct to Pinehurst.

AMATEUR VICTORIOUS OVER NOTED GOLF PROS

Fay Coleman Wins One-Day Tourney in Which Hagen and Farrell Compete on Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 10.—A field that included the holders of the British open and American open golf championships and other leading professionals competed in a one-day sweepstakes competition held at the Riviera Country Club today by the Southern California P. G. A. But the best score was returned by a local amateur, Fay Coleman, whose card was 74.

Coleman, holder of the Southern California amateur championship, had 37 for each nine. Play was over the 7,200-yard course which will be used for the Los Angeles $10,000 open next month.

The long course was unusually difficult today because it was wet. Rain fell all afternoon, and caused many contestants, among them Walter Hagen to pick up.

Harold Bear of Los Angeles led the pros with a score of 76. Harry Cooper of Buffalo, with 77—2—75, and Frank Nuzally of Santa Fe Springs, Cal., with a 79—4—75, tied for the money in a Nine bogie handicap. Johnny Farrell, national open champion, had a 76.

Diegel Signs as Pro at Club in Mexico; P. G. A. Champion Will Get $15,000 a Year

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—Leo Diegel, national professional golf champion, signed a two-year contract yesterday as professional of the Agua Caliente Golf Club, located three miles from Tijuana, Mexico. His salary will be $15,000 a year in addition to having all golf concessions at the club.

For the last three years Diegel has been playing representative of the Fenimore Country Club in the metropolitan district.

The Agua Caliente course will be open for play in July. A drive and pitch course not in play will be used for a one-day tournament to be held Jan. 7, for $1,000 in prize money. Plans are under way for a $25,000 tournament next Winter which will establish a new high water mark for cash prizes in golf.

Over the long distance telephone Diegel told his brother, George, that he was going to change his address for 1929 from the Fenimore Country Club at White Plains to the Agua Caliente Club, Tijuana. It was while he played as a representative of the metropolitan district this season that Diegel won the Canadian open and the P. G. A. title.

Although Diegel's new contract means that the district will lose a champion from its ranks, it does not mean that it will lose sight of him. He intends to play in most of the tournaments of the East and especially in the Canadian again next year.

He has recently recovered from an attack of influenza while on the coast and now intends to start in the long Winter campaign. According to his brother, Leo is not due to report at his new post until July.

WOMEN'S GOLF BODY CHOOSES OFFICERS

Mrs. Hartwell Re-elected Head of Westchester and Fairfield County Association.

Forty delegates attended the seventh annual meeting of the Women's Westchester and Fairfield County Golf Association at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday morning, thus bringing to an end the yearly business sessions of the women's golf organizations in the district for this year.

The meeting disposed of numerous routine items, and the principal business consisted in the election of officers for 1929, the naming of a nominating committee and the offering of clubs to use their courses for the various association tournaments.

Mrs. Harold T. Hartwell of Woodway was re-elected president, and serving with her will be Mrs. William H. Young, also of Woodway, vice president; Mrs. John Cromelin, Siwanoy, secretary; Mrs. Anthony Bassler, Westchester Biltmore, treasurer; Mrs. F. Bertine Guest, Bonnie Briar, chairman of admissions; Mrs. George Beavers, Ardsley, chairman of tournaments; Mrs. Hugh McDonald, Scarsdale, chairman of handicaps, and Mrs. George R. Wallen, Westchester Biltmore, team captain.

Those who were chosen to compose the nominating committee include Mrs. E. H. Arnold, Greenwich; Mrs. Charles T. Russell, Ardsley; Mrs. A. L. Hammond, Ardsley; Mrs. I. M. Wheeler, Westchester Biltmore; Mrs. A. P. Van Schaick, Brooklawn, and Mrs. John B. Lord, Wee Burn.

Mrs. Russell in reporting for the admissions committee stated that the membership of the association is now 224, and Mrs. McDonald announced that 198 of these had been handicapped.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Myra D. Paterson, former president of the association, had offered a new championship trophy. The cup will become the possession of the player who wins it three times.

Of the clubs that offered their courses for the year's tournaments were Greenwich, Woodway, Round Hill, Hudson River, Westchester Biltmore, Ardsley, Scarsdale, Wee Burn and Westchester Hills. Mrs. Bassler in her report as treasurer announced a balance of $3,645.01.

It also was decided to hold one of the tournaments as a benefit for a crippled children's home at White Plains. At the conclusion of the meeting the delegates attended a luncheon.

SLATTERY BEATS MAHONEY.

Smoot Gains Decision.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 10 (AP).—Conny Smoot, South Boston lightweight, won an eight-round decision here tonight over Battling Silvia, local boy. In the semi-final Gene Bianco, Boston flyweight, outpointed Wes Willis Woods of Scotland in six rounds.

Sonnenberg Victor on Mat.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Dec. 10 (AP).—Gus Sonnenberg, former Dartmouth athlete, won in two straight falls from Frank Yusko of Lithuania here tonight. The first fall was won in 36 minutes and 15 seconds and the second in 6 minutes.

PHIL TURNESA WINS ON MINIATURE LINKS

Professional golfers took to an indoor course yesterday and twenty-eight of them played in a Metropolitan Professional Golfers' Association tourney over two miniature links that measured, respectively, 443 feet and 413 feet.

Over these two eighteen-hole layouts of the Anyweather Golf Course at 315 Fourth Avenue, the competition was as close as those that have been held during the Summer months over links that measure 6,000 yards or more.

Phil Turnesa of Elmsford finally emerged the winner, but only after a thirty-six-hole play-off. Turnesa shot thirty-six holes in 75, only to find himself tied by Jim Dante of Braidburn. The two then went over the tiny course, with its minute bunkers, ponds, and streams, and were even once more with 39 each. But playing the second course, Turnesa triumphed with a 37 to Dante's 40.

Jack Farrell of North Shore finished back of the leaders with a thirty-six-hole total of 77; Tom Pepin of Mosholu had 78, while Bill Klein, Wheatley Hills, was 79, along with Pat Costello, Biltmore Shores, and Fred Moore, Dunwoodie.

The scores:

Phil Turnesa, Elmsford	35	40—75
Jim Dante, Braidburn	36	39—75
Jack Farrell, North Shore	38	39—77
Tom Pepin, Mosholu	39	39—78

BASS OUTPOINTS CHARLES.

Wins Decision in 10-Round Bout at Arena in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10 (AP).—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, won the decision from Gaston Charles, French flash, in a ten-round battle at the Arena tonight. Bass scaled 127¾ pounds, Charles 129½.

Jackie Pilkington, 132½, New York, won the ten-round semi-final from Emory Cabana, 131½, Philadelphia.

Johnny Erickson, 119¼, New York, stopped Pinkie May, 122½, Savannah, Ga., in the third round of a ten-round bout. The referee stopped the bout to save May from further punishment. This match furnished a novelty, the boxers wearing white gloves, the first of the kind worn in a Philadelphia ring.

ROBERTS STOPS HAHN.

Wins in Third Round as Loser's Claim of Foul Is Disallowed.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Johnny Roberts, Huntington, W. Va., welterweight, won by a knockout over Ray Hahn of Indianapolis in the third round here tonight when Hahn's claim of a foul was disallowed. The bout was scheduled to go ten rounds.

Roberts weighed 150 and Hahn 146¾. It was Roberts's last fight as a welter, due to his difficulty in making the weight limit.

O'Leary Outpoints Haggerty.

HIS DEBUT IN NEW YORK

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

K. O. Christner, 26-year-old Akron (Ohio) heavyweight, who jumped from obscurity to prominence by an 8-round knockout of Knute Hansen, gets his big chance for ring fame on the night of Jan. 25 in Madison Square Garden.

Articles for the 10-round match were signed yesterday, and his opponent will be Jack Sharkey, Boston ex-sailor, whose victory over Arthur De Kuh last night in Boston clinched the battle.

This match will serve to give New Yorkers their first glimpse of Christner. Local fans have been more than slightly curious about the warrior since he crushed Hansen's insecure reputation as a heavyweight title prospect.

Seeking a parallel for the interest in the Al Singer-Tony Canzoneri ten-round bout in the Garden Friday night, it is necessary to go back to the days when Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee were at the top of their form, fighting a succession of ring contests, which never failed to attract tremendous partisan crowds.

For Singer the match offers the best opportunity he has yet experienced. Growing fast into a lightweight, he is matched against a former featherweight champion of the world in Canzoneri, whose cleverness and speed are his greatest assets.

The Rene DeVos-Ace Hudkins middleweight battle, postponed from last night to Dec. 21, was again postponed yesterday when Lew Burston and Jimmy Bronson reported to Matchmaker Tom McArdle that the outbreak of boils which led to DeVos's withdrawal from the original date has become aggravated. Now the contest is scheduled for Dec. 26, and under the latest arrangement Con O'Kelly and Jim Maloney will clash in the feature of a heavyweight carnival on Dec. 21 as was originally planned.

SNYDER OUTPOINTS AMERICO IN 6 ROUNDS

Brooklyn Veteran Rallies to Win Feature Clash at New Broadway Arena.

Rallying after a poor start in the first round, Jackie Snyder, veteran Brooklyn junior lightweight, defeated Joe Americo, Greenwich Village youngster, last night in the feature six-round bout at the new Broadway Arena, Brooklyn. Staggered in the opening session, Snyder came back in the second round and by carrying the attack through the remainder of the bout worked up a clear margin of points. Snyder weighed 128½ pounds and Americo 129½.

Tommy La Duca, Bath Beach middleweight, knocked out Frank Ponzo of Harlem in the second round of their scheduled four-round bout. Sencio Cruz, Filipino flyweight, knocked out Sam Rothstein of San Francisco, also in the second round of their scheduled four-round bout. Jack Ciavirella, Greenpoint heavyweight, won the decision from Mike Hallock, also of Brooklyn, in four rounds.

Sammy Kirsch, Brownsville welterweight, outpointed Tommy Romeo, Georgia, in four rounds, and in the opening four-rounder Georgie Terra, Coney Island featherweight, won the decision from Benny Milano of Williamsburg.

Two New Yorkers Stopped.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 10 (AP).—George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight, knocked out Billy Franklin of New York in the main bout at the Marieville A. C., North Providence, tonight. In the semi-final Andy Callahan of Lawrence, Mass., knocked out Sammy White of New York in the first round.

Bradley Outpoints Duquette.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 10 (AP).—Ruby Bradley, New England flyweight champion, won a decision over Earl Duquette of Boston in a ten-round bout tonight. Bradley weighed 112¾ and Duquette 113.

STEWART IS LEADER IN HOCKEY SCORING

Maroons' Star Widens Margin, Having 8 Goals and 2 Assists for 10 Points.

COOPER STILL TOPS GROUP

Detroit Man First in American Section With 6—Bill Cook in Five-Man Tie for Second.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10 (Canadian Press).—Veterans are to the fore as scoring leaders in both sections of the National Hockey League, according to the scoring and penalty statistics up to and including games played last night, published tonight by President Frank Calder.

Nels Stewart of the Montreal Maroons, who has held the lead in the International group almost from the outset, widened his margin during the week. Stewart has now scored eight goals, exactly double the number registered by any other forward in the Canadian section. He has had two assists, which gives him a total of 10 points.

Aurel Joliat and Howie Morenz, the veteran Canadiens forwards, are tied with Andy Blair, Toronto's brilliant find, for second at 7 points. Joliat and Morenz have each scored four goals and been credited with three assists. Blair has had three goals and four assists. Billy Burch of the New York Americans and Ace Bailey of Toronto, are next, each with four goals and two assists.

In the American group Carson Cooper, veteran Detroit centre, also increased his margin during the week. He has five goals and one assist for a total of 6 points. Bill Cook of the New York Rangers is tied with four other veterans for second position. Cook has scored four goals, while Dick Irwin of Chicago, George Hay of Detroit, Frank Frederickson of Boston and Harry Oliver, also of Boston, each has three goals and one assist.

Leaders in penalties in the two sections are running neck and neck. Lionel Conacher, captain of the New York Americans, and Ernie Shore, rugged Boston defense man, have spent thirty-three minutes each with the penalty timers. Penalties run higher in the international division, for Bailey of the Maple Leafs has done thirty minutes, Dutton of the Maroons twenty-nine and Joliat of the Canadians twenty-five, while in the American division, Alex McKinnon, sturdy right wing of the Chicago Blackhawks, is second to Shore with twenty-two minutes.

2 Big Ten Football Stars Get Rhodes Scholarships

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—Two Big Ten football players, Fred Hovde of Minnesota and Robert Hickman of Illinois, again have demonstrated that a student can participate in sports and still keep up in his studies. Hovde and Hickman were the only students in the Big Ten to be elected to Rhodes scholarships. Hovde, named unanimously as quarterback of the Big Ten All-Conference team, was one of the best pilots in Minnesota's history.

SHARKEY DEFEATS DE KUH IN BOSTON

Ex-Sailor Heavyweight Triumphs Decisively in His First Bout in 8 Months.

ITALIAN BADLY PUNISHED

Victor Floors His Opponent in Sixth Round, but Italian Staves Off Knockout.

Special to The New York Times.

It was Sharkey's first ring appearance in his home city in two years, and a capacity crowd of 13,000 turned out to see him win. It was his first appearance in any ring in eight months.

Although Sharkey seldom used his right for a hard blow he was leaving his feet as he drove home the lightning left with which he piled up a big margin on points. Eight rounds were clearly Sharkey's and the best that could be said of De Kuh was that he held his opponent even in two. For the rest he was in retreat or covering up, while the ninth and tenth rounds saw Sharkey striving desperately for a knockout. De Kuh, with his 204 pounds, was too stolid, however, even though Sharkey scaled 196¼, a record for him.

Floors De Kuh in Sixth.

Sharkey showed the effects of his long layoff at first, being guilty of frequent misses in the opening rounds, but his left got going in the third and a shoot to the chin sent the big New Yorker down for the count of nine in the sixth round, the only knockdown of the fight.

De Kuh, obviously nervous, assumed the defensive from the first. He seemed at a loss when the first round opened, but a rush by the former sailor aroused him to defensive tactics.

While the bout was far from monotonous, each round startlingly resembled the other with Sharkey carrying the fight all the way. As early as the second round it was evident that De Kuh had all he could do to weather a knockout. Sharkey began with right and left hooks which shook the Italian with the latter on the defense as the bell rang. Sharkey was missing some of his punches but landing more and each of these told on the victim.

De Kuh Clinches Often.

De Kuh frequently clinched to save himself. The round in which he made the best showing was the fifth. Here Sharkey kept up his punching

TAVERN PURSE WON BY SPORTING GRIT

GLACIAL, $24 FOR $2, WINS

Easily Triumphs Over Captain J. S., Favorite—Jockeys Halbert and Leonard Score Doubles.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10.—Sporting Grit, a horse bred by Bud Fisher but owned by F. Harrington, captured the Tavern Purse, feature on a card of claiming and allowance races at Jefferson Park here today. Sporting Grit is by Sporting Blood out of Audacity and is one of the 2-year-olds to come from Fisher's farm, which is expected to send out thoroughbreds with greater frequency from now on due to the expansion carried out recently by Fisher.

Sporting Grit's performances before today were nothing to write back to the farm about, as the colt had won only once since the Saratoga race in which he finished far back of Hiawatha and others. But under 100 pounds and a good ride by Jockey F. Halbert he won easily enough in the Tavern with a length and a half to spare over McGonigle, which got the place by four lengths from Anthony.

The winning ride of Halbert was one of two for him in the course of the afternoon, as he later piloted Miss Meise to victory in a driving finish. Jockey Roger Leonard also scored a double, bringing Miss Paradise and Glacial home in front.

Thistle Coot in Front.

The Tavern was an allowance race for 2 and 3 year olds over the mile route. Half a dozen went to the post, with Sporting Grit one of the less favored horses. After the start, which was good, Thistle Coot showed in front for part of a furlong, but Anthony was being sent along fast by Jockey E. Fator, brother of Laverne, and he got the lead by the time they went past the quarter pole.

Meantime, Sporting Grit was trailing the field, and it was not until the half-mile mark that he began to pick up ground on some of the others. But when he began to come he did so with a rush and dashed past Jim Bean and McGonigle. Anthony was still in the lead, setting the pace, but he began to stop, and Sporting Grit was in front shortly after being straightened out in the stretch. From that point on it was merely a question of staying there, which was not difficult, as McGonigle was best of the others and did not seriously threaten the leader.

Sporting Grit paid $11.60 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels and was clocked in 1:39 1-5 for the mile.

Wins by Half Length.

With Miss Meise, Halbert had a stern task on his hands, for he had to drive hard in the closing stages to get the lion's share of the purse from Sly Polly, which ran into the lead in the stretch and was beaten only half a length at the end.

H. L. Crains owns Miss Meise and although she was fast at the break several others ran ahead of her to the quarter pole. Then Halbert shook up the mare, and away she went to be on the heels of Grand King, which then was setting the pace. Grand King tired and Miss Meise ran into the lead but was headed by Sly Polly and then came on again with a great spurt to win going away in 1:54 1-5 for the mile and a furlong.

Leonard scored his double in the early part of the program, both of his mounts paying fat prices and one, Glacial, paid the longest price of the afternoon. This was $24 for $2.

Glacial won easily by two lengths from Captain J. S., which was only a head before Black Alice. Glacial gave a gallant performance, as she was crowded back shortly after the start and had to come around all the others to win.

Miss Paradise, with Leonard up in the opener, paid $16.40 and just breezed the distance to win by four lengths.

2,271 ENTRIES MADE FOR 9 SARATOGA STAKES

Eastland Farms' $75,000 Yearling Is Among Nominations, Which Surpass 1927 Total.

Two of the yearlings which excited much comment because of the prices they brought at the recent Saratoga sales are entered in stakes to be run by the Saratoga Association, figures concerning which have just been announced. In all 2,271 nominations have been made this season for nine stakes, surpassing last year's total, which was 2,158.

Two of the horses helping to roll up the great total of nominations are the $75,000 colt purchased by the Eastland Farms Syndicate and the $65,000 colt bought by W. T. Waggoner. Both of these now are yearlings and are entered in the United States Hotel, Grand Union, Hopeful and Saratoga Sales Stakes. Charles V. B. Cushman is one of the important figures in the Eastland Farms Syndicate and its yearling, the price of which set a new record, is by Whisk Broom II out of Payment. Waggoner's colt is a Man o' War out of Starlight.

The nominations this year were made by 158 owners, which is a big increase over 1927. Harry Payne Whitney is the leading nominator with 128. Mrs. Payne Whitney has made 117.

United States Hotel	330	299	342
Grand Union Hotel	324	301	333
Spinaway	256	251	258

BRUEN ARRIVES AT MIAMI.

Jockey Club Manager to Prepare for Meeting Opening Jan. 17.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP).—Frank J. Bruen, manager for the Miami Jockey Club, has arrived from Chicago to complete arrangements for the race meeting opening here Jan. 17 and continuing fifty days. He was much encouraged by the attitude of local racing men and pleased as well with entries for rich stakes, which include the $10,000 added Miami Derby in March.

Reigh Count Reaches England; To Be Trained at Newmarket

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The American colt Reigh Count, winner of the Kentucky Derby, arrived in London today, accompanied by Michell, his trainer. The colt will be trained for the Ascot Gold Cup next Summer. Reigh Count will be stabled at Harvey Leader's racing establishment at Newmarket.

'CHASE BODY MOVES FOR UNIFORM JUMPS

Committee on Courses Working to Standardize Fences on New York Tracks.

CRAWFORD TO RIDE AGAIN

By BRYAN FIELD.

A movement is on foot under the direction of the committee on courses of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association to effect the uniformity of fences at all local tracks. One of the first steps taken will concern brush fences. One of the gravest problems for both horse and rider is to distinguish between a "brush through" fence and one that must be jumped clean.

The association recently passed an amendment to the rules designed to correct certain evils principally concerned with fostering the increase in the number of young riders. The new amendment gives ten pounds allowance to maiden riders, seven to those who have not ridden five winners and five pounds to riders until they have ridden nine winners.

Obviously the education of new riders and the uniformity of fences go hand in hand, as owners and trainers are loath to risk a green rider up under many circumstances. The reaction to the allowance rule above mentioned has been very favorable and the efforts of the committee on courses are expected to meet with cooperation from track authorities.

Crawford to Continue Riding.

R. H. (Specs) Crawford, one of the veteran steeplechase jockeys, will not desert the riding ranks for another year at least, it became known yesterday. Offered the position of trainer and manager for a well-known member of the Eastern Horse Club, Crawford declined and will be again galloping horses through the field next Spring.

A. C. Bostwick, the gentleman rider who appears to take more satisfaction from a winning ride than from the victory of a horse bearing his own colors under another jockey, is off for Europe. Bostwick, together with Mr. and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, also pillars of the Hunt Association, are en route to England, where they will make their headquarters at Craven Lodge, Melton Mowbray. They plan to see the important Winter cross-country events, and Bostwick will ride in many of the events for amateurs.

Austin H. Nibiack, midwest representative of the hunts committee, is also en route to Europe and will stay for the Grand National. Eugene Reynal, who has a country place near Millbrook, means to have a starter in the Grand National.

Healey Training Large String.

Big Jim Healey is rapidly becoming the trainer of one of the greatest strings of steeplechasers in the East. Healey has now under his care the steeplechasers of A. C. Bostwick, the Idle Hour Stock Farm, the Loma Stable, Harold Fowler, Francis J. Buchanan, Miss Peggie B. Bailey, H. Teller Archibald and others. He is wintering his string at Benning, the old course of the Washington Jockey Club, where schooling is possible for nearly twelve months of the year.

The infield at Aqueduct is being very well nourished and cared for, and President Hyde is taking steps to make the course more beautiful and better proportioned next Spring than it has been in the past.

Jockey H. Jeffcot, who was hurt while schooling a horse at Saratoga last Summer, is almost ready for the saddle. After a long session in the hospital at Saratoga and another at Baltimore, Jeffcot is about ready to resume his duties with the Brookmeade Stable.

112TH F. A. TRIO WINS.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 10.—Brilliant playing in the final period enabled the 112th Field Artillery polo team to score a 11 to 7 victory over Fort Ethan Allen of Vermont here tonight. Going into the last period separated by the narrow margin of one goal, the two teams engaged in one of the fastest periods ever seen here.

The line-up:

COAST OUTBOARDS WIN AT ELSINORE

Claim New World Marks in Six Classes Captured in National Midwinter Races.

ELSINORE, Cal., Dec. 10 (AP).—Western outboard motor boat racers, victorious over Eastern invaders, today claimed six new world's records as a result of winning the national speed boat midwinter races at Lake Elsinore yesterday.

The new records claimed are:

Class B, amateur, won by Kneeland Jenkins's Cutie of San Diego at 33.58 miles per hour, over one-mile course.

Class B, one-mile free-for-all, same winner at 33.03 miles per hour.

Class C, amateur, one mile, won by David Mackay's Flying Scotchman, Lake Elsinore, at 36.31 miles per hour.

Class C, free-for-all, five miles, won by Floyd Pierce's Bonnie Lass of Lake Elsinore at 37.58 miles per hour.

Class D, free-for-all, ten miles, won by H. G. Ferguson's Blue Streak of Long Beach, Cal., at 37.88 miles per hour.

Class B, free-for-all, two and one-half miles, won by Homer Blair's Little Miss Catalina of Catalina Island, 31.37 miles per hour.

Southern California's foremost woman outboard racer, 17-year-old Loretta Turnbull of Monrovia, completed California's victory by taking the seven-and-one-half-mile women's race from Miss Henschal at 35.92 miles an hour. She outdistanced the New York national women's champion in the first four miles, after which the motor of Miss Henschal's boat sputtered and died.

Miss Ria Cyrol's Munchener Kindl, which was shipped here from Munich, Germany, for the races, got through but three heats, taking last place in each. The record-holding Class B boat, Eldon Travis's Spirit of Peoria of Peoria, Ill., finished third in the Class C race, won by Bonnie Lass. The Miss Carolina of Wilmington, N. C., turned turtle and failed to compete.

Daly Triumphs With Cue.

Richard Daly defeated Arthur Church 100 to 80 in an Eastern States pocket billiard championship tournament match at Kreuter's Billiard Academy last night. The game lasted 20 innings, and the high runs were 23 for Daly against 28 for Church.

LONG ISLAND BOATS TO RACE IN BERMUDA

Owners of Interclub Sloops Decide to Send Four Representatives.

The owners of the Sound Interclub class sloops decided at a meeting at the New York Yacht Club last night to send four boats to Bermuda to race against the Royal Bermuda Yacht Club's undersized boats next March.

The Bermuda Yacht Club defeated the Sound boats on Long Island Sound last September, coming from behind to score a close victory. The Royal Yacht Club was represented by the Atlantis, owned by E. H. and K. F. Trimmingham; Sea Witch, owned by Lloyd Jones; Flirt, owned by O. and A. Darrell, and Starling, owned by J. A. Fearman.

It was the first victory in three attempts for the Bermudians. The closeness of the contest, which ended with the visitors winning by 72½ to 70½, attracted widespread interest, and the largest spectator fleet of the season was on hand to witness the final event. The Sound sloops to take part in the races were the Aileen, owned by Cornelius Shields; Bandit, owned by Sam Wetherill; Blue Streak, owned by Ralph Manny, and Wee Betty, owned by G. M. L. LaBranche.

Nyack Bowlers Triumph.

The Nyack Roofing Company's bowling team strengthened its hold on first place in the American National League bowling tournament by making a clean sweep of its match with Phil Spinella's Borough Hall Five at Thum's last night. The scores were 952, 958 and 983 for the winners against 819, 909 and 891 for their opponents.

Edwards Billiard Winner.

Elvin Edwards defeated Henri Job 300 to 47 in a 18.2 balkline billiard tournament match at the Hoppe Academy last night. The game lasted 23 innings and the high runs were 82 for the winner and 11 for the loser.

BIKE RIDERS PAID; $75,000 IS DIVIDED

SPENCER TO GO ON STAGE

His Partner Refuses Vaudeville Offer and Will Sail for Italy Tonight—Others Depart.

The thirty riders who took part in the forty-fifth international six-day bicycle race which ended in Madison Square Garden Saturday night assembled at Manager John Chapman's office at the Garden yesterday and received their guarantees, bonuses and prize money.

Although no official statement as to the total receipts was announced, Chapman declared that $75,000 in contract and prize money was distributed among the riders, with the winning combination of Freddie Spencer and Franco Georgetti getting the largest share.

Spencer has accepted a contract to go into vaudeville and will begin work immediately, but his little Italian partner refused the offer in order to return to Italy to visit relatives. He will sail with his wife and infant daughter on the Roma tonight.

Reggie McNamara, the veteran who on thirteen different occasions has gained the premier honors in six-day races and who has been racing here since he arrived from Australia in 1913, also will go into vaudeville. Still another who will be seen over the footlights is Jimmy Walthour, the 18-year-old star who teamed with Franz Deulberg and finished fourth in the grind.

Jean Cugnot, the French star who made his début here last week and who rode impressively until he was injured in a spill on Saturday morning and was forced to retire; his partner, Armand Blanchonet; the veteran Maurice Brocco and Gerard Debaets, who amused the crowd with his clowning antics, sailed last night on the Deutschland. Others on the same boat were Klass Van Nek, the Hollander who teamed with McNamara to take third place; Deulberg, Otto Petri and the French Red Devils, Alfred Letournier and Paul Brocardo, who placed second, one lap behind the winners.

PRINCETON GRANTS 85 SPORT INSIGNIA

Major Football Letters Are Awarded to 25 Players and Two Managers.

FIVE GET THEM THIRD YEAR

Junior Varsity and Class Football Men and Title Golf Teams Cited —Strubing Wins Sixth "P."

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10.—Eighty-five Princeton athletic insignia were awarded by the undergraduate athletic committee today to members of the varsity, junior varsity and class championship football teams and championship varsity and freshman golf teams. Seventy-two awards were for football.

Twenty-seven varsity football letters were awarded, two to managers. Twelve of the twenty-five letter-winning players will be lost by graduation, but eleven men, including six sophomores, received their varsity letters for the first time.

The men who are graduating include Mike Miles, Jack Norman, Chuck Howe, Newt Lawler, Johnny Stinson, Graham Jones, Phil Strubing, Joe Caldwell, Coop Benedict, Max Morrison, Jack Requardt and Dave Taylor. Captain Howe, Lawler, Stinson, Miles and Requardt have won their varsity football letters for three years.

Two men, Caldwell and Taylor, got letters because of their work on the varsity for three years, although Caldwell was twice lost to the first team by injuries. The other twenty-three players qualified by playing either in the Yale game or in any two of the major clashes with Navy, Cornell and Ohio State. Strubing received his sixth major sport insignia, having won his letter in hockey and baseball as well as football for the past two seasons.

Twenty-four members of the junior varsity eleven which defeated the Yale reserves won "aPa" insignia. This is the first time the junior varsity players have been honored in this fashion.

Straight "1932" numerals were awarded to twenty-one members of the freshman class eleven which defeated Yale's championship class team. The championship minor sport "P" was awarded to six players and the manager of the varsity golf team, while "1931" numerals went to six members of the championship freshman squad.

The awards follow:

AMERICANS SCORE ABROAD.

Gilmore and Wright Win in Squash Racquets Title Play.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The amateur squash racquets championships began at the Bath Club today. R. W. Gilmore, an American, scoring an easy victory over C. R. L. Gardner. The entrance of the American team added interest to the championship.

S. S. Wright of the American team and one of the favorites for last year's championship, defeated H. F. Bagnall, 9-1, 9-0, 9-7.

Soccer Amateurs and Pros Can't Play Together in Canada

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union has decided that soccer amateurs and professionals cannot be allowed to play together. A motion to add soccer to cricket, golf, horseshoes and quoits, in which such play is permitted, was defeated after considerable discussion.

The barring of amateurs from playing with pros creates an unusual situation in soccer, for in the United States and all other countries pros and amateurs frequently play on the same club.

ALL-EASTERN TEAM IS LISTED BY KERR

Eleven Captains Appear on Roster of 21, With One Player Yet to Be Named by Hanley.

LEAVE CHICAGO ON DEC. 15

W. and J. Coach Departs Thursday to Confer With Hanley on Game Dec. 29 at San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 11.—When Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern University selects one more player, the entire squads of stars comprising the All-Eastern football team to play an All-Western outfit in a Shriners' Hospital benefit game at San Francisco on Dec. 29 will be completed.

Coach Andy Kerr of Washington and Jefferson, associated with Hanley in the corralling of the Eastern team, announced today that Hanley had submitted the names of ten of the eleven men he will designate, and had only one more to choose.

Kerr completed his selection of eleven men from the East some days ago. Hanley is expected to make his final choice in a day or two, as the Eastern squad leaves Chicago next Saturday for the Coast.

All Are Seniors.

The All-Eastern team will be one of the most colorful ever chosen from the Eastern area for a game on the Coast. Of the twenty-one men now in the fold, eleven are varsity captains of the recent season, six of them leaders of big elevens. All are seniors, through with college competition, giving assurance that the team will be made entirely of seasoned players.

The team captains follow: Raskowski, Ohio State; Nowak, Illinois; Bennett, Indiana; Holmer, Northwestern; Wagner, Wisconsin; Gibonson, Minnesota; Howell, Nebraska, Fox, Pitt; Guest, Lafayette; Harpster, Carnegie Tech and Aschman, Washington and Jefferson. There is a possibility that the final selection to be made by Hanley also will be a captain.

Coach Kerr today expressed satisfaction with the calibre of the team which will represent the East in the California game. He believes it will be the best squad that has ever gone from this sector to the Coast for the annual benefit contest and he hopes to avenge last year's defeat. Kerr will leave here Thursday night ahead of the Eastern players, as he desires to confer with Hanley at Northwestern on plans for the game before the stars assemble. Aschman of Washington and Jefferson, Harpster of Carnegie Tech and Fox and Getto of Pitt will leave together on Friday night, probably being joined in Pittsburgh by other players from points farther east.

Roster of Players.

The complete roster of twenty-one players announced by Kerr tonight follows:

Ends—Barabee, New York University; Delp, Penn State; Hayeraft, Minnesota.

Quarterback—Harpster, Carnegie Tech; Weston, Boston College.

Fullbacks—Guest, Lafayette; Holmer, Northwestern; Howell, Nebraska.

LASSMAN IS IMPROVING.

Hospital Dispels Rumor N. Y. U. Star Is in Serious Condition.

Renewed rumors in New York yesterday that Al Lassman, captain and tackle of the New York University football team, was in a serious condition as a result of injuries in the game against Carnegie Tech on Nov. 24, were dispelled last night by the authorities at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, where the football star is resting.

THE NEW YORK TIMES communicated with the hospital by telephone and was informed that the Violet leader was steadily improving. There were no signs to indicate that Lassman was in any present danger, and, although no word was forthcoming regarding when the football captain would be released, the outlook for his complete early recovery was most optimistic.

The hospital authorities were emphatic in stating that the adverse rumors were without foundation.

C. C. N. Y. BEGINS 2 SHOOTS.

Riflemen Start Matches With Columbia and Syracuse Teams.

The varsity rifle team at City College yesterday started shooting its matches with Columbia University and Syracuse University, scheduled for this week. The two dual matches, which are being shot in kneeling, prone, standing and off-hand positions, will be completed by the end of the week. That with Syracuse is a telegraphic match. The Columbia results will be exchanged through the mails with the Lions.

Both Columbia and Syracuse are members of the Eastern Intercollegiate Rifle League, of which C. C. N. Y. is the defending champion, and the Orange and the Blue and White will meet the Lavender in league contests later in the Winter. Results of the Johns Hopkins and New York Stock Exchange matches held last week by C. C. N. Y. have not as yet been received by the Lavender manager.

Sports of the Times

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

(Pinch hitting for John Kieran.)

THE angular form of William Tatem Tilden 2d reappears on the lawn tennis scene. By this time there must be members of the various tennis committees whose slumbers are regularly disturbed by the actor, author and tennis player. Accused of about everything possible, the Philadelphian has never been convicted of dullness. Even now, with some of the razor edge gone from the rapier which has been his racket, there will be no Tilden dullness while linemen remain to be glared at or there are committeemen left to hold meetings.

These Tilden meetings are always held behind closed doors. The visiting pressmen sit in an antechamber and draw pictures on blank sheets of copy paper while the low rumble of voices comes through the closed door. There was that Tilden meeting of the past season when the committeemen disappeared during daylight, to return to a waiting world after midnight and announce a "unanimous decision." No, there is never dullness where Tilden is concerned.

Reports of this latest Tilden meeting say that the matter of his application for reinstatement as an amateur came up at the close of the meeting and aroused "a short period of discussion." There is the vision of Committeeman No. 1 glancing at his watch and mumbling something about a dinner engagement. Committeeman No. 2 immediately suggests adjournment.

Some Unfinished Business.

At this point, Committeeman No. 3 jumps up and says, "How about Tilden? We can't close without doing something about Tilden." Committeeman No. 1, somewhat testily, "Well, how about him? It seems to me we sent him away last Summer." And No. 3 again, "Yes, but he's back again." With a low moan, the assemblage settles back around the table when Julian Myrick, who wears the "Mons Ribbon" in this war, saves the situation. "How about the Rules Committee?" he suggests. "They ought to do a little of this. We've been doing more than our share." A scraping of chairs. The door closes hastily behind No. 1, and the others follow at their leisure.

And so the rules committee will seek out Mr. Tilden and ask him if he will declare a truce. When last heard of, Tilden was touring in the sinister black robes of "Dracula." He was doing more than touring, he was trouping through those sections of the countryside somewhat quaintly known as "the sticks," and he was making one night stands. Perhaps the amateur rules committee will need a guide to find him.

Stopping off in Louisville, Tilden had nothing to say, but it is reasonable to expect that he will be reinstated at the February meeting. That is, he will be, if he still feels as he said he felt at the time of his removal from the Davis Cup team. He disclaimed any and all intention of rule violation at that time.

The End of a Dynasty.

Even though Tilden does come back to amateur competition, it is pretty obvious that his days as ruler are ended. The old dynasty of the Bills, Little Bill Johnston and Big Bill, are definitely at an end. The little Californian has practically dropped out of competition. Tilden, in conversation with friends, has said that he will not want to play again on Davis Cup teams. If he plays, very probably, he will confine himself to individual championships. Here he may more than hold his own for several years yet in this country. With the tow-headed Vincent Richards on the other side of the fence, it is difficult to see where an American player stands with whom Tilden would not have at least an even chance. The difficulty here lies in inducing foreigners to remain at home. The wonders of modern travel have some drawbacks to them.

At his crest, Tilden was widely hailed as doing more for tennis by far than tennis was doing for him. He was, they said, creating a vast interest in the game, and it seemed that he always had one or two protégés standing alongside him, dwarfed by his long frame, but hailed as most promising. Tilden is gone. Where are the players to take his place?

The Youths of Yesteryear.

A rising chorus immediately demands, "What do you expect? Do you see any Bob Joneses playing golf around the landscape? Is baseball full of Babe Ruths? Has any violinmaker equaled Stradivari? Where is the singer to take the place of Caruso? Genius, you know, happens now and again."

All of which is hastily and fully admitted. And it is even possible that the near future will see the realization of Tilden's efforts, for Junior Coen, one of the most famous of the protégés, was heard from rather prominently during the past season. Perhaps Sandy Weiner will be doing things when he is finished at Yale. There was a different glimpse of him last month, running thirty yards through the Harvard scrub line, wearing proudly the white shirt of a Yale football scrub and helping to win that game.

There is always, it seems, a lapse at the end of a dynasty in tennis. Curiously, the game has run in pairs. The brothers Doherty ruled for England; Brookes and Tony Wilding for Australia before the latter was killed in France, later Gerald Patterson and the tall Anderson threatened for Australia when Tilden and Johnston were ruling for the United States. The French are showing a disturbing tendency to increase the number at the top. Lacoste and Borotra started things, but Cochet has certainly come along, and there are apparently others.

At the end of all these reigns there has been a period of lesser ability in the country affected. It is inevitable that those at the top receive the most attention and the greater opportunity for improvement. It would be nice to find a way of giving the same opportunity to the right ones among the thousands in the ranks. The trouble is in picking out the right ones. Tilden tried more than any of his predecessors, and perhaps he guessed rightly.

FORDHAM TO AWARD MAJOR 'F' TO 15

Fourteen football players of the Fordham University team, nine of them sophomores, and the team manager will receive the major "F," it was announced yesterday after a meeting of the Fordham Athletic Association. Tomorrow the fifteen will elect a captain for next season.

Only half of the players designated as letter winners earned the awards, while the others received them by means of recommendation on the part of Major Frank Cavanaugh, Maroon coach. Under the system employed at Fordham, participation in a definite number of periods of the important games is necessary to win the insignia. The seven actual winners were not distinguished from the others in the list of names.

The five upper-classman players who won letters are Captain John Smith, Acting Captain Howard J. Beloin, Roger Scully, Albert F. Politis and Henry Kloppenberg. Bernard J. Pisani was the team manager.

FLORIDA'S 336 POINTS LED NATION IN SCORING

Made 237 in Southern Conference to Alabama's 187 and Georgia Tech's 168.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 10 (AP).—The University of Florida, although conquered in the finale of the football season by Tennessee, marched away with the highest scoring figure of any team of the nation. Coach Charlie Bachman's outfit turned in 336 points in nine games.

The Gainesville team also led the Southern Conference in scoring strictly within the organization, running up 237 points to 187 for Alabama and 168 for Georgia Tech.

The Gators made their scoring triumph thorough. Fifty-one times the Gainesville eleven sent one of their number across the enemy's goal line. Within the Conference, the Gators scored 36 touchdowns against 28 for Alabama.

Out of a total of a bare half dozen field goals registered in the Conference, Harner of V. M. I. reaped half of them.

P. M. C. ELECTS LAYER.

Fullback to Lead 1929 Eleven—Hard Schedule Is Listed.

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 10 (AP).—Walter Layer, star fullback, was elected captain of the Pennsylvania Military College 1929 football team at a meeting of the letter men today. Because of injuries suffered in the Juniata contest, Layer was on the sidelines nearly all of the season.

P. M. C.'s schedule for next year is one of the hardest ever arranged for the institution. The season will open Oct. 5 with Lehigh.

Other games follow:

Oct. 12, at St. Joseph's College; 19, Gettysburg; 26, University of Baltimore.

Nov. 2, Franklin and Marshall; 9, Dickinson; 16, University of Delaware; 23, Susquehanna; 28, St. John's College of Annapolis, Md.

Fort Wayne Five Tops Trenton.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 10 (AP).—Fort Wayne defeated Trenton in an American League basketball game tonight, 23 to 12. Trenton scored only one point in the second half.

MET. ELEVENS WANT TO TRY WARNER PLAN

Brooklyn C. C. and Long Island U. Coaches Seek to Count First Downs as Points in 1929 Game.

Glenn Warner's recent suggestion to the effect that scoring value be given the first down, as well as touchdowns and field goals, may be experimented with in New York next year if plans made by two local coaches materialize.

Lou Oshins, coach of the Brooklyn City College eleven, and Herb Raubenheimer, Long Island University football mentor, have agreed to play their annual game in the Metropolitan Collegiate Conference on Thanksgiving Day, 1929, under the novel rule submitted by Warner.

Oshins and Raubenheimer will make a request of the Metropolitan Collegiate officials for permission to conduct their game thus when the officials meet several months hence.

According to the plan suggested by Warner, the first down would assume greater importance than ever before. For every first down made, one point would be awarded to the team carrying the ball. The touchdown would still retain its value of six points, but the try for the point after touchdown would be abolished.

Warner also takes into consideration the numerous tie outcomes of football games, and, in his plan, takes steps to reduce such results to a minimum. In the event that teams are tied after the regulation time period has elapsed, an extra period of five minutes would be played.

Oshins is hopeful that the experiment will take place. He essayed the Warner system on the last day of Brooklyn City College's practice between two teams of his own players, and declared that he was pleased with the result.

WIGGIN'S DISMISSAL PROTESTED AT BATES

Student Petitions Also Ask That Football Coach Be Retained for Other Sports.

LEWISTON, Me., Dec. 10 (AP).—Interest became so intense in the discharge of Carleton Wiggin as head coach of football at Bates College that the student body council today permitted the circulation among the students of petitions to the faculty "expressing disapproval of the action recently taken by the athletic authorities in dismissing" Wiggin, who also has been coaching the baseball and hockey teams.

The petitions also expressed the belief that "his ability as an instructor and the excellence of his record as a coach of baseball and hockey merit his retention in that capacity." The petitions closed with the statement: "We also deplore the existence of any athletic policy which would permit such an unfair action and advocate that it be abandoned."

In announcing the dismissal of Wiggin the athletic authorities announced that Bates's policy of not having seasonal coaches made it difficult to retain him for baseball and hockey and provide a special coach for football.

COLUMBIA FIVE TO PLAY.

Will Open Its Season Tonight Against Alumni Team.

Columbia's varsity basketball team opens its season at 8:30 o'clock tonight when it meets the alumni in the Columbia gymnasium. Coach Dan Meenan will send a youthful quintet against the graduates, but it is expected to be the best since the championship team of three years ago.

The probable line-up:

Joy	R. F.	Rothenfeld
Gregory	C.	Mannheim
Tye	L. G.	Madden
Urbach	R. G.	Berth

DARTMOUTH PLANS TO ENLARGE GYM

Athletic Council Approves Proposal for Construction of New Wing to Cost $250,000.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Dartmouth Athletic Council voted favorably today on a report from the department of physical education suggesting the addition of another wing on the alumni gymnasium. Harry R. Heneage, supervisor of athletics, estimated that the new structure would cost about $250,000. The proposed addition would be used for squash, handball, wrestling, boxing and fencing.

In making the suggestion to the council Sid Hazelton, chairman of the department of physical education, said that his work was being retarded by inadequate equipment and lack of space.

1929 FOOTBALL DATES FIXED BY GEORGETOWN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Georgetown University football schedule for 1929, announced today, closes with successive games against New York University, Navy, West Virginia and Detroit. It still has an open date on Oct. 12, due to the fact that negotiations with Pittsburgh, which seemed a certainty, fell through.

Jim Mooney of Chicago, star tackle, today was elected captain of the team for next season.

The schedule:

Sept. 28, Mount St. Mary's.
Oct. 5, Western Maryland; 12, open; 19, West Virginia Wesleyan; 26, Lebanon Valley.
Nov. 2, New York University at New York; 9, Navy at Annapolis; 16, West Virginia; 28, Detroit at Detroit.

WATKINS PICKED AS COACH.

Succeeds Ballantine as Colgate's Hockey Mentor.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 10.—The appointment of Raymond A. Watkins as Colgate's varsity hockey coach was announced here today. Watkins, also director of freshman athletics, succeeds Lieut. Col. James Ballantine and has already begun drilling a squad of thirty-eight.

With seven veterans of the team, which won half of its games last year, again available, Colgate anticipates a good season. The veterans are Captain Al Chambers, Robert Hofheins, Frank Howe, James Nelson, James Visel, Jack Shelder and Warren Barnes.

LLOYD JOINS NAVY FIVE.

Spring Among Other Football Men to Report for Basketball.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10.—The Navy basketball squad received important accessions this afternoon through the reporting of a number of football men, including Lloyd, Spring, Joe Bauer and Bowstrom.

Lloyd, a guard last season, was tried for the first time at centre this afternoon. He is 6 feet 2 inches in height and very active. A tentative first team has Captain Miller and Farrin at the forwards, Lloyd at centre and Bernet and Lincoln at the guards.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Frank Lafforgue's Yale Club Class C squash tennis team continued to win at the expense of the Apawamis Club last night and remains at the top of the metropolitan league standing with seven victories and no defeats. Six matches were played on the Yale courts, of which the Elis captured five. They won another by default, making the score 6 to 1.

The Harvard and Columbia University Club teams, which are pressing Yale closely, continued in a tie for second place, while Princeton was dropping into a tie for fourth with the City Athletic Club and the Elizabeth Town and Country Club.

Johnny Jacobs's Crimson protégés made a clean sweep over the visiting Short Hills Club, winning every match in two games.

Columbia triumphed at the Fraternity Club by the narrow margin of 4 to 3 after dropping the three matches at the top of the line-up. Princeton lost at the Park Avenue Squash Club by the same score, and the Elizabeth team came through by a similar margin at the Heights Casino in Brooklyn, winning one of the matches by default.

The City A. C., which has been going along in impressive fashion, defeated the New York A. C. on the former's courts, 5 to 2, and in the other match last night the Shelton Club won its first victory of the season, prevailing on its own courts over the Crescent A. C., 5 to 2.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—The Atlantic Coast disturbance has moved slowly northeastward to eastern Nova Scotia. Pressure continues low over western Canada and Alaska, and a disturbance is developing over the Southern Plateau region. There is a slight disturbance also on the south Texas coast. Pressure is high over the middle Appalachian region and the South Atlantic States. During the past twenty-four hours there have been snows in the New England States and the Canadian Maritime Provinces and rains in Texas, the Pacific States and the Northern Plateau region.

Temperature changes have been unimportant. The indications are for fair weather on Tuesday, except that rain will begin in the western portion of the East Gulf States and along the Gulf Coast and spread eastward and northward over the Ohio valley, the East Gulf States and the western portions of the South Atlantic States Wednesday. The temperature will rise slowly over the entire district on both Tuesday and Wednesday, except that it will be colder Wednesday in the lower Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours, from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M. and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

United States Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—In the Supreme Court of the United States today the following proceedings were had:

32—Security Mortgage Co., petr., v. Charles A. Powers, trustee in bankruptcy for Florida Furniture Corporation, bankrupt—On writ of certiorari to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decree reversed with costs, and the cause remanded to the District Court for the Northern District of Georgia for further proceedings in conformity to the opinion of this court. Opinion by Justice Brandeis. Unanimous.

41—Northern Coal and Dock Company and General Accident, Fire and Life Assurance Corporation, Ltd., of Perth, Scotland.—On writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of Wisconsin. Judgment reversed with costs, and the cause remanded to said Supreme Court for further proceedings not inconsistent with the opinion of this court. Opinion by Justice McReynolds. Concurring opinions by Justice Stone in which Justices Holmes and Brandeis concur.

73—Texas and Pacific Railway Company, petr., v. Ernest Caldine, an administrator of the goods, chattels and credits of Harold E. Caldine, deceased. On writ of cert. to the Court of Appeals of New York. Judgment reversed with costs, and the cause remanded to the said Court of Appeals for further proceedings not inconsistent with the opinion of the court. Opinion by Justice Holmes. Unanimous.

490—Hart Refineries, applt., v. the State of Montana—Appeal from the Supreme Court of Montana. Per curiam: On examination of the statement intended to show jurisdiction of this appeal the court finds that the claim of a Federal question upon which the appeal is based is frivolous and the appeal is dismissed.

513—The United States, applt., v. American Live Stock Commission Company, Lewis Biscefont, &c., et al.—In this case the court finds that probable jurisdiction has been shown.

85—Same v. G. T. Elliott, Inc., and

86—Same v. L. M. Newcomb—In error to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia. Per curiam: The writs of error are dismissed for want of a substantial Federal question.

352—Abraham Braunstein, pltf. in error and applt., v. the People of the State of New York on the complaint of Gertrude E. McCarthy—On writ of error to and appeal from the Court of Appeals of New York. Per curiam: The writ of error is dismissed for want of a properly presented Federal question.

87—Albert Barbee Wick, Schuyler J. Gray and Dora Gray, pltfs. in error, v. the Supreme Court of Washington in and for the County of Chelan et al.—In error to the Supreme Court of Washington. Per curiam: The writ of error is dismissed because the judgment sought to be reviewed is not final, however it may be regarded in State procedure.

93—Seaboard Air Line Railway Company, petr., v. J. E. Johnson.—On writ of cert. to the Supreme Court of Alabama. Per curiam: The court finds that the writ of cert. heretofore issued in this case was improvidently granted, and it is dismissed.

95—The New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co., petr., v. Mary Grantell.—On writ of cert. to the Court of Appeals of Ohio, 8th judicial district. Per curiam: The court finds that the writ of cert. heretofore issued in this case was improvidently granted, and it is dismiss

On resuming business yesterday morning, after last week's spectacular collapse had swept down values of active speculative shares 40 to 124 points in three or four business days, the stock market acted as markets usually act under such circumstances. After so sudden and terrific a readjustment, and especially if a holiday intervenes to allay the actual sense of panic, abrupt recovery in prices follows. For the most part, it is apt to be made up of buying orders from fortunate speculators for the fall, whose paper profits after such a break are so large as to induce the bidding-up of prices to get the necessary stocks.

Sometimes the speculators for the rise are so badly hurt or so completely panic-stricken that the stocks which they throw over break the market again, and for a time, around midday yesterday, this seemed to be happening. But that is not apt to continue in the face of the "bear repurchases." Even unlucky adventurers who mean to sell out and nurse their wounds in private will wait as long as they dare, when an automatic buying force is in the market. It is when the "short account" has ceased its purchases that the second test of the market usually comes. In yesterday's case, moreover, the slaughter of the innocents had been so merciless on Saturday and Friday that the most dangerously weak accounts of brokers' customers had already been closed out. Stocks opened higher as a rule; in the midday break a few of them were carried down 20 to 30 points again; but they struggled up more or less painfully in the later hours, and the closing, though irregular, showed respectable net advances.

Nothing is proved by such a market, however, regarding the future course of values. There have been occasions when this first recovery from the lowest has been followed by another though more deliberate fall in prices. There have been others (as was the case even last June) when a pause of reasonably prolonged inaction follows. The one thing that never happens, though it is always prophesied by the mercurial spirits of professional Wall Street, is immediate resumption of the infatuated rise of prices after so prostrating a body-blow.

It will have to be determined how far-reaching the "outside public's" disillusion will prove to be, now that its economic mirage has evaporated. Something will depend on the measure of success which the rich speculative ringleaders have had in "unloading" on their outside following while predicting an unlimited further rise. The truth in these regards comes to light only gradually. The certainties of such a moment are that the craze has been forcibly abated and that the gravity of the danger which existed a week ago is lessened. For a while, at any rate, Wall Street will talk sense about the financial situation; we are likely even to hear some stern old-fashioned moralizing from quarters where discreet silence has lately been the rule.

One visible effect of the puncturing of the bubble was the fall in yesterday's call-money rate to 7 per cent, as against the 12 per cent rate of Thursday. This does not mean easy money over the year-end. The breakdown of last Spring's speculation occurred in the middle of June, yet money went to 10 per cent on July 2, and yesterday's time-money rate held very firm at the year's highest figure. A good deal of the strain has necessarily relaxed, however, and there will be some interested scrutiny of next Thursday's brokers' loan reports. Last June the account was reduced $404,000,000 in three weeks, but it has been expanded a thousand million dollars since that very imperfect readjustment. There was nothing in yesterday's general news to influence prices and nobody looked for it. A small decrease in the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders was reported for November, whereas that month has ended with a substantial increase in every year since 1923. But the course of orders on the books has not of late been a sure indication of the trade's tendencies.

STOCK SPLIT APPROVED BY GENERAL MOTORS

Holders Ratify Issue of 75,000,000 Shares at $10 Par for Present 30,000,000 at $25.

Stockholders of the General Motors Corporation at a special meeting at Wilmington, Del., yesterday, ratified the directors' proposal to authorize an issue of 75,000,000 shares of $10 par common stock in place of the 30,000,000 shares of $25 par common previously authorized.

Carrying out the directors' recommendation of a split-up on the basis of two and a half shares of new $10 par stock for each share of the old $25 par stock, the stockholders authorized the issuance of 43,500,000 shares of the new stock. This will replace the 17,400,000 shares of old stock outstanding. The corporation will have remaining 31,500,000 shares authorized but unissued.

Exchange of the old certificates for the new will be made on and after Jan. 7. The new stock is being traded in on the New York Stock Exchange on a "when issued" basis. The Stock Exchange authorities had not decided yesterday when the old stock would come off the list.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

With call money displaying an easier tone, most active issues rallied briskly on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and the market community was able to take a more cheerful view of the situation. The rally was not accomplished without a determined struggle between the opposing factions. Interests committed to the Fall held the advantage yesterday morning, but around noon a brisk buying movement got under way that turned the market sharply about. The main body of stocks made fair-sized recovery in the afternoon, closing at or near the best levels of the day. The rally accompanied a decline in the call money rate from 9 to 7 per cent. Brokers were recommending many "bargains" in the Stock Exchange list, and the response to this advice helped along the upturn.

How the Market Opened.

After Saturday's convulsive reaction, the interest of the whole financial community was focused upon the opening of the Stock Market yesterday. Large crowds were gathered wherever there was a ticker. The general list opened higher. For instance, General Motors was 4½ points above Saturday's close; Kennecott Copper, 4⅝ points up; Johns-Manville, 5; General Electric, 3; American Smelting, 5; Associated Dry Goods, 3¾; Canadian Pacific, 4; Chrysler, 2½; International Harvester, 23; National Biscuit, 4½; Kolster Radio, 5; Radio, 14; Victor Talking Machine, 7, and Wright Aero, 2.

Radio Again a Sensation.

Radio, which was the outstanding sensation of Saturday's violent break on the Stock Exchange, continued yesterday to swing about in spectacular fashion, requiring an arc of 39 points for its excursions. The stock was strongest at the opening, when it sold between 310 and 314. From the latter price, however, it took a plunge to 275. At its closing price, 305, it showed a net gain on the day of 9 points. As on Saturday the price movements were extremely wide, occasionally ranging as much as 5 points between transactions.

Money Tone More Cheerful.

Although Wall Street was cheered by the decline to 7 per cent. in the call-money rate, with outside accommodation available even lower at the close, a further strengthening in the tone of time money yesterday was noted. Some business in the distant maturities was done at 7¾ per cent and in the nearer dates the demand also appeared to exceed the supply. The business in time money, however, was on a small scale. So far as call money was concerned, the decline was in line with the usual trend at this time of the month, but the fact that normal influences were again prevailing was in itself encouraging. Some tightness is expected later this month, after the Treasury financing has been got out of the way and the preparations for year-end settlements coincide with heavy currency withdrawals. This firmness has to a certain extent been already discounted in Wall Street. One thing on which there is almost unanimous agreement is that there will be a large reduction this week in the total of brokers' loans.

"I Had That Stock When—".

The downward rush of stock prices which began last Thursday, and which was halted, momentarily, at least, yesterday, did not appear to have lessened the crowds in the boardrooms. With current prices for many stocks 20 to 100 points under what they were a week ago, one of the favorite preludes to a long conversation on the market yesterday was, "Why, I had that stock when it was selling up around—." As this particular shoe fitted nearly every trader, the buzz of conversation was hardly as lively as usual. The tendency of the general public never to go short of the market aided in some measure yesterday's improvement. The notion that the higher stock prices stand, the more assured is the prosperity of the country, seemed still to be deeply impressed on the minds of the new generation of traders in Wall Street, but there was apparently no disposition yesterday to argue a blight upon prosperity because of last week's events in Wall Street.

Utility Stocks Also Rally.

Several leading public utility stocks rallied notably in yesterday's trading, and in the group gains of 1 to 6 points were frequent. There was nothing in the news to give specific interest to the advances, although the industry as a whole is shown in a favorable light by the statistical data provided from time to time by governmental and private agencies. Several utilities have also announced extra dividends of varying amount, payable about the first of next year.

Railway Economies.

Why the railway-equipment business is not always thriving was shown to the satisfaction of railroad men yesterday by figures disclosing that in the face of greatly increased traffic the Northern Pacific is using 300 fewer locomotives than it did five years ago. It was pointed out, however, that this did not indicate a decrease in hauling power. On the contrary, the equipment companies have steadily increased the capacity of their locomotives. While filling current needs of the railroads, the equipment companies have therefore in a way cut into their own market.

MONEY.

Monday, Dec. 10, 1928.

With a veritable flood of money at the lending table, while demand was only fair, Stock Exchange call loans experienced their first reaction in more than a week. Renewing at 9 per cent, the rate was cut to 8 at noon, followed by drop to 7, in fourth hour, with the overflow carried to the street, where it loaned at 6½ and 6. Time money on the other hand was a shade firmer, sixty days and six months' lending at 7¾ per cent, and some renewals at 7¾. However, little new money was in sight and trading was light. Business money was unchanged.

The Minnesota 3 mills tax; Pennsylvania and Connecticut 4 mills tax; Maryland 4½ mills tax; California, District of Columbia and Kentucky 5 mills tax; Michigan 5 mills registry tax; Iowa 6 mills tax; and Massachusetts 6% income tax, on interest, will be refundable, upon proper application to Trustee within two months after payment but not later than nine months after any such tax shall become due and payable, to holders resident in those states.

THESE BONDS ARE LISTED UPON THE CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE

Mr. Byron T. Gifford, President of the Company, summarizes his letter, dated December 8, 1928, as follows:

Company The Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware and controls Federal Public Service Corporation through ownership of all its common stock. Through that company's subsidiaries electricity for power and light, gas for commercial, domestic and industrial purposes, water, telephone service, ice or cold storage are supplied in important and prosperous sections of the country. 100 communities, having a combined estimated population of 272,000, located in nine states, are served. The companies serve a total of approximately 26,400 customers. Over 86% of the consolidated net earnings of these subsidiaries, for the 12 months ended October 31, 1928, was derived from the sale of electricity and gas.

Capitalization Giving effect to present financing outstanding capitalization of the Corporation will be as follows:

	Outstanding
6% Secured Convertible Gold Bonds, due December 1, 1943, this issue (closed)	$1,500,000
7% Cumulative preferred stock ($100 par value)	350,000
Class A participating common stock (without par value)	28,000 shs.
Class B common stock (without par value)	60,000 shs.

60,000 shares of the Class A participating common stock will be reserved for conversion of these bonds.

Security These bonds will be a direct obligation of Union Power Corporation, specifically secured by the pledge of the present outstanding common stock of Federal Public Service Corporation. All additional common stock issued by Federal Public Service Corporation will be acquired by the Company and pledged under the Trust Agreement securing these bonds. The Company may not sell the common stock of Federal Public Service Corporation without retiring these bonds. The combined assets of the subsidiaries of Federal Public Service Corporation, based on recent appraisals by independent engineers and the cost of subsequent additions and extensions, are estimated to have a value, after deduction for depreciation of physical property, of approximately $7,500,000.

Earnings Comparative consolidated earnings of the Company and subsidiaries, giving effect to the acquisition of additional stock in one of the subsidiary companies, (excluding non-recurring charges of $69,324 and $60,933 for the twelve months ended October 31, 1927 and 1928, respectively, and interest and dividend requirements on securities to be presently retired, funds for which have been deposited for this specific purpose, were as follows:

For twelve months ended October 31—	1927	1928
Gross earnings, including other income	$1,245,146	$1,380,435
Operating expenses, maintenance and taxes (before income taxes and depreciation) and earnings applicable to interests of minority stockholders	677,906	775,382
Net earnings	$ 567,240	$ 605,053
Annual interest requirement on $4,400,000 First Lien Gold Bonds, 6% Series of 1927 and annual dividend requirement on $1,500,000 6½% cumulative preferred stock of Federal Public Service Corporation		361,500
Balance		$ 243,553
Annual interest requirement on $1,500,000 6% Secured Convertible Gold Bonds, due December 1, 1943 (this issue)		$ 90,000

The above balance of earnings for the twelve months ended October 31, 1928, of $243,553 was in excess of 2.70 times the annual interest requirement of $90,000 on $1,500,000 6% Secured Convertible Gold Bonds of the Company presently to be outstanding.

Purpose of Issue The proceeds from the sale of this issue of bonds will provide funds for additional investment in Federal Public Service Corporation, and for other corporate purposes.

Conversion Privilege These bonds may, at the option of the holder, be converted prior to maturity into Class A Participating Common Stock, as constituted at the time of conversion, on the basis of four shares of the present class of Class A Participating Common Stock, which is without par value, for each $100, principal amount, of bonds, with adjustment of accrued interest. Any bonds which may be called for redemption before maturity shall be convertible up to thirty days prior to the redemption date.

Management The management of the Company is in the hands of men with long experience in the direction and operation of public utility properties.

We offer these Bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to approval of our Counsel.

BOND FLOTATIONS.

Public Utility, Real Estate and Other Securities to Be Placed on Market.

An issue of $5,000,000 Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation collateral trust 5 per cent bonds, due on Nov. 1, 1948, will be placed on the market today at 99 and interest by a banking group consisting of G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Inc.; Janney & Co.; Graham, Parsons & Co.; Coffin & Burr, Inc., and Parsly Brothers & Co. The holder of each $1,000 bond will have the right to purchase, after Nov. 1, 1929, fifteen shares of common stock of the company at prices ranging from $16 a share to $25 a share on April 30, 1934, when the privilege will expire. The company, organized under the laws of Delaware, will assist established public utility companies in readjusting their capital structures and in refunding operations.

Smith-Young Tower Building.

Offering of a new issue of $1,900,000 Smith-Young Tower Building (San Antonio, Texas) first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, maturing serially from 1931 to 1939, will be made today at prices ranging from 100 to 101. The issue will be marketed by the Greenebaum Sons Securities Corporation. It is secured by a thirty-one story mercantile and office building which, when completed, will be the highest building in Texas. The bonds will be an obligation of Smith Brothers Properties, Inc., owner of the property.

Mortgage and Title Company.

A new issue of $750,000 Maryland Mortgage and National Title Company, twenty-year convertible 5½ per cent debentures, series A, will be offered today at 99½ and interest, to yield about 5.50 per cent. The banking group comprises Robert Garrett & Sons and Gillet & Co. of Baltimore and MacColl, Fraser & Wheeler of Providence, R. I. The borrowing corporation, successor to the Maryland Mortgage Company, owns all the outstanding capital stocks of the Mortgage Company of Maryland, Inc.; the Baltimore Company and the Washington Consolidated Title Company. The debentures are convertible into common stock of the company after Jan. 1, 1929, at ratios ranging from 2½ shares for each $100 par value of debentures prior to Jan. 1, 1930, to one share after Jan. 1, 1934, and maturity.

Closing of the subscription books on the issue of $10,000,000 City of Antwerp (Belgium) external 5s, offered yesterday, was announced by the bankers, subscriptions having been received in excess of the amount offered.

ADDS $1,000,000 CAPITAL.

Missouri State Life Insurance to Issue 100,000 Shares, With Rights.

The stockholders of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company yesterday approved the proposal of the directors to authorize an increase in the capital stock from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. Hillsman Taylor, president, said that this action was taken to bring capital stock and surplus to a figure proportionate to the amount of business in force as a result of the recent reinsurance of the International Life, which increased Missouri State Life outstanding insurance in force to more than $1,140,000,000.

Subject to the formal approval of the Insurance Commissioner and the Secretary of State of Missouri, the capital will be increased by issuing 100,000 additional shares of the par value of $10 each and the right to purchase such additional shares at $20 a share will accrue to stockholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 13, at the ratio of one share of new stock for each three shares of the old stock owned. Half of the $2,000,000 to be received from the stock increase will be used to increase the capitalization and the balance will be placed in the surplus account.

More Evans Auto Loading Stock.

Stockholders of the Evans Auto Loading Company have voted to increase the authorized common stock from 200,000 to 300,000 shares, to take care of expansion in the battery separator field. Stockholders of record on Dec. 21 may subscribe for 20,000 shares at $40 a share in the ratio of one new share for each ten then held. Their rights will expire on Jan. 15.

$26,200,000 New Securities On Today's Investment List

New offerings of securities totaling $26,200,000 are announced for today by New York banking houses and syndicates. Of this amount $13,275,000 consists of bonds and the remainder of stocks, including both common and preferred shares.

Municipal	$5,625,000
Public utility	5,000,000
Real estate	2,650,000

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Awards and Offerings of New Bonds Issued for Public Works Announced.

Award of an issue of $1,639,000 Bergen County, N. J., public improvement bonds, due serially on Dec. 1, 1929 to 1947, was made yesterday to a syndicate composed of the Bankameric Corporation, A. B. Leach & Co., Inc.; H. L. Allen & Co. and Batchelder, Wack & Co. The winning bid was 100.745 for 4½s, the bankers agreeing to take $1,627,000 of the bonds. The issue will be reoffered today at prices to yield 4.25 to 4.50 per cent.

The second highest bid was 100.69 for 4½s, made by the Peoples Guaranty and Trust Company, with the City National Bank third with 100.63. LIQUID CARBONIC'S OFFER.

Cash Prices Named for Shares of General Carbonic Company.

The Liquid Carbonic Corporation has offered to stockholders of the General Carbonic Company $96 cash a share for preferred stock and not less than $25 cash a share for common stock, in accordance with an agreement made on Dec. 1. The latter company has outstanding $2,474,367 of preferred stock of $100 par value and 23,796 shares of no-par value common stock.

The offer has been accepted by the board of directors of General Carbonic and placed before its stockholders by a committee consisting of John A. Becker, chairman, Charles C. Van Duesen and Henry S. Ludlow. Consummation of the purchase agreement is subject to deposit of not less than 90 per cent of the preferred stock and not less than 66 2-3 per cent of the common stock by Dec. 15. General Carbonic has eight plants. Officials of the Liquid Carbonic say a greatly increased demand for carbonic gas for dry ice and other uses makes it necessary to expand production.

Seeks Outlet for Power.

The Oswegatchie Light and Power Company of Gouverneur, N. Y., has applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to purchase forty-six shares of the Hammond (N. Y.) Light and Power Company at $250 a share, 200 shares of the La Fargeville (N. Y.) Electric Light Company at $175 a share and sixty-two shares of the Rossie Electric and Manufacturing Company for $1,500. It explains that linking its lines with those of the other companies would give it an outlet for its surplus power.

Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation

Collateral Trust 5% Gold Bonds, Series Due November 1, 1948
(With Common Stock Purchase Privilege)

Dated November 1, 1928 — Due November 1, 1948

Principal and semi-annual interest, May 1 and November 1, payable in New York City. Redeemable, at the option of the Corporation, in whole or in part, at any time upon sixty days' published notice, to and including May 1, 1934 at 110; thereafter, to and including May 1, 1941 at 105; thereafter, to and including May 1, 1948 at 103; and thereafter at their principal amount; in each case with accrued interest. Coupon Bonds in interchangeable denominations of $1,000 and $500; registerable as to principal. Interest payable without deduction for any normal Federal income tax not in excess of two per cent per annum. Refund of certain Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Kansas, California and Minnesota taxes not to exceed four mills, Maryland tax not to exceed four and one-half mills, Kentucky, Virginia and District of Columbia taxes not to exceed five mills, Michigan exemption tax not to exceed five mills, and Massachusetts income (or corporation or savings bank) tax not to exceed six per cent, to resident holders upon due application within sixty days after payment, all as will be provided in the Indenture. Central Union Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

The holder of each $1,000 Bond will be entitled, subsequent to November 1, 1929 (or prior thereto with the consent of the Corporation) and subject to previous redemption of the Bond, to purchase 15 shares of Common stock of the Corporation at the following prices: To and including April 30, 1931, $16 per share; thereafter, to and including April 30, 1933, $20 per share; thereafter, to and including April 30, 1934, $25 per share; thereafter the stock purchase privilege will be void.

Business: Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation has been organized, under the laws of the State of Delaware, for the purpose, among others, of assisting established public utility companies in the readjustment of their capital structures and in refunding operations. The Corporation will underwrite, hold and deal in obligations and stocks of corporations owning and operating electric light and power, water and manufactured and/or natural gas properties, including operating subsidiaries of the holding companies named below. In addition, it will have resources with which to underwrite, own and deal in securities, including stocks, of other public utility operating and holding companies. It is estimated that the net earnings applicable to the Common Stock for the calendar year 1929 will be in excess of $250,000, equal to $2.50 per share. It is anticipated that the earnings of the Corporation will warrant the Board of Directors placing the Common Stock on an annual dividend basis of at least $1 per share in 1929.

Federal Water Service Corporation, Peoples Light and Power Corporation and American Natural Gas Corporation, important public utility holding companies, and G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Incorporated, have purchased the outstanding Preferred Stock and made a substantial investment in the Common Stock.

Security: This issue of Collateral Trust 5% Gold Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be the direct obligation of the Corporation, and in addition will be secured by pledge with the Trustee of mortgage bonds and/or other obligations and/or preferred stocks of public utility operating corporations equal to 125% of the principal amount of these Bonds, valuing mortgage bonds and other obligations at their principal amount and preferred stocks at their par value, or if without par value, at the amount payable thereon upon involuntary dissolution, with provisions permitting the substitution of cash or its equivalent at the rate of 110% in lieu of other collateral at the rate of 125%, all as will be more specifically set forth in the Indenture. At least 60% of the collateral, valued as above, at all times will consist of such mortgage bonds and/or cash or its equivalent.

Management: The Board of Directors of Power, Gas and Water Securities Corporation will include individuals who have an intimate knowledge of the various fields of the public utility industry and the Corporation should be in a position to take advantage of widely diversified investment opportunities, to participate in underwritings and make equity investments of a highly profitable nature. Audited statements of the Corporation's affairs will be published annually.

The above information is summarized from and is subject to the letter of a Vice-President of the Corporation to the Bankers. These Bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel, Messrs. White & Case. Delivery may be made in temporary bonds or in interim certificates of a New York City bank or trust company.

R. H. BROWN FIGHTS SUIT FOR $3,500,000

LAW FIRM CO-DEFENDANT

Affidavits Declare at Least Four Alleged Causes of Litigation Are Combined in Present Papers.

Richard H. Brown, president of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Company, and his attorneys, Barron, Rice & Rockmore, have been sued in the Supreme Court by George A. Carden, who directed the unsuccessful pool in Manhattan Electrical Supply stock on the New York Exchange in the Summer of 1927, for $3,500,000 damages. Sidney P. Allen, a broker, is also a plaintiff.

Although the papers were served on the defendants on Nov. 30, the complaint is not yet on file in the County Clerk's office and the grounds upon which the action is based are not known except as they were disclosed yesterday when the defendants filed a motion demanding that a new complaint be served in which a number of alleged causes of action stated as one cause of action be stated separately.

Mr. Brown declined yesterday to discuss the suit, and referred inquiries to Bernard S. Barron, one of the defendants. Mr. Barron declared he would say nothing about the case.

Affidavits by Mr. Brown and Mr. Barron, filed yesterday, stated that "under the guise of a single cause of action, which purports to state grievances" against all the defendants, "it is apparent that at least four causes of action are sought to be stated." Exhibits purporting to be contracts between Mr. Brown and Mr. Carden are attached to the complaint, it was said, and Mr. Brown is accused of breaking the contracts. The affidavits say he also is charged with "fraudulent representations and concealment, as well as fraudulent manipulation of stocks and breach of a fiduciary obligation."

As to the law firm of Barron, Rice & Rockmore, it is alleged that with knowledge of the facts that the firm acquired "certain notes" from Mr. Carden "under pretense that the same belonged to them." It is also alleged that Mr. Barron drew up a contract on behalf of Mr. Brown at the time the notes were delivered to Barron, Rice & Rockmore, and that "the notes were fully discharged by reason of the obligations" Mr. Brown owed Mr. Carden and Mr. Allen.

"It is obvious that in an action involving a claim for $3,500,000 the respective defendants should not be saddled with the precarious burden of determining at their peril which of the numerous word-laden allegations apply to them respectively," the affidavits say. The case will be heard tomorrow.

The pool in Manhattan Electrical Supply stock, operated by Mr. Carden, formerly a District Attorney in Texas and head of a former Stock Exchange firm here, was smashed within three hours on Aug. 11, 1927, when the stock fell from 121 to 58¼, lopping off $8,000,000 in the open market value of the stock. Mr. Carden said at the time that he tried to stave off disaster by buying about 25,000 shares at 121 and downward, but finally had to stand aside and let the market crash. The stock has been weak recently, the closing price yesterday being 31.

Mme. Helena Rubinstein and Mr. Charles S. Welch, to be respectively President and Vice President of the Company, summarize their letter, copies of which may be had upon request, as follows:

"Helena Rubinstein, Inc., will be incorporated in New York or other state selected by us to acquire, pursuant to a reorganization, the American business of a New York corporation of the same name, including the exclusive right in the Western Hemisphere to distribute all present and future products of Mme. Helena Rubinstein. The proceeds of this financing will be used in connection with such acquisition.

Founded in Paris about 1901 by Mme. Rubinstein as a salon for scientific beauty culture and the retail sale of special face-creams, the business grew to include a New York salon in 1914 and by 1920 the American demand necessitated manufacture and wholesale distribution in this country. When the present New York corporation was organized in 1926 and its capital stock issued, the formulae, trademarks, etc., presently to be acquired by the Company, were valued at $4,700,000.

Mme. Rubinstein, the President, retains over 44% of the issued Common Stock, and will continue to spend a large part of each year in her European business, creating new products. Mr. Welch, the Vice President and General Manager, will add to the present management, which has been responsible for the growth of the business, many years' experience in sales methods and trade relations gained with Park & Tilford, Houbigant, Inc., and a subsidiary of Coty, Inc.

American distribution of Helena Rubinstein's internationally known cosmetics is effected through over 3,000 active retailers, including leading department stores throughout the United States and Canada. Over 80% of sales are unsolicited wholesale re-orders received by mail. The discriminating clientele of the modern salons in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Newark, Newport, Southampton and Palm Beach has fostered the insistent consumer demand evidenced by re-orders. Sales of all important items have increased without extensive advertising.

The pro forma balance sheet as at July 31, 1928, giving effect to the formation of the new Company and the plan and agreements in connection therewith, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., shows current assets of $1,061,818, current liabilities of $73,084 and formulae, trademarks, etc., carried at $1.00. As the business does not require large working capital it is expected that the new Company should be able to pay in dividends on the Common Stock a substantial proportion of the net earnings applicable thereto.

Net earnings of Helena Rubinstein, Inc. (old company) for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1928, excluding results from the European business, and eliminating income from investments not to be taken over by the new Company and providing for Federal income tax at the present rate of 12% (which elimination and adjustment of tax decrease the earnings by $103,306), as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., were $958,947, equal to $7.10 per share of Preference Stock or $2.05 per share of Common Stock presently to be outstanding.

The business has made a net profit in each year from inception with a continuous increase in sales and earnings. American sales for the first eleven months of 1928 were over 21% greater than those in the same period of 1927."

We offer these Shares, if, as and when issued and received by us and subject to approval by our Counsel. Legal matters in connection with this offering will be passed upon by Messrs. Kellogg, Emery and Inness-Brown for the Bankers and by Henry M. Flateau, Esq., for the Company. It is expected that delivery will be made about December 20, 1928, in the form of transferable Allotment Certificates, representing

The following information has been summarized by the President of the Corporation from his letter to us:

History—The Lancia Automobile Company of Turin, Italy, established in 1906, has enjoyed a steady growth, until today it is one of the largest makers of cars in Europe, with a product second to none. A list of purchasers in the United States would disclose names of the most influential families in the country. Demand for this car in the western hemisphere has warranted establishing a plant in the United States. Lancia Motors of America, Inc. has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York for the manufacture and sale of the famous Lancia cars in this country.

Organization and Operation—Lancia Motors of America, Inc. has a contract with the Lancia Automobile Company of Turin, Italy, on the basis of which it has the benefit and use of all the Lancia patents. Designing and engineering of the Lancia cars, to be offered to the American market, are under the direct supervision of the Lancia Automobile Company of Turin, Italy, and Mr. Lancia personally; the latter is also Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Company. Every vital part of the car will be imported from Italy.

Lancia Motors of America, Inc. has acquired one of the most modern of reinforced concrete construction automobile plants in the country of approximately 129,000 square feet floor space, with over 14 acres of land, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., along the Albany Post Road, with railroad sidings and easy access to the Hudson waterfront. This unit has sufficient floor space for the production of 25,000 cars a year.

Estimated Production—Initial production of 3,000 cars per year is planned. The Company has established the principal units of its dealer organization, having excellent representation in the principal commercial centers with a great many applications for agencies. With a background of 15 years of sales distribution in the United States the Lancia car will require no introduction to the American public. An output of 3,000 cars the first year would result in net profits of $833,750, or more than four times preferred stock dividend requirements. Earnings, as estimated by John D. Moore, independent consulting engineer, are greatly in excess of this amount.

Purpose of Issue—Proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used to furnish working capital for the production and sale of Lancia automobiles, and for other corporate purposes.

Legal details in connection with this issue have been passed upon by Messrs. Barron, Rice & Rockmore, Counsel for the Bankers, and Messrs. Longo, Pinto & Zwoden, Counsel for the Company.

WILLIAMSON HEADS BURLINGTON ROAD

OTHER OFFICERS ADVANCE

Spens Is Executive Vice President —Scott and Holcomb Elected to Vice Presidencies.

Frederick E. Williamson was elected yesterday president and chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad to succeed Hale Holden, who resigned from these positions to become chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific on Jan. 1.

Mr. Williamson was executive vice president of the Burlington and Colorado & Southern. He was graduated from Yale in 1898 and entered the railroad business as a clerk for the New York Central, later becoming division superintendent. He was with the United States Railroad Administration and afterward went to the Northern Pacific.

Conrad E. Spens, for some years vice president of the Burlington in charge of traffic, was elected executive vice president. Bruce Scott, general counsel of the Burlington, was elected vice president in charge of the law departments of the company and system lines. Horace H. Holcomb, freight traffic manager of the Burlington, was elected vice president in charge of traffic.

"Net railway operating income of the Burlington in November and December is estimated at $32,869,000, an increase of about $4,700,000 from last year," said Mr. Holden. "Gross and net revenue will show a substantial increase compared with 1927.

"Conditions are excellent in Burlington territory. The purchasing power of people in industry and on farms is improved. Prospects appear favorable for the first half of the coming year, and the last half, so far as the Central Western railroads are concerned, will depend as usual to a large extent upon the crops."

Mr. Holden said arrangements had been made to meet the maturity of $12,000,000 Colorado & Southern 4 per cent bonds due on Feb. 1 and that refinancing had been postponed pending an improvement in the bond market.

Fight on Aitchison for I. C. C. Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Opposition to the confirmation of Clyde B. Aitchison of Oregon as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission has virtually died down, it was said today by Senator Sackett of Kentucky, who had been expected to lead such a fight. Mr. Aitchison and former Commissioner John J. Esch were criticized for their attitude in the lake cargo case. The Senate refused to confirm the reappointment of Mr. Esch.

CITY STORES CO. BUYS LITS

Bankers Securities Corporation Sells Holdings for $12,821,000.

The Bankers Securities Corporation of Philadelphia announced yesterday that it had sold its holdings of stock of Lit Brothers, owners of a department store in that city, to the Cities Stores Company for a cash price of $12,821,000. The deal was closed in the offices of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., bankers. City Stores exercised a purchase option which was to run for one year from Oct. 17, on which date the Bankers Securities Corporation bought control of Lit Brothers and associated City Stores in the deal.

The formal statement issued by Albert M. Greenfield, chairman, and Samuel H. Barker, president, of the Bankers Securities Corporation, said: "The majority of Lit Brothers stock is now owned by the City Stores Company, of which R. J. Goerke is president. He directs a chain of seven department stores in Philadelphia, Newark, N. J.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Louisville, Ky.; Memphis, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala., and New Orleans, La., having an aggregate net annual sales of about $66,000,000."

The bankers and the Lit interests will continue for the present to be represented on the board of directors of Lit Brothers.

It brings the value of all gold ever mined in Transvaal to $5,000,000,000.

New Rail Storage Schedules Held Up

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today suspended from Dec. 11, 1928, and later dates to July 11, 1929, schedules proposed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad Company which would establish provisions for free storage of grain for export at Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia, for an extended period in lieu of present storage charges of 1-25 of 1 cent per bushel, per day. The reason was that the new schedule might be prejudicial to the public interest. Hearings will be held to determine the facts.

Fewer Engines on Northern Pacific.

The Northern Pacific Railway announced yesterday that although it was handling a larger volume of freight it had 300 fewer locomotives in service than it had six years ago. On Jan. 1, 1923, the road had 1,441 engines in operation and it now has only 1,141 in use. In the six-year period many locomotives were converted from obsolete to modern design. Sixty-one new locomotives were purchased, among them thirteen passenger engines. The company dismantled 361 locomotives for salvage.

D. & H. SEGREGATES ITS RAIL PROPERTY

$63,000,000 FUND RETAINED

The Delaware & Hudson Company has incorporated the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Corporation under New York State laws to acquire and operate the D. & H. railway properties, it was announced yesterday. The Hudson Coal Company, formed in Pennsylvania in 1871 and frequently reorganized, acquired all D. & H. coal properties in June, 1927. The Delaware & Hudson Company, formed in 1823 to build a canal between the Hudson and the Pennsylvania coal fields, now becomes a holding organization that owns separately the coal, railway and other D. & H. properties.

As the Delaware & Hudson Company has received $63,000,000 from the Pennsylvania Railroad for Lehigh Valley and Wabash stocks, it is in a position to become an important investment organization. Inquiry as to whether such an organization would be formed was met with the reply that plans for the future were not completed. Under its old charter the Delaware & Hudson Company has broad powers, and it will have a freer hand in spending this sum than if the money had been left in the treasury of the new railway company.

Funds for the purchase of Lehigh Valley and Wabash stocks were obtained by mortgaging the coal properties for $35,000,000 and realizing $5,000,000 from the assets of the Delaware & Hudson Company when it was still a railroad company, the profit on the sale of these stocks being $25,000,000. In its new status the Delaware & Hudson Company has the $63,000,000 fund unencumbered. The disposition of this fund has remained a question since it was acquired. It has been said officially that the money was not put in the call market.

As a separate unit, the railroad properties are now in a position where they could more readily enter an Eastern railway consolidation.

The capital stock of the new railroad company is to be not less than $9,000,000, of which 10 per cent. has been subscribed. There will be 778,610 shares of no par value, of which 257,870 shares would be non-cumulative preferred, entitled to not more than $5 a share annually in dividends.

The D. & H. railroad has until now operated under a New York charter more than 100 years old. L. F. Loree, president, asked shareholders at the annual meeting to ratify the corporate change made yesterday on the grounds it would modernize the company's structure. No further action by shareholders is necessary.

HENRY MANDEL—The Builder

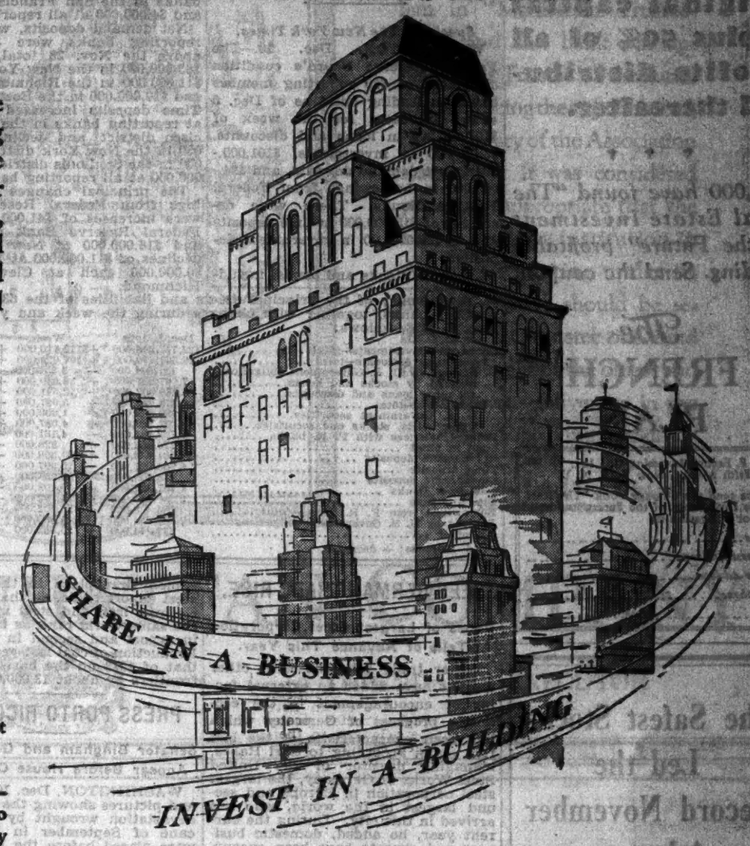
whose unprecedented success in large and profitable building and real estate operations is so widely known, has now perfected a Plan which enables him to invite you to become associated with him in a program of more extensive and more profitable operations than those which heretofore have marked his career.

THE MANDEL PLAN

is Henry Mandel's answer to those who, impressed by the magnitude and success of his building operations, have long sought an opportunity to invest with him and share in the ownership and profits of his great enterprises. Evolved after long study, in collaboration with bankers and economists, The Mandel Plan is founded upon the best features of all real estate profit-participation plans that have been devised for the benefit of the investor. For the first time, The Mandel Plan makes it possible through one investment:

To share in the ownership and profits of one Mandel Building, and at the same time,

To acquire a full profit-sharing ownership in this and all other real estate or building operations conducted under The Mandel Plan.



A UNIT INVESTMENT IN THE MANDEL PLAN

(1) On the first issue, which will be offered at $110, a unit investment in The Mandel Plan will give the investor:

(a) A well-secured Preferred Share in a single building—par value $100—yielding 6% Cumulative Dividends payable semi-annually—the principal to be repaid in full out of earnings after Preferred Dividends and before any other application of earnings.

(b) An Investor's Share in Henry Mandel Associates, Inc., at market price of $10, which represents permanent participation in ownership and profits of all Mandel Plan real estate or building operations.

(2) For each Investor's Share issued by Henry Mandel Associates, Inc., the founders of the Mandel organization must purchase a Founder's Share at the same price. In this manner cash capital is immediately provided in large volume for investment in other properties. Investors' and Founders' stocks are of equal value and share alike in dividends and equities.

(3) The most noteworthy feature of The Mandel Plan of Unit Investment is its inherent cumulative earning capacity. Revolving about the Preferred participation in one building is the Investor's Share participation in all Mandel Plan operations. The result is a constantly growing equity in a steadily increasing number of Mandel Plan operations.

A Complete Organization

The Mandel Plan will function under the personal supervision of Henry Mandel, and through the large organization of experts with whom he has surrounded himself in his career as a builder of conspicuously profitable structures. This organization includes the Henry Mandel Development Corporation, the Henry Mandel Building Co., Inc., and the Henry Mandel Management Corporation, which embrace the following departments: appraisal, purchasing, architectural, financial, construction, engineering, renting and management.

• • •

The Mandel Plan opens to investors a new era in the distinctly American idea of profit participation. Its comprehensive provisions go far beyond any plan designed to give the investing public a full share in both ownership and profits of large building and real estate operations.

The Mandel Plan makes available to investors, large and small, an exceptional opportunity to "Invest in a building—and share in a business."

Statement of Member Banks Discloses Increase in Loans and Discounts.

DECREASE IN TIME DEPOSITS

Loans on Stocks and Bonds in New York District Go Up $42,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of 630 reporting member banks in leading cities as of Dec. 5 shows increases for the week of $107,000,000 in loans and discounts, $5,000,000 in investments, $101,000,000 in net demand deposits, and $24,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks. There were decreases of $15,000,000 in time deposits and of $36,000,000 in government deposits.

Loans on stocks and bonds, including United States Government obligations, were $34,000,000 above the Nov. 28 total at all reporting banks, increases of $42,000,000 and of $22,000,000, respectively, being reported by member banks in the New York and Chicago districts, and decreases of $15,000,000 and $8,000,000, respectively, by banks in the Boston and Cleveland districts.

"All other" loans and discounts increased $37,000,000 at reporting banks in the New York district, $18,000,000 in the Chicago district, $11,000,000 each in the Atlanta and San Francisco districts, and $73,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Holdings of United States securities show a relatively small decline for the week, while holdings of other bonds, stocks and securities increased $9,000,000 at reporting banks in the San Francisco district, and $4,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Net demand deposits, which at all reporting banks were $101,000,000 above the Nov. 28 total, increased $63,000,000 in the New York district, $11,000,000 in the Richmond district, and $10,000,000 in the Boston district. Time deposits increased $15,000,000 at reporting banks in the San Francisco district and declined $15,000,000 in the New York district, $8,000,000 in the St. Louis district, and $18,000,000 at all reporting banks.

The principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks were increases of $41,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and $16,000,000 at New York, and declines of $11,000,000 at Boston and $6,000,000 each at Cleveland and Richmond.

A summary of the principal assets and liabilities of the 630 reporting member banks, together with changes during the week and year ending Dec. 5, 1928, follows:

SEES GERMAN TRADE RISE.

Better trade relations with other nations have added an external factor of encouragement to the economic progress of Germany which has been characteristic of the last five years, according to Carl Rabes, managing director of the United Steel Works of Germany, the largest steel corporation in Europe and second largest in the world, who has arrived in this city. During the current year, he added, domestic business and exports have been encouraging.

"In general, German industry has attained an output equal to, or in excess of, the pre-war period, on the basis of present frontiers," he said. "In the first quarter of 1928 the production of raw steel considerably exceeded that of the same period of any year since the war and was greater than that of the first quarter of 1913.

"In June of this year Germany assumed first place in the iron and steel export trade, so that today the German iron and steel industry has the same world rank as in 1913, first in export and second in production. Production of coal last year exceeded that of 1913 on the basis of present frontiers by about 13,000,000 tons."

PRESS PORTO RICO LOAN.

Senator Bingham and Gov. Towner Appear Before House Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Maps and pictures showing the widespread devastation wrought by the hurricane of September in Porto Rico were placed before the House Insular Affairs Committee today by witnesses appearing at the opening of hearings on the Keiss joint resolution providing $12,150,000 for relief on the island.

Senator Bingham, Republican, of Connecticut, a member of the Senate Insular Committee, who recently visited the island, and Governor Horace M. Towner were the chief witnesses appearing in favor of the measure, which would set up a relief commission of the Secretaries of the Treasury, War and Agriculture.

A provision under which interest at 5 per cent on loans would be waived until such period as the borrowers could afford to pay, led to considerable debate and inquiry as to precedents for such a loan.

Business Realignments

Industry in the United States is changing rapidly from a local to a national status.

Hundreds of small factories, which formerly supplied their immediate territories, have grown or been merged into great corporations whose branded products are internationally known.

The transition has brought about drastic readjustments in manufacturing, merchandising and marketing methods which necessarily have created new and broader banking requirements.

The facilities of Bankers Trust Company have kept pace with changing conditions. It is equipped to meet the expanding demands of national enterprises, and through long industrial experience is able to be of practical assistance to its customers in the solution of their business problems.

British Exchange Is Depressed, the "Anglo-American" Group Showing Heavy Falls.

LONDON MONEY PLENTIFUL

Paris Displays Weak Tendency—Berlin Opens Dull, With Most Prices Dropping.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The stock markets began the week in a depressed mood. The continued anxiety over the conditions of the King cast a gloom over the House and restricted the volume of business. Another unsettling factor was the collapse of American shares on Wall Street on Saturday. Prices opened lower in nearly all departments.

The "Anglo-American" group, including Victor Talking, International Nickel and Dunhill International shares, showed heavy falls. In the absence of any material amount of local selling, the fluctuations during the day were not as a rule violent. A moderate rally occurred in "Anglo-Americans" early in the afternoon, but it was not well maintained.

The oil market suffered an all around relapse, and the tin group was also out of favor. A few features, including United River Plate Telephone and General Electric stocks, were bought on the American account and with cable stocks showed advances. British Government securities declined generally, the largest fall being ½ in the 4 per cent funding loan. Rubber shares were idle. Some Wall Street shares, which rallied after opening with sharp falls, included Columbia Graphophone, which dropped ⅝ on the balance, and Victor Talking, but the recovery of the latter from $120 to $125 was discounted later in the Street.

Mond Nickel, the Marconi group, United Molasses, Gramophone, Courtauids, the Celanese group, Brazilian Traction and numerous other shares declined. There was little change in South African shares, but De Beers dropped ¼.

The short loan market on Lombard Street was abundantly supplied with money, and 3 per cent was the general quotation for fresh day-to-day loans. In the afternoon New York was disposed to bid for sterling, with the result that the exchange finished ¼ higher, at 4.85 3-32. The Bank of England sold £157,901 bar gold and the destination was again understood to be Germany.

Paris Trading Dull.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The Bourse was weak today under the influence of the Wall Street situation and the prospect of the mid-month liquidation, which, with the piling up of the year-end business, is expected to be accompanied by some tension.

Bank and domestic stocks weakened at the opening, but rentes and State securities showed firmness and resisted the general trend of the market. Trading lagged during most of the session, but toward the closing hour there were some transactions which gave the final figures a somewhat better appearance.

Berlin Boerse Depressed.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The Boerse today was still under the influence of the slump experienced at the end of last week. Trading was at a minimum at the opening hour, with speculators holding back.

Later the situation was improved somewhat by a rumor that the directorate of the Dye Trust was holding an important meeting. But when this was denied, quotations began to drop again, most stocks losing 3 to 4 points and some 6 to 7. Only a few stocks, such as breweries, distilleries and department stores, managed to gain a few points.

During the afternoon the downward movement continued, Dye Trust shares dropping 7 points. At the closing hour the stagnation was almost complete, with quotations at the lowest. Call money was plentiful, but the rate remained at 6% to 8%.

"MANHATTAN TRUSTEESHIP" SOLVES PROBLEMS

The Problem of the Rhodes Scholars

THE PROBLEM

THE Association of American Rhodes Scholars, commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of Cecil Rhodes' birth, recently decided to establish in this country a permanent fund to be known as the American Trust Fund for Oxford University. As the University has no official representation in the United States and the Association itself being an unincorporated body, neither could act in the capacity of Trustee. It was problematical as to how best to administer the fund.

Special trust literature upon request. Address Main Office, 40 Wall Street, or call at any of our offices

THE SOLUTION

THE Rhodes scholars found the solution of their problem in "Manhattan Trusteeship" and this bank was appointed as Trustee of the fund. In announcing the appointment, the Secretary of the Association stated that it was considered peculiarly appropriate that the oldest banking institution in America operating under its original charter should be selected as the Trustee of a fund for the benefit of the oldest and most famous university in the English-speaking world.

A copy of the Oxford Trust Deed will be sent upon request

A Railroad Gave new motoring beauty

As automobilists pass through the Delaware Water Gap and take to the concrete of the Lackawanna Trail, Beauty rides at their side like a courier.

¶ Mile after mile of mountain and valley, taking the eye and lifting the mind with reach and vista . . . On past Painted Rock into Binghampton through Poconos and Blue Ridge . . . Silver streams brawling pleasantly, with tempting thoughts of flashing trout . . . Picnic spots under cool shade inviting one to linger.

¶ Of all the roads which serve heaped-up beauties to the motorist, the Lackawanna Trail lingers in the memories of those who pass over it.

¶ Motorists are unflagging in their praises of the Trail, from Delaware Water Gap to Binghampton, and if the beauty of motor roads were a matter for popular vote the Lackawanna Trail would carry every motor-tourist precinct.

¶ Few of those who drive over the Trail realize that they are riding the former roadbed of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad.

¶ To reduce grades, the Railroad some years ago built an entirely new roadbed high up in the hills. From the present roadbed, travellers by rail have all the beauties of the motoring trail plus many more which are unfolded at the higher elevation.

¶ The former roadbed down in the Valley, now the Lackawanna Trail, was presented to the States of New York and Pennsylvania by the D., L. and W.

¶ This is one of countless instances of a quality of public-spirited service which has won for the D., L. and W. a high place in the affections of the public it serves. A Railroad becomes in time a personality to those who live with it, and to thousands of such, the D., L. and W. is a fine, public-spirited neighbor, one whose property always is trim, well-kept and tidy; whose spirit is friendly, and whose daily works are efficient.

STEEL CORPORATION DOWN IN BOOKINGS

STATEMENT FOR NOV. 30

Seasonal Decline in Motor and Can Industries Reflected—Operations Advance Again.

Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation on Nov. 30 amounted to 3,673,000 tons, comparing with 3,751,030 on Oct. 31, a decrease of 78,030 tons and the first decline shown since July. Operations in October were at an average of more than 87 per cent of capacity, and although they declined in November to around 82 per cent the rate was still far above the usual operating rate for that season of the year.

In addition to slackening in forward buying, due to the approach of the year-end, the demand for steel in November was adversely affected by the seasonal slack in two large consuming lines—automotive and can. The slack this year was not so decided as usual, which accounts for the comparatively small decline in bookings for the month in the face of 82 per cent. operations.

The first week of December found steel operations again advancing, United States Steel's subsidiaries reaching a rate of 84 per cent, against a low of 79 per cent shortly after middle of November. Based on operations, shipments for November are estimated at probably about 1,150,000 tons, against 1,250,000 tons in October and 1,100,000 tons in September. Incoming business for November therefore is estimated at between 1,050,000 and 1,100,000 tons, against 1,300,000 tons in October and 1,200,000 tons in September.

OVER-COUNTER MARKET ACTIVE AS PRICES FALL

The over-the-counter market displayed a moderate amount of activity yesterday, with prices showing a generally lower trend. Banks opened rather weak but closed steady. Insurance shares were marked by good buying of the better known securities. Chain stores sold off after holding firm the greater part of the day. Industrials were fairly strong and active.

Hercules Powder common and new stocks were fairly strong. Gorham common and preferred and Newport Company were also higher. Declines were marked against Ruberoid, Singer Manufacturing, Columbia Baking, Scovill, Phelps Dodge Draper Corporation, Atlas Portland Cement common and Alpha Portland Cement common. Zieley was also easier.

Globe and Rutgers Insurance and Boston were lower, while an easier tone prevailed in City, Northern, North River, National Union, Niagara Fire, Springfield Fire and Marine and Fidelity and Casualty of New York. In the bank group, Interstate, Lefcourt Normandie, Textile and Guaranty Trust were higher. Weakness was shown by Hanover, First National of New York, Harriman, Bankers, Central Union, Park, Seaboard, Chatham Phenix, Chemical, Commerce, Midwood, Title Guaranty and Trust, Equitable and Manhattan Company.

Among the chain store stocks, United States Stores preferred, Schiff common, J. C. Penney preferred and Piggly Wiggly Western States A were higher. Losses were checked against Neisner, Great A. & P. Tea common, National Shirt common, I. Silver preferred, Kobacker common, American Department Stores, Metropolitan Chain new and I. Silver common.

AVIATION COMPANY FORMED.

Securities Corporation to Aid in Financing Other Organizations.

The Aviation Securities Corporation has been organized in Chicago to aid in financing aviation companies. Laurance H. Armour is president, John Wentworth is vice president, and John J. Mitchell is secretary and treasurer. All the outstanding stock, amounting to 150,000 shares, has been subscribed at $23.50 a share. Brokaw & Co. were the bankers.

The board of directors include, in addition to the officers, Charles G. Cushing, Paul E. Gardner, Charles F. Glore, E. K. Hardy, Colonel Paul Henderson, John Hertz, Robert P. Lamont, Robert R. McCormick, Earle H. Reynolds, Charles Ward Seabury, John R. Thompson, Walter B. Wolf and William Wrigley Jr. of Chicago, and E. L. Cord, A. H. Richards, C. M. Keys and James C. Willson. A technical organization is being organized to give expert opinions on projects.

REICH FACES NEW LOCKOUT.

Textile Wage Dispute Threatens to Involve 375,000 Workers.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Germany's labor troubles threaten to break out anew just as the government has succeeded in settling the dispute in the Ruhr metal industry.

This time the difficulties are arising in the textile industry. The wage rates which expire in the near future will not be renewed by the industrialists unless the workers are willing to continue the present scale until June, 1931.

In addition to about 200,000 employes thus affected, trouble is brewing in the districts where the workers have no wage agreement, and there is a possibility that 275,000 men will be thrown out of work.

The general opinion is that the government will intervene earlier than it did in the Ruhr conflict, in order to protect the economic position.

The arbitration court which was asked to settle the wage dispute in Thuringia has handed down its decision, giving the workers a 5 per cent increase after Dec. 1, but this has been rejected by both parties. The award was not declared binding, however.

In the Ruhr about 90 per cent of the workers have already returned to work, and the remainder will be back within a week.

Gasoline Price Cut a Cent in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—A reduction of 1 cent a gallon on retail gasoline prices was announced today by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and was met by corresponding cuts by a majority of the competing companies. The Chicago filling station price is 16 cents a gallon.

Arnot Again to Head Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP).—Samuel P. Arnot, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, who created the Chicago cotton market and leads the movement for the adoption of securities trading, was nominated for re-election today. The nomination is equal to election, which takes place next month.

Warner Aircraft Meeting Dec. 18.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Warner Aircraft Corporation will be held in the office of the company on Dec. 18 to take the place of the annual meeting, postponed from Nov. 5. Application will be made for listing the stock on both the Detroit Stock Exchange and New York Curb Market, and a proposal to split up the stock on a five-for-one basis will be considered.

2 STOCK DIVIDENDS, 10 EXTRAS VOTED

Evans Auto Loading Declares a 4 Per Cent Disbursement for 1929 in Two Payments.

THREE INITIALS ANNOUNCED

Two stock dividends and ten extras in cash were declared yesterday by nine corporations. Three other concerns ordered initial payments on their outstanding securities.

Directors of the Evans Auto Loading Company declared a stock dividend of 4 per cent for year 1929, payable 2 per cent on April 1 and 2 per cent on Oct. 1 to stock of record on March 20 and Sept. 20, respectively.

The Blaw Knox Company declared a stock dividend of 5 per cent and a special cash dividend of 20 cents a share on new no-par common, payable on Jan. 14 to holders of record on Dec. 14.

The Galesburg Coulter Disc Company ordered an extra dividend of 25 cents a share in addition to the regular dividend of $1, both payable on Jan. 2 to stock of record on Dec. 20.

Directors of the Midland Steel Company declared the usual extra of 48 cents a share on common and $1 extra on preferred in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of $1 on common and $2 on preferred. The Timken Detroit Axle Company ordered the usual extra of 5 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 15 cents a share on capital stock.

The Singer Manufacturing Company declared an extra dividend of $4.50 a share on capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50, both payable on Dec. 31 to stock of record on Dec. 10. This brings total extra and regular disbursements for the year to $28 a share.

The Hazel-Atlas Glass Company ordered an extra payment of 12½ cents a share on common, payable on Jan. 2 to holders of record on Dec. 15. The Ideal Cement Company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share payable on Dec. 22 to holders of record on Dec. 15.

Declarations by the Diversified Securities Corporation included an extra payment of 50 cents a share on Class A participating preference stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 43 cents a share, and 50 cents a share extra on common stock in addition to the usual dividend of 25 cents a share.

An initial dividend of 87½ cents a share was declared by the Allied Products Company on Class A stock, placing the issue on a $3.50 annual basis. The Automatic Washing Machine Company ordered an initial payment of 50 cents quarterly on preferred and the Long Island Lighting Company ordered an initial payment of 10 cents a share on no-par common.

CORPORATION REPORTS

Financial Statements of Various Industrial Companies With Comparisons.

The Paramount Cab Manufacturing

Corporation in November earned a consolidated net profit of $191,892, the largest in its history, President A. S. Freed announced yesterday. This was after charges but before Federal income tax. Earnings from Oct. 1 to Nov. 30 were $342,750. On the basis of earnings in October and November, Mr. Freed said, the common stock earned about $1.40 a share. He estimated that the year's earnings would be about $8.40 a share. The directors today will declare a dividend payable in January.

Southern Asbestos Company.

The Southern Asbestos Company reports that its sales for the five months from July 1 to Nov. 30 were $1,306,904, compared with $845,079 for the same period last year, a gain of $460,825, or 54.4 per cent.

Chandler-Cleveland Motors.

Shipments made by the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation in November were approximately 30 per cent. greater than during the corresponding month last year, according to Sidney Black, vice president in charge of sales.

Butterick Company.

The Butterick Company for the nine months ended on Sept. 30 reports a net income of $405,332 after depreciation, interest and other charges, equivalent to $1.92 a share earned on 210,785 shares. This compares with $539,122, or $3.40 a share, on 158,134 shares in the same period of 1927. For the September quarter there was a net loss of $26,895, comparing with a profit of $207,083, or 98 cents a share, in the previous quarter, and $42,472, or 26 cents a share, in the September quarter last year.

Interstate Department Stores.

The Interstate Department Stores report sales for November of $2,308,964, compared with $1,911,818 for the same month last year, an increase of 20.77 per cent. Sales for the first eleven months of this year aggregated $18,192,869, against $15,218,177 for the same period of 1927, an increase of 19.54 per cent.

WHEAT PRICES EBB, BEARS ARE ACTIVE

Market Undertone Is Heavy and Selling Appears on Upturns.

VISIBLE SUPPLY IS LESS

Trade in Corn Is Small, With Persistent Selling—Oats and Rye Go Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Wheat showed a heavy undertone a good part of the day with the local element bearish and selling on all of the minor upturns. The close was slightly above the inside figures, with net losses of ⅝ to ¾ cent. The best support came from commission houses on resting orders and from holders of bids.

Winnipeg acted heavy and was off ⅝ to ⅞ cent for the day, while Liverpool lost ⅛ to ¼ pence. Buenos Aires was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower and Rosario 1 cent lower for the day.

The domestic visible supply decreased 1,076,000 bushels for the week, and the total is 135,101,000 bushels, against 136,777,000 bushels the previous week and 88,813,000 bushels last year. World shipments fell off sharply and there was a good reduction in supplies on ocean passage. Favorable weather conditions prevailed in Argentina for harvesting, which is progressing rapidly.

Primary arrivals today, 2,040,000 bushels; week ago, 2,226,000 bushels; last year, 1,764,000 bushels. Shipments, 518,000 bushels; week ago, 1,274,000 bushels; last year, 358,000 bushels.

Scattered liquidation was on in corn, with support coming mainly from holders of bids, and the finish was at net losses of ⅝ to ¾ cent. Trade in the aggregate was not large, but the selling was persistent, with commission house longs going out on the way down. The local element was less disposed to take the buying side, in view of the favorable weather over the belt and the sale of 350,000 bushels to go to store for delivery on December contracts.

Country offerings to arrive were not large, but local arrivals were 772 cars, with the spot basis steady to 1 cent lower. Little was heard regarding export demand. The visible supply increased 3,251,000 bushels for the week, and is now 9,670,000 bushels, against 6,419,000 bushels a week ago and 19,363,000 bushels last year. Buenos Aires finished ⅝ to ¾ cent lower and Rosario was off 1 to 1¼ cents for the day.

Primary receipts today, 2,660,000 bushels; week ago, 2,725,000 bushels; last year, 1,834,000 bushels. Shipments, 875,000 bushels; week ago, 1,328,000 bushels; last year, 513,000 bushels.

Weakness in other grains had a depressing effect on oats, and the close was ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower, with December showing the most strength, the finish being only ⅝ cent under May, against ⅞ cent on Friday. There were no deliveries on December contracts and country offerings, and the movement remained small, while the visible supply was reduced 1,082,000 bushels for the week and is 12,263,000 bushels, against 22,329,000 bushels last year. Rye was off ¼ to 1 cent, in sympathy with wheat.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

COMPULSORY POLICIES FOR AUTOISTS OPPOSED

Ohio's Insurance Superintendent Says Doctrine Is False—Conventions Begin.

Compulsory automobile liability insurance is a false doctrine because it seeks to compensate for death when "real compensation is to have life preserved," said W. C. Safford, Superintendent of Insurance in Ohio, addressing the fourteenth annual convention of the Insurance Federations of America, which was opened yesterday at the Hotel Astor. He said the present law in Massachusetts had shown itself to have many faults.

The meeting of the federation ushered in Insurance Week. Various other insurance conventions were opened at the Astor and will continue today, tomorrow and Thursday. Other meetings yesterday were the Convention of Insurance Commissioners and one of the national committee on insurance education.

Today the Association of Life Insurance Counsel will meet; tomorrow, the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, also the Casualty Information Clearing House. The Association of Life Insurance Presidents will begin its convention today, to last through Thursday.

INSURANCE MEN TO MEET.

Founders of Association of Counsel to Be Its Guests.

A luncheon at which its founders will be its chief guests will be the feature of the annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Counsel in the Hotel Astor tomorrow. The first session of the convention will be held this afternoon. There will be morning and afternoon sessions tomorrow.

The founders of the association are William J. Tully, formerly general solicitor of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; William Smith, vice president and general counsel Travelers Life Insurance Company; Edward D. Duffield, president Prudential Life Insurance Company; Frederick L. Allen, vice president and general solicitor Mutual Life Insurance Company; James H. McIntosh, former general counsel New York Life Insurance Company.

What Kind of Audit?

AUDITS vary in quality and scope. The Quality depends upon the experience, ability and application of the auditor; the Scope is a matter of your instruction.

Of course, Every Audit should be a Detailed Audit. This is an expert and independent study in detail of the items represented in mass by balance sheet figures. It discloses the many important facts underlying the figures; verifies; clarifies. It brings to light avoidable leaks and wastes; finds the flaws in accounting, in credit and collection methods; points to possibilities for greater profits, and is free from qualified statements of the balance sheet audit.

The Balance Sheet Audit, in spite of obvious limitations, when properly made is more than a mere building up of statements from book figures without careful analysis and substantiation.

COTTON RECOVERS EARLY LOSS IN PRICE

Fall of $1 a Bale Caused by Liquidation—Market Closes at Top Quotations.

GOOD DEMAND FROM TRADE

Dry Goods Circles Report Sales in November Running Ahead of Production.

With a sharp break in foreign quotations for American, Egyptian and Indian cotton, prices on the Cotton Exchange declined $1 a bale yesterday. The liquidation under way at the close of last week continued to be a depressing factor in the early trading, but as May approached 19½ cents, the market met resistance and a recovery of all the early loss took place before the close, which left prices 1 point higher to 3 points lower on the day.

While Southern spot holders were free sellers when contracts in New York were above 20¾ cents recently, cotton was less easily procurable after the decline of more than a cent a pound, and at the same time demand from trade sources increased in volume at the lower price level. Active price fixing for mill account in the last hour closed the list at the top. According to estimates from dry goods circles, sales during November exceeded production by 10 per cent, while unfilled orders increased 5½ per cent during the month.

The combination of an increase of 250,000 bales in the official crop estimate and the recent events in the stock market influenced sentiment in several directions and wire houses received a quantity of selling orders for execution at the opening of the market. Liquidation was active throughout the morning, but a steady demand for cotton at the decline of a cent a pound in ten days halted each recession and created frequent recoveries as the session advanced. At one time, the sale of a block of March forced that month below 19.30 for a few minutes, but each point of decline disclosed an increasing volume of scale-buying orders.

October developed resistance below 19 cents, while Southern advices from several parts of the belt reflected only limited offerings of spot cotton. With exports of 72,000 bales for the day, making the movement 620,000 bales in excess of that at the corresponding date last season, the quantity of contracts being taken from the market started a covering movement shortly after midday. An improvement in stocks brought in professional covering, and around 19 cents for the March delivery in New Orleans, pressure from that quarter lifted and recovery of $1 a bale on the exchanges in that city and this took place before the close.

Yesterday's quotations here follow:

MANDEL ANNOUNCES PLAN.

Public Participation in His Realty Enterprises to Be Offered.

A plan whereby public participation in the ownership and profits of buildings controlled by Henry Mandel Associates, Inc., will be invited, is announced by Henry Mandel, builder, who is head of the organization, which also includes the Henry Mandel Development Corporation, the Henry Mandel Building Company, Inc., and the Henry Mandel Management Corporation. The plan, which is to be known as the Mandel plan, is summarized as follows:

"A unit investment in the Mandel plan, to be offered at $110, will consist of one $100 6 per cent note, convertible at the option of the holder within one year after issuance of certificate of occupancy for a new building, into a secured preferred share of the building, par value $100, yielding a return of 6 per cent the principal is to be repaid in full out of earnings after preferred dividends and before any other application of earnings; also, an investors' share in Henry Mandel Associates, Inc., at the market price of $10, which represents the permanent participation in ownership and profits on the real estate and building operations.

"For each investor's share issues, the founders of the organization must purchase a founder's share at the same price. Thus capital will be provided for investment in other properties. Investors' and founders' stocks share alike in dividends and in equities. Initial financing under this plan, to be made this week, will consist of 10,000 investors' shares and $1,000,000 of convertible notes."

C. H. YOUNG WINS DIVORCE.

Publisher Gets Decree in New Jersey Court After 2-Year Litigation.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 10.—Following litigation that had lasted two years in New Jersey, Courtland H. Young, magazine publisher, obtained a divorce here today from Dorothea R. Campbell Young in the Court of Chancery.

Action in New Jersey was brought by Mr. Young after one suit filed in New York had been dismissed and another had resulted in a disagreement. Disposition of the 7-year-old daughter, Rosadelle Corinne Young, who is now with her mother would be decided later, the court announced. No mention of Neil Young, 6 years old, was made by the court.

The couple were married in 1920. Mrs. Young was an actress and dancer.

$300,000 Fraud in Turkey Bared in Currency Change

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 10.—Extensive frauds have been discovered among government treasury employes supervising the retirement, destruction and exchange of the old Ottoman currency notes for those of the new republic.

An inquiry, already begun, shows a discrepancy of more than $300,000.

Angora expected to net a large surplus by the exchange because large sums of the old currency were destroyed during the war. It is now discovered that the inspectors supervising the destroyed old Ottoman notes have been guilty of exchanging them more than once for new currency notes.

ENGLISH FORD ISSUE OF STOCK OUT TODAY

$14,000,000 of $35,000,000 Capital Shares Will Be Offered to British Public.

LARGE FACTORY PLANNED

The Company Will Control Ford Concerns on the Continent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A prospectus will be published tomorrow of the Ford Motor Company with a nominal capital of $35,000,000, which is to acquire as a going concern the business of the Ford Motor Company [of England], Ltd.

In some respects the flotation is of a novel character. The American investing public has never had an opportunity to subscribe to or purchase shares in the great Ford Motor Company of America, but in the case of the English subsidiary the investing public of this country will be invited to subscribe for a substantial portion of the capital, namely $14,000,000. The whole capital is in ordinary shares of £1 each, issued at par.

The remainder of $21,000,000 is being issued, fully paid, in part payment of the purchase price. The company will acquire shares in the various Ford companies on the Continent, and in pursuance of the policy under which the present offer is being made to the British investing public the company will offer 40 per cent of the shares of the different Continental companies to the public in their respective countries.

The English company will have the sole exclusive right of manufacturing, assembling, distributing and marketing Ford and Lincoln motor cars and other Ford products in Great Britain, Ireland and Europe, with the exception of Soviet Russia, but not in Asia Minor, Syria, Arabia, Iraq, Afghanistan, Persia, Egypt and certain other parts of Africa. The company proposes to erect on a 300-acre site in Dagenham, Essex, the largest factory in the world outside of the United States.

The issue is not underwritten, but the Ford Company of America will subscribe at par for any shares not taken by the public. Henry Ford, Edsell Ford and Charles E. Sorensen, all of Detroit, and Sir Percival L. D. Perry and Lord Illingworth of London will be among the directors.

FREED AS DAUGHTER DIES.

Hart's Island Keeper in Court Over Row When He Learns Child is Dead.

While a charge of felonious assault against Alexander Dorman of 306 Delancey Street, a keeper on Hart's Island, was being heard in Tombs Court yesterday, news came that the defendant's daughter, Margaret, 3 months old, had died suddenly at his home. Magistrate Glatzmayer dismissed the charge against Dorman and also a similar counter-charge made by Dorman against Nicholas Stormis, a restaurant proprietor at 35 Madison Street.

Dorman said in court that his daughter had been christened Sunday night at Our Lady of Sorrows Church, Pitt and Stanton Streets, and that a celebration had followed. He arose early yesterday and went to Stormis's restaurant, where an altercation occurred. It was said the baby's mother gave Margaret her bottle, believing her to be in perfect health, returned to the crib a few moments later and found that the little girl had died.

INQUIRY IN TENEMENT FIRE.

Fire Marshal Rules Out Incendiarism—Another Victim Dies.

Still in doubt on the cause of the fire Sunday morning in the four-story tenement at 1,634 Second Avenue, which has now claimed three lives, Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy announced last night that four men he had assigned to investigate found "no tangible suspicion" of incendiarism.

"We discovered the blaze started in the first floor hall of this old-style tenement and not in the basement," he said. "This hall, evidence showed, had been frequented by bums and hoboes, especially on Saturday nights, drawn by the heat of bakery ovens below. The front door was unlocked and we found there had been a bucket of tar in the rear of the hall, but this was to be used to repair leaks in the roof. We could find no one in the building against whom any serious grudge was held by some person outside. The building conformed to the Tenement House law."

The third victim of the fire was Miss Elizabeth Kelly, 72 years old, who died yesterday in Italian Hospital. She had been taken by firemen from a third-floor flat unconscious. Mrs. Helen Link, 23, and Lawrence Henrafty, 22, died Sunday. Seven other persons injured in the fire were reported recovering.

The United Neighborhood Houses, with headquarters at 70 Fifth Avenue, sent a message to Mayor Walker as a result of the fire, urging the inclusion of "adequate fire protection" in revisions of the Tenement House law to "safeguard the lives of one-third of New York's population still forced to live in these firetraps."

$283,287,963 BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

LARGEST ITEM IS PENSIONS

Senate Adds $3,000,000 to Billion Dollar Treasury Bill—Provides Pay Rise for General Lord.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Operating on schedule, the House Appropriations Committee today turned over to Congress the second big supply bill of the session, a measure to provide $283,287,963 for the host of Federal activities administered by the Interior Department.

The committee and House leaders hope to dispose of three of the big supply bills before the Christmas recess, and consideration of the Interior measure will be taken up in the House tomorrow. One supply bill, the billion-dollar Treasury-post-office measure, already has been passed.

The total appropriation proposed by the Interior bill represents an increase of $10,109,424 over current funds, but is $1,957,082 below the amount requested by the Budget Bureau. The funds would be available for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Army and navy pensions take the the largest chunk of the bill's total, $221,000,000 being allotted for them. Next to pensions was the $16,267,803 allotment for the Indian Bureau.

For carrying on the Federal reclamation projects in the West, $6,449,000 is provided, only half of the total available for this year, though several millions unspent at the end of the last fiscal year are reappropriated.

Other big allotments include: General Land Office, $2,159,400; Geological Survey $2,040,800; National Park Service, $7,340,940; Bureau of Education, $1,071,940; Hawaii and Alaska administration, including Alaska Railroad, $1,419,600.

In addition to the amount carried in the bill, the department will have $25,712,000 from permanent and indefinite appropriations previously authorized. This boosts the total cost for 1930 for the department to $308,999,963.

About $3,000,000 was added to the House billion-dollar Treasury and postoffice appropriation measure today by the Senate Appropriations Committee in reporting the bill to the Senate.

The committee chairman, Senator Warren of Wyoming, in starting another line of the annual supply bills through the Senate, gave notice that he would take up the measure on Wednesday, indicating a determination on the part of leaders to clear up the appropriation bills in time to forestall any necessity for an extra session on that score.

The largest increase in the House bill was $1,800,000 for compensation for first and second class clerks in the Postoffice Department, while $25,000 was added for additional rental of pneumatic postal tubes in Boston.

An increase from $220,000 to $235,000 for the Federal Building at Lubbock, Texas, also was voted by the committee, which added a total of $2,974,810 to the $1,116,675,389 carried in the measure as passed by the House.

Director Lord of the Budget Bureau, who, for a salary of $10,000 a year tries to keep down the expenses of a four-billion-dollar government, has been recognized by the Senate Finance Committee as deserving a raise. The committee included a $2,000 increase for him in reporting the Treasury-postoffice bill. It recommended a like increase for Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills of the Treasury.

PARK FOREST ACTION URGED

Sierra Club Asks Congress to Speed Yosemite Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 10.—Prompt Congressional action to save from destruction privately owned forest lands in the sugar pine belt of the Yosemite National Park is urged in a resolution passed unanimously by the directors of the Sierra Club.

Congress was asked to approve legislation now pending which will assure acquisition of the timber lands by the Federal Government, either through appropriation or through exchange with lumber companies of other government-owned timber outside the park.

Reports to the club were said to indicate that only by prompt Federal legislation, matching pledges already obtained from private sources, can logging of the forests within the park be halted. The area in question consists of privately owned timber claims secured before the Yosemite Park was created in 1890. There is no question, it was pointed out, as to the right of the lumber company to cut the timber on its own land. The only solution, it was said, is through the Federal action asked by the club.

Duncan McDuffie of San Francisco has been elected president of the club.

ALBANY FLIER IS MISSING.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 10 (AP).—Oliver E. Townsend of Albany, a veteran flier, who left Coxsackie last Thursday in a Travelair plane for Miami, Fla., has not been heard from, his relatives said, since he took off from Newark, N. J., Friday noon for Bolling Field, Washington.

Townsend was to have advised his brother Russell of Coxsackie of his progress daily. The missing flier was formerly chief pilot for the Albany Air Service, Inc.

Charles S. Dion, supervisor of the Newark municipal airport, said last night that Townsend arrived at the airport shortly after 3 o'clock last Thursday and left orders with the chief mechanic to have his plane refueled. He took off about 12:30 Friday, saying he was on his way to the naval air station at Anacostia, Md. No word has been received from him since that time. Flying conditions at the time he departed were fair.

Actors Aid Sick Children.

At yesterday afternoon's pre-Christmas party at Knickerbocker Hospital, 131st Street and Convent Avenue, theatrical folk entertained the sick children, a "talkie" of the party was made and a chorus of children from 4 to 6 years old from Manhattanville Day Nursery sang.

PLANS DRIVE TO END ALL SUNDAY SPORTS

Lord's Day Alliance Votes to Seek Laws Throughout Nation for Weekly Rest and Worship.

A vigorous national campaign to obtain uniform laws compelling the observance of Sunday as "a day of worship" and banning all "commercialized amusements," such as theatre performances, professional baseball and golf on Sunday, was decided on yesterday by the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States at its annual meeting. More than two hundred members of the alliance from different parts of the country, most of whom are ministers, attended the morning sessions at the Methodist Book Concern building and adjourned to the Hotel Astor in the afternoon.

Explaining that the Protestant churches are facing a serious loss of influence because "too many people are taking their religion comfortably," and are spending their Sundays in other ways than in "reading the Bible and worshipping God," the conference pledged itself to renewed efforts "to make the Sabbath a real day of rest and devotion throughout the country."

After criticizing those Protestants who spend the Sabbath playing golf and seeking amusement instead of attending church, Federal Judge Charles P. McClelland drew a comparison between people professing the Protestant faith and those of the Catholic religion, warmly praising the latter for their "strong devotion to God."

He recommended that all Protestant ministers wear some insignia of their calling, similar to the clerical collar of Catholic priests, "to show the world that we are preachers of the gaspel and proud of it."

HELD ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

Youth Suspected of Aiding in $5,000 Fraud on Ship Line.

Rogue Donato, 22 years old, a bus boy, of 244 West Ninety-ninth Street, was held in $5,000 bail for hearing next Monday by Magistrate Brodsky in West Side Court yesterday, charged with suspicion of acting in concert with a man variously known as Joseph Manola, Elmera Rubin and José Incarnacion in converting a bogus check into $5,000 in American Express money orders through the Dollar Steamship Line, 604 Fifth Avenue.

According to detectives, Manola was arrested Nov. 5 after he had cashed a bogus check for $1,580 on the Liedenkraus Steamship Agency at Washington and Fulton Streets, Brooklyn, for a passage to Manila and express checks. He subsequently forfeited $5,000 bail.

The police traced him through a girl suffering from appendicitis in Jewish Memorial Hospital. They arrested Donato as he was about to pay the girl's hospital bill. Donato said he was merely acting as Manola's messenger to pay the bill.

CRUDE RUBBER PRICES SAG.

Market Supported in Early Trading, but Liquidation Ensues.

Crude rubber futures were slightly irregular yesterday on the Rubber Exchange. During the forenoon moderate support from trade factors and commission houses steadied prices, but liquidation during the afternoon caused the list to sag 10 to 20 points. Sales amounted to 320 lots, 180 of which changed hands before midday.

Bullness ruled in London. Spot and December finished 1-16d down at 8¾d; January was 1-16d down at 8 9-16d; January-March, 1-16d lower at 8¾d; April-June, ½d lower at 8¾d. July-September recovered 1-16d and closed unchanged at 9¼d. Stocks in London dropped 338 tons to 16,517 tons. Singapore was dull and unchanged to 3-16d lower.

TIN FUTURES TRADING LIGHT

Sales of tin futures on the National Metal Exchange yesterday were lighter than on most days last week, due, perhaps, to market uncertainty following the recent sharp declines. The turnover was 195 tons, prices making a net gain of 120 to 135 points. The market closed firm, near the highest prices of the session. There were no transfer notices.

Back Rochester Man for Beha Post.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Lester Fisher, an insurance man of this city, is candidate for office of State Superintendent of Insurance. Mr. Fisher is endorsed by the sixty-two insurance agents in business here, headed by Ernest A. Paviour, who represents the Underwriters' Board, and by Follett L. Greeno, president of that organization, who has written to Governor-elect Roosevelt in favor of the candidate.

SIFTS I. R. T. DELAYS AT HEARING TODAY

Transit Board Will Question Operating Officers on Rush-Hour Let-Down.

PLANS TWO MORE SESSIONS

Queens Service Up Tomorrow and Stairway for 9th Av. Elevated at 34th St. on Thursday.

Operating defects of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on the east and west side subway lines will be aired before the Transit Commission this morning at the first of a series of three hearings on the general subject of better service. Operating officers of the company will be questioned today regarding the general let-down in rush-hour service, as shown by the recent report of the commission's service bureau and the subsequent records on the mechanical headwaygraph device, which checks train movements at the Times Square and Grand Central stations.

The second hearing, scheduled for tomorrow morning, will concern itself with the complaints voiced by residents and civic groups of Astoria and Flushing, Queens, against the I. R. T. service in that section. On Thursday morning the commission will hold a hearing on the construction of an additional stairway at the Ninth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street station of the company's elevated lines. The full commission will sit during the hearings today and tomorrow and Commissioner Lockwood will preside Thursday.

Members of the commission, who frankly doubt that the pending 7-cent fare case injunction will permit the enforcement of any orders for additional equipment, involving expenditures by the company, hope that evidence adduced at the hearings will disclose some method of improving service by more efficient use of the facilities now available.

Rush-hour service on both the east and west side lines of the I. R. T. fell off badly yesterday morning. The traffic on these lines is steadily increasing as the Christmas holiday draws nearer, and operating officials of the company have thus far been unable to provide service measuring up to the commission's schedules. The headwaygraph record for the rush hours yesterday morning follows:

Times Square.

The rule of permitting only as many passengers as can be seated to enter subway trains, as practiced in Buenos Aires, Argentina, was recommended for Mayor Walker's consideration yesterday by Howard B. MacDonald, the principal speaker at the opening session of the school of politics at the Women's National Republican Club. Mr. MacDonald's lecture on South America dealt mainly with the countries included in President-elect Hoover's good-will tour.

Mayor Walker was not present yesterday at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate which put over for one week consideration of the transit unification plans submitted months ago by Controller Berry and Samuel Untermyer.

SILK FUTURES QUIET.

Silk futures were listless in trading on the National Raw Silk Exchange yesterday. The traders appear to be awaiting developments in the silk industry. The last upward swing in futures came in October and early November. The most definite influence yesterday was an advance of 10 to 17 yen a bale on the Yokohama exchange. Spot silk held steady at 1,380 yen. Sales of futures at Yokohama were 840 bales, while sales of spot silks were 850 bales.

DOUBTS STOCK FALL WILL INJURE TRADE

Commerce Secretary Whiting Holds Wall Street Slump Speculative in Character.

PREDICTS HOLIDAY RECORD

He Points to Release of $550,000,000 in Christmas Savings, 10 Per Cent More Than Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Secretary of Commerce Whiting expressed the opinion today that the recent decline of security values in the stock market would not adversely affect general business, and predicted record Christmas trade this year.

Mr. Whiting said that he was not very familiar with the activities on the Stock Exchange, but that it was his understanding that the decrease of security values in the stock market "did not arise from fear of a general business decline, and is due to considerations arising from speculative operations."

"While sufficient statistics are not now available on which to premise a forecast of the approximate dollar volume of Christmas business," said Mr. Whiting, "all visible indications point to a larger trade at this season of the year than in any previous year. A reservoir of $550,000,000 has just been released in the form of Christmas savings, an increase of 10 per cent over a year ago and five times as great as in 1920.

"The volume of dividends and interest payments during December of this year, aggregating more than $560,000,000, is 15 per cent larger than during December of last year. While a large portion of this money will be reinvested in many ways, it is reasonable to expect that at least 50 per cent will go to swell channels of trade, with all types of merchandise feeling the effects.

"Life insurance purchases during the present year will undoubtedly reach a new high record, evidencing the abundance of ready money. The general index of factory employment during October, the last available month, showed gains over both the preceding month and the corresponding period of 1927. With the increase in industrial output indicated for November in the steel, automobile, copper and certain other basic industries for which preliminary statistics are available, it is believed that factory employment will show further expansion over last year.

"This large employment, at higher real wages than ever before, has afforded higher standards of living which are, in turn, providing insistent demands for more of the comforts of life.

"The radio, the mechanical refrigerator, the automobile, to say nothing of the other numerous appliances, are now definitely fixed in the scheme of things, with the sales volumes for the Christmas period expected by the trade to be larger than at this season in any previous year.

"In all, the present Christmas season is full of holiday spirit which will find interpretation in material things, because of the firm substructure of large employment and large savings."

Discussing his plans, Secretary Whiting said that no new work of an unusual nature was being planned for the near future.

"The ever-increasing number of requests for services of all kinds indicates a growing reliance upon the department for assistance in all matters pertaining to efficient administration of business," he said. "During the week ended Nov. 24, individual services of all kinds rendered by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in connection with its diverse trade promotion activities, both foreign and domestic, totaled 67,458, being larger than for any other week in the history of the bureau.

"An ever-increasing demand is noted on the part of industry for the use of the services and facilities of the commercial standards group of the department in developing simplified practice recommendations and commercial standards for the guidance of manufacturers, distributers and consumers.

"The Patent Office is receiving a large number of applications for patents and trade marks, while the activities of the other branches of the department are generally well sustained for this season of the year."

40,000,000 Eggs in Channel Awaiting British Price Rise

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Forty million Chinese eggs are stored in the French steamship Glaziare, which has been anchored off Deal since Saturday, waiting for a rise in the egg market.

When the ship left Shanghai she was bound for Hamburg, but the owners changed their minds and the captain is awaiting their orders. She may land her cargo of 3,000 cases at London, Hull or Leith, according to which city pays the highest prices.

Chinese eggs, it is said, can be kept in refrigerators for five or six months, to be used for cooking purposes.

ASKS WRIT TO CURB 'EXCAVATING RING'

Brooklyn Realty Man Alleges He Got Identical Bids From 7 Contractors in Association.

SAYS THEY HAMPERED HIM

Truckmen Also Must Reply Today to Charge of Interfering With His Independent Undertaking.

The existence of a combination of excavating contractors and truckmen who are conspiring to fix prices on all excavating work being done in Brooklyn is charged in a proceeding that will come before Supreme Court Justice MacCrate in Brooklyn today for argument.

The action was brought by T. Harry Glick, real estate dealer of 26 Court Street, Brooklyn, who alleges that the Excavating Contractors' Association of Brooklyn and Queens, Inc.; the Contractors' Mutual Trucking Association and several affiliated organizations have combined to fix a uniform price for all bids submitted by members of the associations for work to be done in Brooklyn, and are attempting to interfere in various ways with independent contractors who are not affiliated with the combination.

David L. Podell of 39 Broadway, counsel for Glick, obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Humphrey last week, returnable before Justice MacCrate, today, requiring the organizations alleged to be affiliated with the combination to show cause why they should not be restrained from conspiring against the plaintiff.

Glick's suit is based on his experiences in attempting to excavate at Crown Street and Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. He says in his complaint that he requested bids from a number of Brooklyn contractors in October and received three written bids and four oral ones, all of which quoted the same price, $17,500 for the work to be done above the ground and $1.75 a cubic yard for the work to be done below the ground.

Glick sets forth that he was told the reason for the uniformity of the bids was that the excavating contractors formed an association to which all requests for bids were referred, and that an official fixed the amount of the bids. Glick said that a reasonable bid for his work should not have been more than $7,000 for the work above the ground and $1.15 a cubic yard for the work below the ground.

He said he undertook to do the work himself, figuring that it would cost him about $5,500 for the work above the ground and 90 cents a cubic yard for the work below grade, but he found he has been hampered by members of the combination who have attempted to prevent him from continuing with the project. He has had difficulty in obtaining steam shovels, he alleges, and truckmen who have been working for him have been threatened.

Other defendants are Lucien D. Spencer, Michael Schlosser, Jacob Kramer, John Curran, Samuel Geminella, John Monaghan and officials of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, Local 282, and of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, Local 184.

PERMITS FORECLOSURE IN CORAL GABLES CASE

Federal Judge in Florida Allows Procedure on Mortgages Totaling $445,000.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 10.—An order permitting Grover Middlebrook, trustee for bondholders, to file suit in chancery against the Coral Gables Corporation, seeking foreclosure of mortgages totaling $445,000, was granted in Federal court here today by Judge Lake Jones.

The claims set forth that the corporation delivered certain mortgages in favor of the Biscayne Trust Company and issued under the mortgages bonds aggregating $500,000, of which, due to default, $445,000 worth, with interest from May 1, 1928, are now outstanding.

The Southern States Life Insurance Company of Alabama, the present holder and owner of the mortgages, instructed Mr. Middlebrook to open the suit for foreclosure.

The government holds a lien on the property for $387,249.94 for income tax, with interest of more than $80,000.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 10.—Foreclosure proceedings against the Coral Gables Corporation authorized in Federal court at Jacksonville today, are merely a matter of course in conveyance of property to the Southern States Life Insurance Company as security for claims and will not affect the reorganization of Coral Gables, according to Clifton D. Benson, counsel for the defendants.

The corporation intended to convey title to this property some time ago, he explained, but bankruptcy proceedings now pending made this impossible. The foreclosure did not mean that a receiver would be appointed, he added, and would not interfere with the refinancing program.

F. G. Bailey, chairman of a creditors' committee that has been directing affairs of the corporation, asserted that the suit would aid in "clarifying the situation," and would do no harm.

SAFETY PRIZES AWARDED.

W. A. Murray, Bricklayer, Gets First Place in Poster Contest.

Fifteen cash prizes were presented last night to the winners of the safety poster contest of the Building Trades Employer's Association in the Engineering Societies Building at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. The judges were Commissioner James A. Hamilton of the State Department of Labor; Rudolf Miller, consulting engineer, and R. H. Shreve, architect. Commissioner Hamilton gave the first prize of $100 to William A. Murray, a bricklayer for the Thompson Starrett Company.

Other prizes were awarded as follows:

William Bradley, apprentice bricklayer, $75; Harry Wenz, carpenter, $50; Joseph Crowley, laborer; Carl Almquist, metal worker; Al Steinhilber, plumber; Louis Fassler, ornamental iron and bronze finisher; Thomas R. Smith, steamfitter; Adam Birney, electrician, and Harold Baer, Ensmith, each received $25. Special additinols prizes of $10 were awarded in place of the usual honorable mention to five other men.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.
Yesterday—5½ per cent for the best names. Saturday—5½ per cent for the best names. The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Holiday Shopping Sets Records.

Holiday shopping is now progressing rapidly, with reports agreeing that the business being done is ahead of last year at this time. Turnover yesterday and Saturday set new records for these particular days, retail executives here believe. Admonitions to shop early have swung some of the last-minute business ahead, but will not serve to reduce the volume expected during the remaining twelve shopping days before Christmas. The record turnover indicated will serve to make up for the lack of gain in November, it is figured.

Two More Broadcloths Advanced.

Women's woolens for Spring are showing a greater degree of firmness in line with the price advances being made on some of the popular cloths for later delivery. Another increase, effective yesterday, was announced by the American Woolen Company. The rise amounts to five cents a yard and covers two broadcloths made by the Wood mill—Nos. 09771 and 09762. The company last week announced rises of the same amount on ten other fabrics. Favor for broadcloths for Spring has been strong, mill executives say.

No Concern Over Latin Crisis.

Concern over the strained relations between Bolivia and Paraguay was slight in export circles yesterday. Among business houses generally who have South American connections the conviction exists that some means of mediation will be found before actual war is declared. As an outlet for American export goods, the two countries are regarded as comparatively small, since Paraguay buys an annual average of $3.01 worth of material per capita from the United States and Bolivian purchases average $2.54 per capita. Aside from meat-packing activities there are few American investments in Paraguay, but American money is invested to a considerable extent in Bolivian mining activities.

Raw Fur Market Fairly Active.

While the great bulk of raw furs for use this season has been purchased, dealers here said yesterday that business is keeping up surprisingly well. In manufactured furs some improvement in demand has come with the approach of Christmas, noticeably in caracul and well-trimmed Hudson seal coats in the higher price ranges. Sales of this merchandise have brought about some movement in the better "seal" rats, and there is also increased buying of kidskins. Monkeys and Chinese dog are moving in a fair way. Leaders in the more expensive skins at present are mink, wolf, red fox and silver fox.

Stiffer Competition in 1929.

Retailers looking ahead to 1929 are inclined to view with confidence the early half of the new year at least, but the expectation is that there will be an even stiffer competitive pace than that which marked the present year. Expansion of chain stores, mergers of large department stores and substantially greater merchandising importance of style are influences held likely to be felt most strongly. Summed up, the conclusion reached is that the approaching year will demand of independent retailers a higher degree of progressive management, well-styled merchandise and buying and control of stocks that will cut mark-down losses.

Hosiery Prices Holding Steady.

Despite the great activity now being experienced in women's full-fashioned silk hosiery of all grades and the resultant justification of an advance, it was apparent here yesterday that no such action is imminent. No advances for Spring were made on leading lines of hosiery sold through the jobbers when they were priced about six weeks ago, and this fact has had a retarding action on the trade as a whole. The pace-setting lines in the direct-to-retailer field will not be opened for Spring for about two weeks, and the indications are that there will be no revising of prices before then, if at all.

Stationery Items Showing Gain.

Reorders for stationery have been good, indicating this merchandise is holding its own as holiday items. Boxed sets are described as moving well, with colored paper and lined envelopes to match meeting with marked attention. An increase in the volume of monogrammed stationery is reported. Leather-bound diaries are likewise said to be selling in volume somewhat in excess of last year. New types of penholders and novelty desk sets of a varying number of pieces are proving popular.

No Percale Advances Yet.

That the advances made in various lines of coarse-yarn colored cottons in this market do not presage a rise in percales and other printed fabrics right away was asserted yesterday by the ranking sales executive of one of the leading textile printing concerns. When these fabrics were priced for Spring on Oct. 1 no advances were made. The cotton market has gone up substantially since that time, however, and in certain quarters of the trade the feeling has existed that the lighter weight cottons were also in for a rise. With the goods at their present levels they are excellent "buys," and this is attested by the record volume of orders being placed.

Blanket Response Was Prompt.

The response of jobbing buyers to the earlier offerings of part-wool blankets for 1929 has been so prompt and broad that manufacturers are looking forward to one of the best seasons in some time. Buyers have found the price reductions much to their liking, it was said here yesterday. The introduction of core-yarn filling in several lines has also been acceptable to buyers, as it means better-wearing merchandise in spite of the lower prices. There is considerable trade speculation as to what the big producers of all-cotton blankets will do when they price these goods for the new season in about two weeks.

Gray Goods Start Slowly.

The week in the local gray goods market got away to a slow start yesterday. Second hands sold much of the goods let out, and here and there a price was shaded by first hands. Second hands disposed of 39-inch 68-72 printcloths at 8¾ cents, a quarter off the recent first-hand figure, and first hands themselves let them out at 8⅞ cents. Second hands also sold 38½-inch 64-60s and 38½-inch 60-48s at 7⅝ and 6⅝ cents, respectively, with first hands asking an eighth more in both cases. Sheeting sales included 40-inch 2.85s at 11⅞ cents, 36-inch 5.50s at 6¼ cents and 4.70s at 7⅞. Sateens showed some activity on the basis of 11¼ cents for 37½-inch 4.37s. In the finer goods most of the buying was of rayon-filled fancies.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

INVESTOR BUYS APARTMENT

Two Vacant Blocks in Queens Sold for Development Into Building Plots.

Few transactions of importance were reported in the real estate market yesterday. There were several scattering sales in Manhattan, including several cooperative apartment purchases, while the largest deal in other boroughs was the sale of two blocks in Queens for development into small building plots.

By the purchase of the five-story flat at 128 East End Avenue, Alexander M. Bing now controls a plot fronting 102 feet on the avenue by 98 feet on Eighty-sixth Street, being southwest corner of those thoroughfares. The 128 East End Avenue plot was bought from Eva Geib through Leon S. Altmayer as broker. It has a frontage of twenty-five feet in the middle of the block, adjoining the three parcels to the north owned by Mr. Bing.

The remaining half block frontage to the south was purchased a short time ago by Vincent Astor, also fronting 102 feet on the avenue by 148 feet on Eighty-fifth Street.

Harry Miller and Samuel Bonwitz sold through L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co. to an investing client of Irving M. Engel of the law firm of Konta, Kirchwey & Engel, the six-story Senate Apartment house, 226 Second Avenue, 50 feet north of the northwest corner of Fourteenth Street, on a plot 53 by 75 feet. This building occupies part of the site of the original home of former United States Senator Evarts.

The four-story building at 321 Lexington Avenue on a lot 20 by 80 feet and 60 feet from the northeast corner of Thirty-eighth Street, has been sold by Isidor H. Kempner & Sons to Nathan Wilson.

Loomis J. Grossman was the broker in the sale.

The Middle West Side Talmud Torah purchased 149 West Eighty-first Street, a four-story dwelling on a lot 22.3 by 102.2 feet between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, from Abraham Kantor.

J. J. Schwartz sold to the Ninety-fifth Street and Amsterdam Avenue Corporation 711 Amsterdam Avenue, a five-story tenement with stores on a plot 35 by 82 feet. W. J. Burns negotiated the transaction. The buyer paid all cash.

BUILDING PERMITS DECLINE.

Survey of Country Shows Seasonal Drop in Most Sections.

A seasonal decline in building permits issued in the United States is apparent in last month's total of $166,000,000, according to R. G. Dun & Co. This aggregate is considerably below the figures for recent preceding months and is appreciably under the $269,000,000 of November, 1927. The amount at that time, however, was swelled by exceptionally large operations in certain cities, notably at Chicago.

Geographical examination of the record reveals reductions in most sections from the permits for a year ago, but a sizable gain occurred in the Southern States and a small increase was reported by the Western group. Among the individual cities disclosing expansion for last month are Boston, Hartford, Newark, Atlanta, Kansas City, Memphis, Richmond, Washington, Cincinnati, Detroit and Minneapolis.

On the other hand, in addition to Chicago, especially large decreases developed at New Haven, Buffalo, Los Angeles and San Francisco. The total of $116,770,000 for Greater New York contrasts sharply with the $190,805,000 of November, 1927.

REALTY FINANCING.

Loans secured by mortgages on the following properties were announced yesterday:

Manhattan.

Sixteen-story apartment house to be erected at southwest corner of Central Park West and Ninety-third Street, $1,600,000 building loan to 227 Central Park West Corporation; advanced by Prudence Company.

Six-story apartment house at 111 West Sixteenth Street, $229,000 at 5 per cent to 111 West Sixteenth Street Corporation, J. Irving Walsh, president; Dowdney, Richart and Haigh, brokers.

Sixteen-story apartment to be erected at 421-7 West Fifty-seventh Street, near Tenth Avenue, $250,000 building loan to 427 West Fifty-seventh Street, Inc.; advanced by Isidore D. Morrison.

Bronx.

One six and one ten-story apartment house to be erected on west side of Jerome Avenue, 527 feet south of 165th Street, $950,000 building loan to Bregman Brothers, Inc.; advanced by Lawyers Mortgage Company.

BUSINESS LEASES.

Leases for business purposes announced yesterday included the following:

Sigmund Eisner, uniforms and other special apparel, large part of fourth floor in new seventy-five-story office and showroom building at 261 Fifth Avenue, southwest corner of Twenty-ninth Street, for long term; Thermophor Manufacturing Company, Inc., fifth floor space in 114 East Thirty-second Street, Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., brokers.

Burgess & Morgan, Ltd., naval architects and yacht brokers, twelfth floor space in New York Central Building, nearing completion at Park Avenue and Forty-sixth Street; Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., broker. The lessee now has an office in 11 Broadway.

PROSPERITY? YES, BUT SUFFERING.

To those who live in the sunshine of prosperity, there is a lesson in the stories of the shadows which are told in the Hundred Neediest Cases. In this great, wealthy city there are many who suffer and who are in want, through no fault of their own. And if those who prosper will read of these hundred, they will be impelled to say: "There, but for the grace of God, go we!" And, in thanks, they will help these unfortunates.

NEW CONSTRUCTION WELL AHEAD OF 1927

New building construction started in the metropolitan district of New York City already shows an excess of several million dollars over the record for the entire year 1927. The total volume of New work in the metropolitan area from Jan. 1 to Dec. 7 shows an increase of more than $68,000,000 over the amount of new work for the twelve months of 1927, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. This year's total up to Dec. 7 was $1,460,757,700; last year's total was $1,392,618,600.

Last week's contract total, $28,097,500, showed a decline of about $11,500,000 from the figure for the preceding week. Included in the building and engineering record for the week, Dec. 1 to 7, were the following important items: $17,535,300, or 62 per cent for residential buildings; $4,128,900, or 15 per cent for educational projects; $3,793,000, or 13 per cent for commercial buildings, and $868,500, or 3 per cent for public works and utilities.

New work reported as contemplated in the metropolitan area during the past week, amounting to $35,005,000, was $12,000,000 ahead of the reported figure for the previous week. The daily average of new projects reported in contemplation since the first of the present year is $7,976,000, against a daily average of $6,309,900 for such work reported during the entire year 1927.

AUCTION IN BRONX TONIGHT.

Murphy Will Sell 125 Parcels to Close Out Arnolt Estate.

An absolute auction sale of 125 improved and unimproved Bronx properties to close out the estate of Charlotte F. L. Arnolt will be held by James R. Murphy tonight at 7:30 P. M. in the Concourse Plaza Hotel, 900 Grand Concourse.

The sale includes vacant plots in Throgs Neck and Hunts Point and improved parcels at the southwest corner of East Tremont and Bathgate Avenues, the southwest corner of Arthur Avenue and East 178th Street, 245 East Tremont Avenue and 3,150 to 3,156 Third Avenue.

Sells Westchester Acreage.

Henry Bulkley has sold a plot of 15.6 acres on Whippoorwill Road, New Castle, to Cornelius R. Agnew. The parcel is near Wenga, the Agnew farm, and the Barrett flying field. It is east of the Croton lakes and accessible from the Armonk-Berkshire Road. Prince & Ripley, Inc., were the brokers.

To Open Dorothy Gray Building.

The new Dorothy Gray Building, a twelve-story building at 683 Fifth Avenue, to be devoted in part to beauty culture, will be opened formally this afternoon with an entertainment and tea under the auspices of the Pan-Hellenic Club.

Plans for $1,000,000 Museum In Upper Fifth Avenue Filed

Plans for the Museum of the City of New York to be erected at 1,220-27 Fifth Avenue were filed for approval with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings yesterday. The five-story Colonial type structure proposed will cost $1,000,000, according to an estimate by Joseph H. Freedlander, the architect.

The site, 193 by 150 feet, is between 103d and 104th Streets. It was offered by the city for museum purposes provided the trustees obtained a $2,000,000 building and endowment fund. This goal was reached last June, large contributions having been made by John D. Rockefeller Jr. and James Speyer. Phoenix Ingraham is president of the museum.

BRONX PROPERTIES SOLD

New Dealings in Improved and Unimproved Holdings.

A plot on the east side of Tomlinson Avenue, 275 feet south of Van Nest Avenue, on the site of the old Morris Park race track, has been sold by Walter C. Clark, as broker, for Margaret Hanke. The buyer plans to erect one-family houses on the plot.

The F. A. S. Realty Company sold to Pauline Engle a five-story apartment with stores at the southeast corner of West Farms Road and Freeman Street, subject to a $278,000 mortgage. The plot is 100 by 133 feet.

The Holland Improvement Corporation, Morris Bogdanoff, president, bought from the Philsam Holding Corporation a six-story apartment at 2,431-3 Creston Avenue, near 188th Street. The plot is 175 by 102 feet. The transfer was subject to a mortgage of $488,500.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Manhattan Parcels Reported Under New Control.

The Lebeco Realty Corporation has leased 750 and 752 Eighth Avenue and 247 West Forty-sixth Street for twenty-eight years from July 1, 1930, from the Berleo Realty Corporation. The plot fronts 50 feet on the avenue and 125 feet on the street, at the northeast corner, with an ell 25 by 50 feet. A six-story building with store covers the plot.

Annual rentals, in addition to taxes and assessments, are to be from $30,000 for the first year to $35,000 for each of the last seven years.

The Balcor Realty Corporation, Harold L. Lewis, president, leased to John Karagiannis the four-story building at 99 Maiden Lane, adjoining the northwest corner of Pearl Street. The lot is 21 by 61 feet. The lease is for twenty-one years at an annual rental of from $4,200 to $7,400.

BUYERS IN COOPERATIVES.

Third Apartment in New East Side House Bought by Family.

Mrs. Peter Gallagher has bought an apartment of seven rooms and three baths in the 100 per cent cooperative house at 333 East Sixty-eighth Street, opposite St. Catherine's Park, recently completed by Fred T. Ley & Co. from plans by Van Wart & Wein. Douglas L. Elliman & Co., the brokers, recently sold two other apartments in this building to Mrs. Gallagher's daughters, Mrs. Joseph Laurence and Mrs. Walter Crofton.

Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey bought a penthouse apartment of six rooms and three baths in the 100 per cent cooperative building at 136 East Seventy-ninth Street, recently completed by G. Richard Davis & Co. from plans by F. Burrell Hoffman and Lafayette A. Goldstone. All but one of the apartments in the building now are sold, according to Brown, Wheelock; Harris, Vought & Co., Inc., the brokers.

Charles MacArthur, playwright, bought an apartment in the Yorkgate, a 100 per cent cooperative house recently completed by Irons & Hoover, Inc., on the East River at Eightieth Street. Sutton, Blagden & Lynch, Inc., were the brokers.

SAGE FOUNDATION BUYS.

Enlarges Lexington Avenue and Twenty-second Street Holdings.

The Russell Sage Foundation, which occupies a large nine-story granite building at the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and East Twenty-second Street, has acquired four three-story and basement dwelling adjoining on the west on a plot 60 by 85 feet. The foundation was established in 1907 by Mrs. Russell Sage in memory of her husband, a financier, for the improvement of social conditions in the United States.

The dwellings were acquired from Harry H. Kutner, who previously had bought them from Mary W. Cooper and another. These sellers also transferred to Mr. Hutner an abutting parcel at 111-13 East Twenty-first Street, and Julia C. Schieffelin transferred to him the adjoining parcel at 115 East Twenty-first Street. This plot, 81 by 98 feet, has been sold by Mr. Kutner to the Gramercy Park Hotel Corporation, operating the adjoining sixteen-story Gramercy Park Hotel, at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and East Twenty-first Street.

To Auction Second Avenue Parcel.

Today at noon as a result of Supreme Court partition proceedings, Joseph P. Day will auction the tenement with two stores at 1,037 Second Avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Streets. The sale will be in the Exchange Salesroom, 56 Vesey Street.

QUEENS REALTY SALES.

Transactions Reported Yesterday in Various Properties.

Arthur A. Johnson has sold two square blocks of the Thornycroft development in the Forest Hills section of Queens to a syndicate headed by Senator Charles C. Lockwood. The blocks include 130 lots, bounded by Ninety-eighth and Ninety-ninth Streets, Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth Roads, Sixty-fifth Avenue and Queens Boulevard, where the frontage is 298 feet. The parcel will be resold in 100-foot plots, according to Fred G. Randall, who arranged the sale in conjunction with the Hub Realty Company and Abraham Saffir.

Edgar Koback, business manager of the Electrical World, bought an English garden home at 150 Twenty-ninth Street, Jackson Heights, from the Queensboro Corporation. Rogers & Haneman were the architects.

AUCTION RESULTS.

CRAFTSMEN TO BE HONORED

Thirteen Workmen on New York Bank Building to Get Awards.

The second award of certificates for superior craftsmanship by workers on the thirty-two-story building nearing completion for the Bank of New York and Trust Company at Wall and William Streets will be made Thursday noon by the New York Building Congress. Awards were made last June to seventeen men engaged in the preliminary work. Certificates and gold buttons will now be presented to thirteen mechanics, making a total of thirty workers on the building honored for exceptional skill in their individual capacities.

William G. Ludlow, vice president of the New York Building Congress, will preside, and among the speakers will be Edwin G. Merrill, president of the bank; Benjamin W. Morris, architect of the building; Robert Eidlitz, representing the builders, and John J. Collins, representing labor.

Architectural Beauty for Modern Business

THE magnificent new building of the New York Life Insurance Company on the site of the old Madison Square Garden—Madison and Fourth Avenues, 26th and 27th Streets, is now ready for occupancy.

There is not a square foot of office space in the thirty-four floors but has an abundance of outside light from the 2,180 windows. Its system of ventilation and electric lighting is the very latest. Its thirty-eight elevators are the latest Otis type.

It is a noble addition to the sky line of the world's greatest City; it has properly been termed the joint creation of architectural, engineering and commercial genius.

Its exterior dignity and beauty are matched by its interior equipment and services. Every desire and demand of modern business has been anticipated.

Floor space may be arranged to suit tenants. A suite or single office in this building assures a conspicuous and distinguished location, neighbors and surroundings. Subway entrance in the building; surface cars at the door.

BRONX.

Builders of a Bigger and Better BRONX

His Genius Helped Turn a Forest Into a Magic City

JOHN M. HAFFEN

If John M. Haffen didn't build the whole Bronx, it was because he wanted other good men to share in the achievement.

For more than 25 years, from the time the Bronx was "farthest north," Haffen has been at the helm of countless Community developments.

This man's vision is boundless as the stars. What Haffen plans to-day will benefit millions of Bronxites 50 years hence.

Yet, fortunately, his is not the only giant intellect responsible for the Borough's amazing growth. Those who have followed the outstanding personalities in this "Bigger and Better Bronx" series know this. And we who live in The Bronx, who love The Bronx, who have faith in The Bronx, know it best of all.

* * * * * * * *

During the next few months many thousands of thrifty home-loving families will "discover" the advantages of this "Community of Opportunity." A large number will be aided in their "discovery" by the Daniels Realty Organization, specialists in East Bronx Home and Apartment Sites. Sometimes we wish that our large sales personnel could be multiplied ten-fold, for never has it been so important to acquaint people with the wonderful advantages of this community. We would like to shout the story from the housetops, so that many who can easily afford to buy Bronx Land now will not put it off till "later on," when prices will be out of their reach!

Our Developments in EAST BRONX Consist of the Following Properties:

Sales Help Wanted—Male.

MEN, LOOK HERE!

We are looking for a group of energetic, forceful men of good appearance, who would like to become salaried executives in a new industry, a hygienic electrical household health unit, designed to become a dominating factor in the health field.

ELECTROLUX, INC., is as old and financially strong company, operating more than 400 branches in 43 countries. We are now opening the United States territory, which is bound to be the most profitable operation the company has yet undertaken.

We want these men for positions paying salaries from $50-$150 per week after a short training period, during which the men will receive liberal earnings in bonus and commission.

This new industry is already paying these salaries and more to men in the thirty cities we have already opened. We are also anxious to receive applications from men residing in Westchester, Queens Counties and New Jersey.

Executive ability, initiative and the determination to be successful are the requirements. We cannot get experienced men, as we are the only one in our particular field. Personal interview only.

SEE MR. WILBOR,
Personnel Director.

VIRGINIA SEEKS SHIP SPEED RECORD

PLOWS THROUGH ROUGH SEA

Largest American-Built Craft Is Due in Havana Today—To Reach West Coast During Holidays.

The new turbo-electric ship Virginia of the Panama Pacific Line is making record time on her maiden trip to the Pacific Coast, despite unfavorable weather conditions, according to a message received yesterday at the office of the company from A. J. McCarthy, manager of the American ships of the International Mercantile Marine Company, who is making the trip. The line is a subsidiary of the I. M. M. Company.

In her first twenty-four hours the Virginia, the largest commercial ship ever built in an American yard, covered 505 statute miles, which establishes her speed mark at 21.04 miles an hour and excels the mark of her sister ship, the California, on her maiden trip last January. Mr. McCarthy's description of the ship's performance includes the following:

"Although there was a high sea there was no vibration. Passengers dining happily were surprised at the extreme steadiness of the ship and widely remarked about the success of the new drive. Now running into sunshine and smooth waters."

The Virginia sailed from New York Saturday morning and is scheduled to land her passengers on the coast for the Christmas holidays. She is expected to reach Havana, her first port of arrival, this morning, and an official reception will be tendered her.

SHIPPERS TO MEET TODAY.

Conference to Consider Advice of I. C. C. Examiner.

The Shippers' Conference of Greater New York will consider the recommendations of Examiner Ames of the Interstate Commerce Commission for clearing up congestion of shipping in the pier district at its monthly meeting today. Sentiments expressed by members, who represent the most important shipping groups in the city, indicate that a formal appeal will be taken by the conference from some of Mr. Ames's recommendations.

The proposed consolidation of express companies and railroads which is scheduled to become effective March 1 will also be discussed, as will relations with the Port of New York Authority, port terminal charges as presented by the Interstate Commerce Commission and a legislative program to bring about improved freight traffic conditions.

Fourth Offender Gets Life Term.

Joseph Sudarski, 35 years old, of 950 Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment as a fourth offender by Judge Mancuso in General Sessions. He had pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree in connection with the pawning or selling of jewelry he had obtained on memorandum. Sudarski has been arrested eighteen times and convicted five times here and in other cities. Richard C. Murphy, counsel for the Jewelers' National Crime Committee, told Judge Mancuso that Sudarski had obtained $40,000 worth of jewels from various firms and had sold or pawned all of it without ever having paid for it.

Bath, Me., Lifts Smallpox Ban.

BATH, Me., Dec. 10 (AP).—The ban on all public gatherings in this city which has been in effect since the outbreak of smallpox two and one-half weeks ago will be removed at midnight tonight, despite the reporting of two additional cases today. Chester S. Kingsley, City Health Officer, said two new cases were mild and the quarantine on three of eight previous cases would be removed tomorrow.

'TIDAL WAVE' INJURES EIGHT OF LINER'S CREW

With four members of her crew, including Chief Officer John Bruce, badly injured, the Grace liner Santa Maria docked yesterday at Pier 33, Brooklyn, with the story of a huge "tidal wave" which had swept over the vessel last Saturday afternoon as she was proceeding north from the Caribbean.

The wave rose from a calm sea, officers said, and poured tons of water over the vessel. Chief Officer Bruce and seven men were working on the forecastle head, battening down hatches and putting tarpaulin over the ventilators. When the wave struck them they were thrown fifteen to forty feet, some of them falling to the well deck eight feet below, where they were working.

Deck apparatus which they seized saved them from going into the sea. Bruce was cut severely over the right eye, several ribs were broken and he suffered internal injuries. Emilio Roderiguez suffered a broken leg. José Roderigues, his brother, and Alexander Ott required hospital attention for lacerations and bruises. The other men received only bruises.

Captain E. N. Parker said the vessel had just emerged from bad weather, during which the wind rose to a velocity of eighty miles an hour. A lull came Saturday afternoon and the men were sent forward to tighten loose gear.

Emmanuel Hahn, a former newspaper correspondent, who was a passenger, said that after the large wave there was a period of calm for nearly an hour and a half.

TO CUT FLEET FORCE HERE.

Griffith Gets Washington Order for 20 Per Cent. Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Orders have been sent by the Fleet Corporation to Captain William E. Griffith, director of its operations for the New York district, to reduce his force 20 per cent. The United States Lines, it was stated, will not be affected. Employes would be let out gradually, but the details were left to Captain Griffith. The orders were issued, it was explained, for economy and because a large force is no longer considered necessary since the Shipping Board has sold the West African and other lines formerly under the supervision of the New York district.

The Fleet Corporation suffered an operating loss in the past fiscal year $350,000 greater than in the preceding year. Force reduction is part of a program to reduce overhead in an effort to make a better showing in the current year. The annual payroll for the 200 employes of the New York district is about $500,000. It is hoped to cut nearly $100,000 off this by reducing the staff.

United Fruit Promotes Henneghan.

The United Fruit Company yesterday announced the promotion of James F. Henneghan to assistant passenger manager. Mr. Henneghan worked himself up from assistant purser on one of the United Fruit Company ships. He was attached for some time to the San Francisco and Chicago offices and later was an assistant to the passenger traffic manager.

$400,000 for Poor Who Are Ill.

Pledges in the annual appeal of the United Hospital fund for sick poor people reached $400,000 yesterday, Henry J. Fisher, president of the fund, announced. The announcement was made at a meeting at the United Charities Building, 105 East Twenty-second Street, where Joseph J. Baker, George Blumenthal, James McV. Breed, B. Ogden Chisholm and others were present.

THE THRILL OF GIVING.

Contributions to the Hundred Neediest Cases bring a twofold joy—to him who gives as well as to him who receives. To those who respond to the appeal published today there comes the boundless thrill of having helped a needy fellow-man.
